GOP for Impeachments; MacArthur Will Appear At Session of Congress

Not-So-Raggy Rags

Democrats Would Have to Agree to Recall of General

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Congressional Republicans, angered by President Truman's firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, talked of "possible impeachments" today and got the general's agreement to address a joint session of Senate and House.

Senator Wherry of Nebraska and Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, the G.O.P. floor leaders, talked to MacArthur by trans-Pacific telephone.

Martin announced to the House: "I am authorized to say that General MacArthur would be delighted to have an invitation to speak" to a joint session. He added that MacArthur "can be here in about three weeks."

Martin introduced a resolution calling for an invitation to MacArthur to address Congress.

Prepares for Senate

Wherry prepared a similar one for the Senate.

What the Democrats would do about this move was not immediately clear. Some would have to support it in order for such an invitation to be voted.

Many of them would like to hear MacArthur's version of his controversy with the administration which led President Truman to fire him summarily early this morning as the far eastern commander.

Martin got mixed up in telling the House of his telephone talk with MacArthur and referred to "Senator MacArthur."

When the Democrats laughed, Martin added:

"He might be even higher later."

In times past, the general, now 71, has been mentioned as a possible Republican presidential candidate.

Conference Called

Martin called a conference of all House Republicans for later in the

What Has He Done Now?
(An Editorial)

An influential Ulster county resident who has known the Washington scene for many years today called The Freeman and asked, "What is this horrible thing President Truman has done today? Why did he act over the head of the United Nations to remove MacArthur? What is this awful burden he has placed upon the American people?"

The answer, unfortunately, is not an easy one. For, viewed coldly, it does seem to have thrown a hitch into overall strategy. It was an act done apparently with unilateral concept of importance, without combined balloting within the framework of the United Nations, even though allied displeasure with MacArthur was voiced. It is almost like a relative of a corporation employe suddenly saying, "Today I fire you. You can't do your work at your office any more." Who cares what the corporation thinks?

Of course it goes deeper than that, for General Douglas MacArthur is a General of the United States Army and President Truman is his commander-in-chief. While Mr. Truman might have the authority to dispossess MacArthur of American command in the Far East, the question still is to be answered, "Why did he feel free to override the United Nations in this way?" It would seem in our book that MacArthur still should be United Nations commander until removed by that body, even though he might lose American recognition.

At the moment, without further information and time to assess the situation, we disagree with the sentiment voiced today at Lake Success that MacArthur was purely Mr. Truman's responsibility. If that were so, how could General MacArthur act for the United Nations? It's a hot potato the United Nations obviously doesn't care to handle. Can it be the foreign diplomats once again have outsmarted the President of the United States? We have noticed before that President Truman is only too willing to muddy his fingers internationally with things he doesn't seem to know much about. He might be a successful home district politician, but he has never been a diplomat.

Is it strictly muddle-headed action once again? Is it more of the strategy of the Democratic administration to divorce the American people entirely from world respect? Is it a wise time to destroy faith in the one man who probably knows more of the Far East than anyone else of American heritage? Heavens to Betsy, what has he done now?

MacArthur Calm About Truman Act

General, Says Whitney, 'Never Turned Hair' Over News, Called His 'Finest Hour'

No Warning Given

MacArthur at Luncheon When Word Came to Him

(Russell Brines, AP bureau chief in Tokyo, was captured in Manila when that city fell to the Japanese. He returned to covering General MacArthur in the Philippines campaign and remained with the general throughout the rest of the Pacific war and the occupation of Japan.)

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, April 11 (AP)—General MacArthur received the news of dismissal from all his commands today "magnificently and without turning a hair."

Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, military secretary of the United Nations Command, told newsmen MacArthur would have no comment "for the time." He added:

"I just left the general. He received the word of the President's dismissal from command magnificently. He never turned a hair. His soldierly qualities were never more pronounced.

"This has been his finest hour."

The firing of MacArthur, by President Truman, came with the drama and irony which has marked the five-star general's 47 years of active military life.

Adds New Precedent

Even in defeat, he added another precedent to a career studded with them—the first dismissal of history's first United Nations commander.

The general with the dramatic touch went out under circumstances more like the stage than war. His notice came without warning during a quiet luncheon at his home.

Throughout a career of three wars and tumultuous peace, MacArthur has shouldered aside precedent to follow his destiny with meteoric and controversial brilliance.

He liked to say, as an explanation of many things: "I shall keep a soldier's faith."

No Hint of Criticism

Today, at the apparent end of a career which has included two temporary but bitter military defeats, the 71-year-old general was relieved without a public hint of criticism for his military ability. To the old soldier, that fact must have been comforting.

From the day, in 1903, that he graduated at the top of his West Point class, MacArthur never has been away from military affairs.

He retired from the U. S. army in 1937, then spent the next four years as field marshal of the Philippines trying to build up a defense force. He returned to active duty with the U. S. army in 1941, just before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, and has remained in uniform since then.

Named in 1944

MacArthur was named a general of the army Dec. 18, 1944. It, like most of his other top appointments, was by a Democratic president.

He never wore his medals. But he had them all, including the congressional medal of honor, and innumerable foreign decorations.

He completed the list of American awards when Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commander of Far East air forces, gave him the air medal during a visit to Pyongyang in Korea last winter.

MacArthur liked to think that his destiny has linked his career with the Orient. His first assignment was as a young engineer in the Philippines. Then he journeyed through another tumultuous era in Asia as aide to his father, Lt. Gen. Arthur MacArthur, the first military governor of the Philippines.

His career ended in the Orient—in a controversy over the importance of the world in American defense plans.

Had Three Careers

MacArthur had practically three careers.

The first was distinguished by a spectacular rise to rank and power to his appointment as chief of staff, in 1930. At 50, he

First Reaction Is One of Approval in Western Europe

Indians Might Make Peace Overtures to Reds; Moscow Is Silent

London, April 11 (AP)—Western Europe's first reaction today to dismissal of General Douglas MacArthur from his United Nations command in Korea was one of general approval.

Indian officials, whose government has been one of the loudest critics of MacArthur's political pronouncements, also expressed general satisfaction. New Delhi circles expected the removal to result in new peace overtures to Chinese Communists by the Indians.

The Soviet-controlled East German press and radio announced President Truman's action without comment, in a coldly factual manner, and without the usual insulting language it has heaped on the five-star general's head ever since the Korean war started.

Moscow so far was silent. The Russian press this morning carried neither the announcement of the dismissal nor comment on it.

In Paris U.N. Secretary General Trygve Lie declined to comment. A spokesman said the removal of the U.N. commander was an internal matter of the unified command.

Western-minded Germans, anxious to see defense plan priority given to Europe rather than Asia, were relieved at the dismissal. They attributed to MacArthur a contrary view.

Dismissal Is Comprised of Long Dispute

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Here is the chronology of events which led up to President Truman's dismissal of General MacArthur early today:

JULY 13—The United Nations Security Council authorized the United States to establish a unified command of U.N. forces in Korea. Mr. Truman immediately named MacArthur commander of all U.N. forces.

AUG. 28—President Truman ordered MacArthur to withdraw a statement on Formosa which MacArthur had sent to the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The message got out anyway. In it the general said Formosa was vital to America's Far East defenses and that it must remain in non-Communist hands. He called it an unsinkable aircraft carrier. The President said the message confused the American position.

OCT. 12—The President flew to Wake Island to confer with MacArthur.

DEC. 1—MacArthur said his lack of authority to strike at the Chinese Reds across the Manchurian border was "an enormous handicap, without precedent in military operations."

DEC. 3—MacArthur called "completely false" reports that he had opposed U. S. assurances to the Red Chinese that their Manchurian border was completely safe.

FEB. 8—The President said he had not seen a reported recommendation from MacArthur for the use of Chinese Nationalist troops in both Korea and China itself.

FEB. 13—MacArthur said that

Truman Picks Ridgway as Successor to MacArthur; Van Fleet Also Chosen

Press Is Called

Newsmen Summoned Hastily by Short at 1 A.M.

Washington, April 11 (AP)—President Truman fired Gen. Douglas MacArthur today on grounds he failed to support—and publicly sought to change—the grand strategy of the United Nations war against Red aggression in Korea.

In a sensational statement released at the White House at 1 a. m. (E.S.T.) after days of soul-searching and indecision, the President announced:

"With deep regret I have concluded that General of the Army Douglas MacArthur is unable to give his wholehearted support to the policies of the United States government and of the United Nations in matters pertaining to his official duties."

Acting with lightning speed on that conclusion, once he had reached it, the President:

1. Relieved the 71-year-old MacArthur of his four-fold duties as supreme allied occupation commander in Japan; United Nations commander in chief for Korea; United States commander in chief for the Far East; and commanding general of the United States Army in the Far East.

Ridgway Is Chosen

2. Named Lieut. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, field commander in Korea, to succeed MacArthur in all these commands. That means Ridgway not only will direct the U.N. campaign in Korea but also wind up the Japanese occupation, assuming peace treaty plans go through.

3. Named Lieut. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the Second Army at Fort George G. Meade, Md., to take over the Eighth Army command in Korea from Ridgway.

4. Issued a set of secret messages exchanged between MacArthur and the joint chiefs of staff here. The evident aim was to show that MacArthur had scorned successive Washington directives to clear anything he said on major political or military policy with either the State or Defense Departments.

Answers to Campaign

The order relieving MacArthur of command was Mr. Truman's answer to the general's persistent campaign of public statements to get the United States to follow a different policy in the Far East and especially, with its U.N. allies, in the Korean war.

Essentially he has advocated expanding the war to include direct attacks on Red China. He has presented Asia rather than Europe as the critical theatre of conflict with aggressive communism.

His dismissal amounts to reaffirmation by Mr. Truman of United States policies for a strictly limited war in Korea, if possible and for treating Eurbpe as the ultimately decisive area of contest with Soviet Communist power.

The bombshell announcement was made by Press Secretary Joseph H. Short at a hastily summoned White House news conference.

Free to Travel

The president told MacArthur he is free to "travel to such places as you select"—thus freeing the general to return to this country after an absence of nearly 14 years. There were immediate demands in Congress that he come at once to Washington to give his views.

In addition to the heretofore secret message, orders sent out shortly before midnight to bring about the spectacular shakeup in the Far East were also released.

The secret message file showed MacArthur had been covered in a general presidential order last Dec. 6, clamping down on policy statements by all government officials. He had been bluntly reminded of this by Mr. Truman's direction on March 24, after issuing forces reached the 38th Parallel.

Letter to Martin

Meanwhile, on March 20, the record showed, MacArthur had sent to House Republican Joe

Marbletown Votes School Building

By a vote of 284 to 155 voters of Marbletown Central School District No. 3, on Tuesday approved a bond issue for $610,000 for construction of a modern, fully equipped elementary school building.

The special meeting was held at Grange Hall, Stone Ridge, with voting from 3 until 9 p. m. A total of 439 votes were cast.

In June 1950, by a large majority the ten districts in the area voted for centralization. On April 1, 1951 the High Falls district became the eleventh school district to join the central district.

The school will be erected on a site at the intersection of Route 213 and the Kripplebush road about a half mile west of Stone Ridge village. This site consists of 16 acres. Plans for the new school have been completed by Harry Halverson, architect.

Fighting Men Not Aware of Shift From 'Mac' to Ridgway

Tokyo, April 11 (AP)—Command of United Nations forces in Korea shifted abruptly today from General MacArthur to Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

Many of the fighting men in the Korean front lines did not know at a late hour Wednesday that President Truman had fired MacArthur.

United Nations Diplomats Greet Ouster Of Korean Commander With Obvious Relief

Lake Success, April 11 (AP)—Surprised U.N. diplomats generally greeted with obvious relief President Truman's order ousting General Douglas MacArthur as U.N. commander in Korea.

The delegates were not talking for publication, but their comments privately and the positions they have taken in the weeks of argument over MacArthur shows that the President did exactly what they hoped he would.

South Korean circles in the U.N., however, were unhappy over the swift change, but they refused to comment publicly.

The British, French and Russians are known to be satisfied with the verdict, but for different reasons.

The British and French started after MacArthur's scalp as far back as last November when he made his dash to the Manchurian border and there met the Chinese Communists.

These delegates have expressed the fear that MacArthur might commit some action which would involve them in a war with China and the Soviet Union without consulting them beforehand.

The British, French and many other delegations in the United Nations were unalterably opposed to MacArthur's ideas for bombing Manchurian bases of the Chinese Communists and for using Chinese Nationalist troops.

The Russians were not talking at this stage, but they have repeatedly attacked MacArthur and all his policies, both as occupation commander and as supreme commander of the U.N. in Korea.

The U.N. Good Offices Committee, made up of President Nasrollah Entezam of Iran, Sven Grafstrom of Sweden and Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico, has been working since the middle of February trying to get the Chinese Communists to recognize it. This committee has had no luck but it is expected to make another effort now that the situation in the Far East has changed so radically.

The official reaction of Security Council President Daniel J. Von Ballyscek of the Netherlands and other delegations was that the MacArthur affair was a matter for the Americans and not for any U.N. decision.

MacArthur was appointed United Nations commander by President Truman when the U.N. Security Council appointed the United States as its agent to carry the Korean conflict. The council authorized a unified command and the United States promptly set up this command with MacArthur as the supreme commander.

MacArthur was therefore chosen by President Truman and as supreme commander was responsible to the United States government and not to the United Nations. In short, as several delegates often said, MacArthur was working for President Truman and not directly for the U.N.

Bill Is Signed to Provide Car Insurance Increase

Albany, April 11 (AP)—After July 1, motorists who have a serious accident must carry $10,000-$20,000 in liability insurance-double the present requirement.

Governor Dewey signed yesterday a bill increasing the coverage required after an accident causing death or personal injury or property damage exceeding $50. After such a mishap, a motorist must post security to satisfy a judgment resulting from that accident and must furnish evidence of financial responsibility for the future.

The state's financial responsibility law now sets a minimum of $5,000 coverage when one person is killed or injured, $10,000 for more than one, and $5,000 to cover property damage. The revised law doubles the injury coverage, but retains that for property damage at $5,000.

The governor signed another bill that increases state license fees for trucks. Vehicles weighing 1,800 pounds or more now are registered at the rate of 80 cents per 100 pounds of empty weight. The new system, which goes into effect with the 1952 plates, will compute the rates of 50 cents per 100 pounds of loaded weight.

The higher fees will net the state an estimated $5,500,000 annually in increased revenue.

Dewey signed other bills that:

1. Allow nurses who have been licensed in other states or countries to practice in New York state as soon as they have applied for their New York license. The bill is intended to help relieve a shortage of nurses.

2. Allot $300,000 to continue a state program of emergency loans to rural and suburban school districts finding it difficult to meet debt-service payments on school building loans.

3. Permits New York state to participate in civil defense compacts with other states, and ratifies a C-D agreement already signed by Governor Dewey and Governor Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey.

It also authorizes New York to take part with nine other states in a northeastern civil defense pact, under which the state would commit their police, fire and public works forces and facilities for each other's civil defense.

4. Authorizes county boards of supervisors to appropriate funds for expenses of setting up soil conservation districts.

Truman Picks Ridgway as Successor to MacArthur; Van Fleet Also Chosen

Press Is Called

Newsmen Summoned Hastily by Short at 1 A.M.

Washington, April 11 (AP)—President Truman fired Gen. Douglas MacArthur today on grounds he failed to support—and publicly sought to change—the grand strategy of the United Nations war against Red aggression in Korea.

In a sensational statement released at the White House at 1 a. m. (E.S.T.) after days of soul-searching and indecision, the President announced:

"With deep regret I have concluded that General of the Army Douglas MacArthur is unable to give his wholehearted support to the policies of the United States government and of the United Nations in matters pertaining to his official duties."

Acting with lightning speed on that conclusion, once he had reached it, the President:

1. Relieved the 71-year-old MacArthur of his four-fold duties as supreme allied occupation commander in Japan; United Nations commander in chief for Korea; United States commander in chief for the Far East; and commanding general of the United States Army in the Far East.

Ridgway Is Chosen

2. Named Lieut. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, field commander in Korea, to succeed MacArthur in all these commands. That means Ridgway not only will direct the U.N. campaign in Korea but also wind up the Japanese occupation, assuming peace treaty plans go through.

3. Named Lieut. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the Second Army at Fort George G. Meade, Md., to take over the Eighth Army command in Korea from Ridgway.

4. Issued a set of secret messages exchanged between MacArthur and the joint chiefs of staff here. The evident aim was to show that MacArthur had scorned successive Washington directives to clear anything he said on major political or military policy with either the State or Defense Departments.

Answers to Campaign

The order relieving MacArthur of command was Mr. Truman's answer to the general's persistent campaign of public statements to get the United States to follow a different policy in the Far East and especially, with its U.N. allies, in the Korean war.

Essentially he has advocated expanding the war to include direct attacks on Red China. He has presented Asia rather than Europe as the critical theatre of conflict with aggressive communism.

His dismissal amounts to reaffirmation by Mr. Truman of United States policies for a strictly limited war in Korea, if possible and for treating Europe as the ultimately decisive area of contest with Soviet Communist power.

The bombshell announcement was made by Press Secretary Joseph H. Short at a hastily summoned White House news conference.

Free to Travel

The president told MacArthur he is free to "travel to such places as you select"—thus freeing the general to return to this country after an absence of nearly 14 years. There were immediate demands in Congress that he come at once to Washington to give his views.

In addition to the heretofore secret message, orders sent out shortly before midnight to bring about the spectacular shakeup in the Far East were also released.

The secret message file showed MacArthur had been covered in a general presidential order last Dec. 6, clamping down on policy statements by all government officials. He had been bluntly reminded of this by Mr. Truman's direction on March 24, after issuing forces reached the 38th Parallel.

Marbletown Votes School Building

By a vote of 284 to 155 voters of Marbletown Central School District No. 3, on Tuesday approved a bond issue for $610,000 for construction of a modern, fully equipped elementary school building.

The special meeting was held at Grange Hall, Stone Ridge, with voting from 3 until 9 p. m. A total of 439 votes were cast.

In June 1950, by a large majority the ten districts in the area voted for centralization. On April 1, 1951 the High Falls district became the eleventh school district to join the central district.

The school will be erected on a site at the intersection of Route 213 and the Kripplebush road about a half mile west of Stone Ridge village. This site consists of 16 acres. Plans for the new school have been completed by Harry Halverson, architect.

Fighting Men Not Aware of Shift From 'Mac' to Ridgway

Tokyo, April 11 (AP)—Command of United Nations forces in Korea shifted abruptly today from General MacArthur to Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

Many of the fighting men in the Korean front lines did not know at a late hour Wednesday that President Truman had fired MacArthur.

United Nations Diplomats Greet Ouster Of Korean Commander With Obvious Relief

Lake Success, April 11 (AP)—Surprised U.N. diplomats generally greeted with obvious relief President Truman's order ousting General Douglas MacArthur as U.N. commander in Korea.

The delegates were not talking for publication, but their comments privately and the positions they have taken in the weeks of argument over MacArthur shows that the President did exactly what they hoped he would.

South Korean circles in the U.N., however, were unhappy over the swift change, but they refused to comment publicly.

The British, French and Russians are known to be satisfied with the verdict, but for different reasons.

The British and French started after MacArthur's scalp as far back as last November when he made his dash to the Manchurian border and there met the Chinese Communists.

These delegates have expressed the fear that MacArthur might commit some action which would involve them in a war with China and the Soviet Union without consulting them beforehand.

The British, French and many other delegations in the United Nations were unalterably opposed to MacArthur's ideas for bombing Manchurian bases of the Chinese Communists and for using Chinese Nationalist troops.

The Russians were not talking at this stage, but they have repeatedly attacked MacArthur and all his policies, both as occupation commander and as supreme commander of the U.N. in Korea.

The U.N. Good Offices Committee, made up of President Nasrollah Entezam of Iran, Sven Grafstrom of Sweden and Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico, has been working since the middle of February trying to get the Chinese Communists to recognize it. This committee has had no luck but it is expected to make another effort now that the situation in the Far East has changed so radically.

The official reaction of Security Council President Daniel J. Von Ballyscek of the Netherlands and other delegations was that the MacArthur affair was a matter for the Americans and not for any U.N. decision.

MacArthur was appointed United Nations commander by President Truman when the U.N. Security Council appointed the United States as its agent to carry the Korean conflict. The council authorized a unified command and the United States promptly set up this command with MacArthur as the supreme commander.

MacArthur was therefore chosen by President Truman and as supreme commander was responsible to the United States government and not to the United Nations. In short, as several delegates often said, MacArthur was working for President Truman and not directly for the U.N.

Bill Is Signed to Provide Car Insurance Increase

Albany, April 11 (AP)—After July 1, motorists who have a serious accident must carry $10,000-$20,000 in liability insurance-double the present requirement.

Governor Dewey signed yesterday a bill increasing the coverage required after an accident causing death or personal injury or property damage exceeding $50. After such a mishap, a motorist must post security to satisfy a judgment resulting from that accident and must furnish evidence of financial responsibility for the future.

The state's financial responsibility law now sets a minimum of $5,000 coverage when one person is killed or injured, $10,000 for more than one, and $5,000 to cover property damage. The revised law doubles the injury coverage, but retains that for property damage at $5,000.

The governor signed another bill that increases state license fees for trucks. Vehicles weighing 1,800 pounds or more now are registered at the rate of 80 cents per 100 pounds of empty weight. The new system, which goes into effect with the rates of 50 cents per 100 pounds of loaded weight.

The higher fees will net the state an estimated $5,500,000 annually in increased revenue.

Dewey signed other bills that:

1. Allow nurses who have been licensed in other states or countries to practice in New York state as soon as they have applied for their New York license. The bill is intended to help relieve a shortage of nurses.

2. Allot $300,000 to continue a state program of emergency loans to rural and suburban school districts finding it difficult to meet debt-service payments on school building loans.

3. Permits New York state to participate in civil defense compacts with other states, and ratifies a C-D agreement already signed by Governor Dewey and Governor Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey.

It also authorizes New York to take part with nine other states in a northeastern civil defense pact, under which the state would commit their police, fire and public works forces and facilities for each other's civil defense.

4. Authorizes county boards of supervisors to appropriate funds for expenses of setting up soil conservation districts.

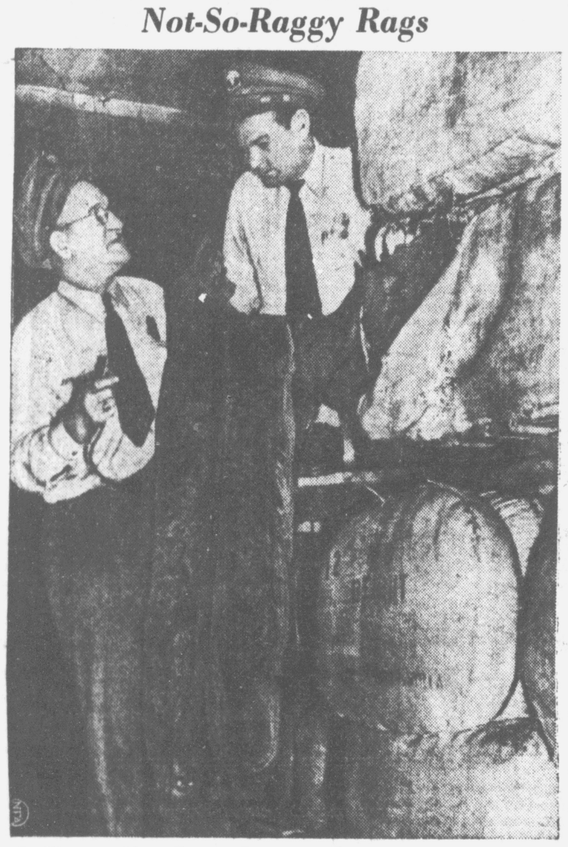
GOP for Impeachments; MacArthur Will Appear At Session of Congress

Not-So-Raggy Rags



In Houston, Tex., Custom Inspectors Ives A. King (left) and Bernard Foy look over a new Air Force suit, included in a shipment of "rags" destined for the Far East. Seized by the Customs Department, the shipment contained hundreds of uniforms of all branches of the service.

Democrats Would Have to Agree to Recall of General

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Congressional Republicans, angered by President Truman's firing of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, talked of "possible impeachments" today and got the general's agreement to address a joint session of Senate and House.

Senator Wherry of Nebraska and Rep. Martin of Massachusetts, the G.O.P. floor leaders, talked to MacArthur by trans-Pacific telephone.

Martin announced to the House: "I am authorized to say that General MacArthur would be delighted to have an invitation to speak" to a joint session. He added that MacArthur "can be here in about three weeks."

Martin introduced a resolution calling for an invitation to MacArthur to address Congress.

Prepares for Senate

Wherry prepared a similar one for the Senate.

What the Democrats would do about this move was not immediately clear. Some would have to support it in order for such an invitation to be voted.

Many of them would like to hear MacArthur's version of his controversy with the administration which led President Truman to fire him summarily early this morning as the far eastern commander.

Martin got mixed up in telling the House of his telephone talk with MacArthur and referred to "Senator MacArthur."

When the Democrats laughed, Martin added:

"He might be even higher later."

In times past, the general, now 71, has been mentioned as a possible Republican presidential candidate.

Conference Called

Martin called a conference of all House Republicans for later in the

What Has He Done Now?
(An Editorial)

An influential Ulster county resident who has known the Washington scene for many years today called The Freeman and asked, "What is this horrible thing President Truman has done today? Why did he act over the head of the United Nations to remove MacArthur? What is this awful burden he has placed upon the American people?"

The answer, unfortunately, is not an easy one. For, viewed coldly, it does seem to have thrown a hitch into overall strategy. It was an act done apparently with unilateral concept of importance, without combined balloting within the framework of the United Nations, even though allied displeasure with MacArthur was voiced. It is almost like a relative of a corporation employe suddenly saying, "Today I fire you. You can't do your work at your office any more." Who cares what the corporation thinks?

Of course it goes deeper than that, for General Douglas MacArthur is a General of the United States Army and President Truman is his commander-in-chief. While Mr. Truman might have the authority to dispossess MacArthur of American command in the Far East, the question still is to be answered, "Why did he feel free to override the United Nations in this way?" It would seem in our book that MacArthur still should be United Nations commander until removed by that body, even though he might lose American recognition.

At the moment, without further information and time to assess the situation, we disagree with the sentiment voiced today at Lake Success that MacArthur was purely Mr. Truman's responsibility. If that were so, how could General MacArthur act for the United Nations? It's a hot potato the United Nations obviously doesn't care to handle. Can it be the foreign diplomats once again have outsmarted the President of the United States? We have noticed before that President Truman is only too willing to muddy his fingers internationally with things he doesn't seem to know much about. He might be a successful home district politician, but he has never been a diplomat.

Is it strictly muddle-headed action once again? Is it more of the strategy of the Democratic administration to divorce the American people entirely from world respect? Is it a wise time to destroy faith in the one man who probably knows more of the Far East than anyone else of American heritage? Heavens to Betsy, what has he done now?

MacArthur Calm About Truman Act

General, Says Whitney, 'Never Turned Hair' Over News, Called His 'Finest Hour'

No Warning Given

MacArthur at Luncheon When Word Came to Him

(Russell Brines, AP bureau chief in Tokyo, was captured in Manila when that city fell to the Japanese. He returned to covering General MacArthur in the Philippines campaign and remained with the general throughout the rest of the Pacific war and the occupation of Japan.)

By RUSSELL BRINES

Tokyo, April 11 (AP)—General MacArthur received the news of dismissal from all his commands today "magnificently and without turning a hair."

Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, military secretary of the United Nations Command, told newsmen MacArthur would have no comment "for the time." He added:

"I just left the general. He received the word of the President's dismissal from command magnificently. He never turned a hair. His soldierly qualities were never more pronounced.

"This has been his finest hour."

The firing of MacArthur, by President Truman, came with the drama and irony which has marked the five-star general's 47 years of active military life.

Adds New Precedent

Even in defeat, he added another precedent to a career studded with them—the first dismissal of history's first United Nations commander.

The general with the dramatic touch went out under circumstances more like the stage than war. His notice came without warning during a quiet luncheon at his home.

Throughout a career of three wars and tumultuous peace, MacArthur has shouldered aside precedent to follow his destiny with meteoric and controversial brilliance.

He liked to say, as an explanation of many things: "I shall keep a soldier's faith."

No Hint of Criticism

Today, at the apparent end of a career which has included two temporary but bitter military defeats, the 71-year-old general was relieved without a public hint of criticism for his military ability. To the old soldier, that fact must have been comforting.

From the day, in 1903, that he graduated at the top of his West Point class, MacArthur never has been away from military affairs.

He retired from the U. S. army in 1937, then spent the next four years as field marshal of the Philippines trying to build up a defense force. He returned to active duty with the U. S. army in 1941, just before the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, and has remained in uniform since then.

Named in 1944

MacArthur was named a general of the army Dec. 18, 1944. It, like most of his other top appointments, was by a Democratic president.

He never wore his medals. But he had them all, including the congressional medal of honor, and innumerable foreign decorations.

He completed the list of American awards when Lt. Gen. George E. Stratemeyer, commander of Far East air forces, gave him the air medal during a visit to Pyongyang in Korea last winter.

MacArthur liked to think that his destiny has linked his career with the Orient. His first assignment was as a young engineer in the Philippines. Then he journeyed through another tumultuous era in Asia as aide to his father, Lt. Gen. Arthur MacArthur, the first military governor of the Philippines.

His career ended in the Orient—in a controversy over the importance of the world in American defense plans.

Had Three Careers

MacArthur had practically three careers.

The first was distinguished by a spectacular rise to rank and power to his appointment as chief of staff, in 1930. At 50, he

DOUGLAS MacARTHUR

First Reaction Is One of Approval in Western Europe

London, April 11 (AP)—Western Europe's first reaction today to dismissal of General Douglas MacArthur from his United Nations command in Korea was one of general approval.

Indian officials, whose government has been one of the loudest critics of MacArthur's political pronouncements, also expressed general satisfaction. New Delhi circles expected the removal to result in new peace overtures to Chinese Communists by the Indians.

The Soviet-controlled East German press and radio announced President Truman's action without comment, in a coldly factual manner, and without the usual insulting language it has heaped on the five-star general's head ever since the Korean war started.

Moscow so far was silent. The Russian press this morning carried neither the announcement of the dismissal nor comment on it.

In Paris U.N. Secretary General Trygve Lie declined to comment. A spokesman said the removal of the U.N. commander was an internal matter of the unified command.

Western-minded Germans, anxious to see defense plan priority given to Europe rather than Asia, were relieved at the dismissal. They attributed to MacArthur a contrary view.

Some of Comments

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Here is the chronology of events which led up to President Truman's dismissal of General MacArthur early today:

JULY 13—The United Nations Security Council authorized the United States to establish a unified command of U.N. forces in Korea. Mr. Truman immediately named MacArthur commander of all U.N. forces.

AUG. 28—President Truman ordered MacArthur to withdraw a statement on Formosa which MacArthur had sent to the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The message got out anyway. In it the general said Formosa was vital to America's Far East defenses and that it must remain in non-Communist hands. He called it an unsinkable aircraft carrier. The President said the message confused the American position.

OCT. 12—The President flew to Wake Island to confer with MacArthur.

DEC. 1—MacArthur said his lack of authority to strike at the Chinese Reds across the Manchurian border was "an enormous handicap, without precedent in military operations."

DEC. 3—MacArthur called "completely false" reports that he had opposed U. S. assurances to the Red Chinese that their Manchurian border was completely safe.

FEB. 8—The President said he had not seen a reported recommendation from MacArthur for the use of Chinese Nationalist troops in both Korea and China itself.

FEB. 13—MacArthur said that

Truman Picks Ridgway as Successor to MacArthur; Van Fleet Also Chosen

Press Is Called

Newsmen Summoned Hastily by Short at 1 A.M.

Washington, April 11 (AP)—President Truman fired Gen. Douglas MacArthur today on grounds he failed to support—and publicly sought to change—the grand strategy of the United Nations war against Red aggression in Korea.

In a sensational statement released at the White House at 1 a. m. (E.S.T.) after days of soul-searching and indecision, the President announced:

"With deep regret I have concluded that General of the Army Douglas MacArthur is unable to give his wholehearted support to the policies of the United States government and of the United Nations in matters pertaining to his official duties."

Acting with lightning speed on that conclusion, once he had reached it, the President:

1. Relieved the 71-year-old MacArthur of his four-fold duties as supreme allied occupation commander in Japan; United Nations commander in chief for Korea; United States commander in chief for the Far East; and commanding general of the United States Army in the Far East.

Ridgway Is Chosen

2. Named Lieut. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, field commander in Korea, to succeed MacArthur in all these commands. That means Ridgway not only will direct the U.N. campaign in Korea but also wind up the Japanese occupation, assuming peace treaty plans go through.

3. Named Lieut. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, commander of the Second Army at Fort George G. Meade, Md., to take over the Eighth Army command in Korea from Ridgway.

4. Issued a set of secret messages exchanged between MacArthur and the joint chiefs of staff here. The evident aim was to show that MacArthur had scorned successive Washington directives to clear anything he said on major political or military policy with either the State or Defense Departments.

Answers to Campaign

The order relieving MacArthur of command was Mr. Truman's answer to the general's persistent campaign of public statements to get the United States to follow a different policy in the Far East and especially, with its U.N. allies, in the Korean war.

Essentially he has advocated expanding the war to include direct attacks on Red China. He has presented Asia rather than Europe as the critical theatre of conflict with aggressive communism.

His dismissal amounts to reaffirmation by Mr. Truman of United States policies for a strictly limited war in Korea, if possible and for treating Europe as the ultimately decisive area of contest with Soviet Communist power.

The bombshell announcement was made by Press Secretary Joseph H. Short at a hastily summoned White House news conference.

Free to Travel

The president told MacArthur he is free to "travel to such places as you select"—thus freeing the general to return to this country after an absence of nearly 14 years. There were immediate demands in Congress that he come at once to Washington to give his views.

In addition to the heretofore secret message, orders sent out shortly before midnight to bring about the spectacular shakeup in the Far East were also released.

Bill Is Signed to Provide Car Insurance Increase

Albany, April 11 (AP)—After July 1, motorists who have a serious accident must carry $10,000-$20,000 in liability insurance—double the present requirement.

Governor Dewey signed yesterday a bill increasing the coverage required after an accident causing death or personal injury or property damage exceeding $50. After such a mishap, a motorist must post security to satisfy a judgment resulting from that accident and must furnish evidence of financial responsibility for the future.

The state's financial responsibility law now sets a minimum of $5,000 coverage when one person is killed or injured, $10,000 for more than one, and $5,000 to cover property damage. The revised law doubles the injury coverage, but retains that for property damage at $5,000.

The governor signed another bill that increases state license fees for trucks. Vehicles weighing 1,800 pounds or more now are registered at the rate of 80 cents per 100 pounds of empty weight. The new system, which goes into effect with the 1952 plates, will compute the rates of 50 cents per 100 pounds of loaded weight.

The higher fees will net the state an estimated $5,500,000 annually in increased revenue.

Dewey signed other bills that:

1. Allow nurses who have been licensed in other states or countries to practice in New York state as soon as they have applied for their New York license. The bill is intended to help relieve a shortage of nurses.

2. Allot $300,000 to continue a state program of emergency loans to rural and suburban school districts finding it difficult to meet debt-service payments on school building loans.

3. Permits New York state to participate in civil defense compacts with other states, and ratifies a C-D agreement already signed by Governor Dewey and Governor Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey.

It also authorizes New York to take part with nine other states in a northeastern civil defense pact, under which the state would commit their police, fire and public works forces and facilities for each other's civil defense.

Social Security Law Provisions

George J. Johnson, manager of the Kingston Social Security Office, submits the following article on the new Social Security Law:

This is a story about real people—about sudden tragedy, and about social security.

Mr. Rogers served his country for seventeen months in the armed forces during the last world war. When the war ended he returned to his wife and children and together they began to build for the future. They purchased a home and Mr. Rogers acquired regular work. During the past three years, Mr. Rogers was employed by a firm in Ulster county.

Things were going very well with the Rogers family. They had their own home and he was regularly employed. They were building for the future, but like most young couples about all they could do was pay for their home and have the necessities of life and few of the luxuries.

Then on September 3, 1950, Mr. Rogers passed away at the age of 28, after a short and sudden illness lasting only three weeks. A widow and four children ranging from three to ten years of age survive.

It is not difficult to visualize the anxiety and sudden financial plight of Mrs. Rogers and her children. Yes, they had been building for the future, but not for such sudden tragedy. That is, they did not know they were buying protection for this situation—they did not know or think very much about social security.

Soon after Mr. Rogers' death, his employer advised Mrs. Rogers to call at the social security office and inquire about benefits. Mrs. Rogers did come to our office to see whether she could get anything from what her husband had paid in. A few weeks later we were able to inform her that she and her four children would receive a total of $122.10 each month in social security benefits. This sum represents $30.60 for Mrs. Rogers as widow's benefits and $22.90 for each of the four children.

Each of the children will receive the $22.90 every month until he reaches age 18, and the widow will receive her $30.90 every month until the youngest child is age 18. Of course, if Mrs. Rogers remarries, her widow's payment will stop, but that would not interfere with the children receiving their payments. Although the widow's payment will stop when the youngest child attains age 18, they will start again when she becomes age 65, provided she does not remarry.

As a result of a provision for veterans in the new social security law, we were able to give Mr. Rogers credit of $160 a month toward his total wages for each of the 17 months he was in active military service. In addition the family gets the general increase given to all beneficiaries under the new social security law. Prior to the new law, the Rogers family would have drawn only a total of $62.50 a month compared with the $122.10 under the new law.

These payments to the Rogers family are not charity. They are social security insurance benefits paid for by workers and employers. This is the way all benefits are figured at age 65 or death. There are about 1,800 other beneficiaries receiving similar payments in the area served by the Kingston social security office.

It is not difficult to visualize the anxiety and sudden financial plight of Mrs. Rogers and her children. Yes, they had been building for the future, but not for such sudden tragedy. That is, they did not know they were buying protection for this situation—they did not know or think very much about social security.

Soon after Mr. Rogers' death, his employer advised Mrs. Rogers to call at the social security office and inquire about benefits. Mrs. Rogers did come to our office to see whether she could get anything from what her husband had paid in. A few weeks later we were able to inform her that she and her four children would receive a total of $122.10 each month in social security benefits. This sum represents $30.60 for Mrs. Rogers as widow's benefits and $22.90 for each of the four children.

Each of the children will receive the $22.90 every month until he reaches age 18, and the widow will receive her $30.90 every month until the youngest child is age 18. Of course, if Mrs. Rogers remarries, her widow's payment will stop, but that would not interfere with the children receiving their payments. Although the widow's payment will stop when the youngest child attains age 18, they will start again when she becomes age 65, provided she does not remarry.

As a result of a provision for veterans in the new social security law, we were able to give Mr. Rogers credit of $160 a month toward his total wages for each of the 17 months he was in active military service. In addition the family gets the general increase given to all beneficiaries under the new social security law. Prior to the new law, the Rogers family would have drawn only a total of $62.50 a month compared with the $122.10 under the new law.

These payments to the Rogers family are not charity. They are social security insurance benefits paid for by workers and employers. This is the way all benefits are figured at age 65 or death. There are about 1,800 other beneficiaries receiving similar payments in the area served by the Kingston social security office.

SCHOOLING AND DEFENSE

A new point in the discussion of federal aid to education has been brought out recently in Washington. It applies to education as a factor in the defense program.

Senator Lister Hill of Alabama told the Senate that since 1948 lack of schooling had cost the armed forces the equivalent of fourteen divisions in rejected men. Such a loss, the senator claimed, could make the difference between defeat and victory. A point brought out by Commissioner of Education Earl J. McGrath, who spoke in New York recently, was that equal educational opportunities for all our children are especially important in the fight against communism.

There is no doubt that states which really cannot collect enough taxes to furnish adequate educational facilities for their children should be helped in some way until such time as they become more prosperous. How that can be done and still maintain freedom of education from government control is a problem needing great wisdom for its solution.

CHILDREN TOGETHER

How many prejudices as to nationality and race are instinctive and how many are imposed by education and experience? The answer to this question is sought by a group of educators and psychologists who are sponsoring the Children's International Summer Village, to be established in Cincinnati this summer.

Six children between the ages of ten and twelve will be selected from each of ten countries and will live a community life enlivened by the usual activities of a summer camp. Such activities will be supplemented by over-all projects to improve the camp site.

Most individuals having had experience with groups of children would be inclined to predict that there will be surprisingly few areas of disagreement based purely on nationality, race or religion. Conflicts will be likely to be those which would develop in a homogeneous group of children of that age group. The actual results, however, will be interesting to parents, teachers and psychologists. They may help to build a more secure foundation for tolerance and understanding among the different races and creeds.

TOWARD EUROPEAN UNITY

The Schuman plan for pooling the steel and coal of France, Germany and four other European nations, under international control, is now up to the signatory nations. If adopted, it should do much toward lessening the economic rivalries of Europe.

Approval of the Schuman formula is now leading to the next step, the formation of a unified agricultural market, with sixteen countries as members, all the way from Ireland to Turkey. This is expected to increase production and stabilize prices. So far the idea has got not further than invitations by France, to the other nations involved, to join in working out a plan.

Just a few years ago these steps toward the unification of Europe would have seemed impossible, or at least unattainable for many years. The present activity testifies to a realistic appreciation of the necessity of scrapping the old national rivalries if Europe is to survive.

CITY CORRUPTION

The revelations of the spread of gambling and organized crime in big cities such as New York and Chicago have confirmed in some quarters the impression that this is charasteristic of big city administration, and that the smaller towns and country districts have escaped this contamination.

Unfortunately there is no evidence to support this. Slot machines are known to thrive in many a small town far removed from a big city. It is suggestive in this connection that of the only two congressmen sentenced to prison in the last few years for improper conduct in office, Andrew J. May of Kentucky and J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey, neither came from a large city.

Americans are much alike in town and country. There are specked apples everywhere, and unfortunately some of them occasionally get into public life.

There's nothing that gets a husband burned up so much as a dinner in the same condition.

One of the drawbacks of youth is that by the time you're old enough to appreciate it, it has passed by.

'These Days'

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

THE WILTED WHITE-COLLAR

Frederick A. Coudert, Jr., is introducing a bill into Congress to rescue the professional workers of this country from permanent poverty. For precisely that fate faces lawyers, doctors, architects, writers and others, who, no matter what they earn, are being squeezed between taxes and high prices, without any opportunity to save for the future.

Coudert's bill is to aid those men and women who are not eligible as beneficiaries of corporate or other private pension plans. These plans are really savings. For instance, I was recently looking at the card of a Sears, Roebuck file clerk who had been with that company many years and, as I calculated it, she has saved, through their plan, $60,000. I would not mind being a file clerk with such savings.

Professional men, writers, artists, farmers and small business men are now unable to make great savings, unless they swindle, because of taxes which are geared against them. Coudert's idea is to permit the postponement of federal taxes as regards a portion of their earned net income, so that the amount of money shall be contributed as a restricted retirement fund.

The worst phase of this situation, as it affects professional men, writers and artists, is that their earnings are up and down, a lot one year and not so much another year. If they could keep their earnings, they could average out over a few years. But the way it is, a writer may earn a fortune in one year and get taxed for the full amount in that year, and they he does not earn for a few years and is broke.

The Treasury amortizes machines; why not men?

Coudert says:

"It is of utmost importance to encourage young men to enter the professions and small business ventures. Yet the operations of the present tax laws, instead of giving this encouragement, tend to do the exact opposite by making corporation employment more attractive to young men. I believe this to be against the public interest."

I tried to read the Coudert bill and, like all other acts of Congress dealing with taxation, it gets so involved that you have to hire a lawyer and an accountant to discover how it works. But it is enough for me that it gives to the white-collar folks a chance to put aside something of their earnings for the day when the joints ache and the hand is shaky and the eyes are not so good.

Even columnists lose their popularity after a while, and some even lose their value. Yet, under the present set-up, they cannot save in their limited good years. I, for instance, started in this business in 1917. I have, I hope, worked hard at my trade, which involves voluminous reading, the cultivation of memory, travel in many parts of the world, and some small, unheroic element of risk.

In our business, a young person is hired on the general assumption that he knows nothing. Then for 10 or 15 years, he keeps on learning the hard way, his product appearing in black ink on white paper for all to see

So our hero arrives. But so has Uncle Sam. He tells his wife that he is now a big shot, but she wants to know how it happens that E. Merl Young's wife grabs a $9,540 mink coat while she has to wear mouton, which is fancy for sheepskin. Our genius tells her to go fight the Treasury. Well, maybe there are ten wonderful years, during which the great man sits on the dais and rises for a bow and then comes up another young fellow and pushes him into the back pages. So there is nothing to do but to become a ghost-writer.

But savings! There are none except what Uncle Sam gave to the British to bridge their dollar gap—only a small share of it, which must make a man feel noble.

A man really earns little more than he can keep after he has met taxes and his cost of living. Men who want to save and cannot save because their taxes are to high, are not earning what they think they earn. Actually, they are only an intermediary step between those who pay them and the Treasury. What remains is hardly compensation for the work they do. They are being kidded; they are kidding themselves.

The Coudert bill offers a good way out and should be supported.

NEW INSTRUMENT FOR TEETH

I believe that the majority of us would sooner have a tooth pulled out than undergo the pain and heat of the drill as the dentist tries to save a tooth by putting in a filling. There is something about the drilling of a tooth, especially as the drill approaches nearer and nearer the pulp (nerves and blood vessels) that causes us to be tense, which, of course, only intensifies the pain, heat and vibration.

It will be good news for everybody to learn that a new instrument designed to get rid of nearly all vibration, pressure and heat caused by the present drill has been reported by Dr. Robert B. Black, Corpus Christi, Texas, inventor of the instrument, in The Journal of the American Dental Association. It is an "airbrasive" machine which at present is getting a real trial in dental schools before it is put in general use by dentists. The machine, which has been in process of development since 1942, prepares dental cavities for fillings by airbrasive cutting action. A gas-propelled force blasts the abrasive material from the nozzle of a handpiece, not unlike a drill in appearance.

"Airbrasive" depends for its action on a fine stream of suitable gas carrying a controlled quantity of small abrasive particles. The abrasive, traveling at supersonic speeds of more than 1000 feet per second, blasts out the cavity instead of grinding it out and doesn't come in contact with the tooth as does a dental drill. It is described as essentially a non-mechanical operation.

Dr. Black states that the airbrasive is not capable of doing all the work of the rotary drill. Its chief use is that of preparing a tooth for filling or jacket crown by cutting through tooth enamel, the hardest substance of the human body, and of removing stubborn stains and heavy deposits of tartar (the forerunner of pyorrhea) from the tooth surface. "Its principal value lies in the fact that it cuts hard tooth structure easily and accurately," Dr. Black states. It cannot be used to remove the soft part of the tooth immediately under the enamel.

To most persons Dr. Black's statement that "this method of preparing teeth for restoration does not stimulate fear and apprehension" will be good news indeed. Patients will willingly undergo abrasive treatment who otherwise would neglect and eventually lose their teeth.

Speakiing of Iron Curtains . . .

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—At two cabinet meetings in the past three weeks, General MacArthur's unauthorized policy statements have come in for important, even heated discussion.

Most heated debate was not last week but immediately after MacArthur's pre-Easter statement of March 24, in which he proposed a peace meeting with Chinese military commanders.

At this cabinet meeting the President remarked that he was sorry he hadn't fired MacArthur last summer—following his out-of-line statement to the Veterans of Foreign Wars. What aroused the President's heat just before Easter was that MacArthur's peace statement was one which Truman himself was planning to make.

What happened was that the joint chiefs of staff had cabled MacArthur, for his perusal and personal reaction, a copy of an Easter appeal for peace which the State Department had already discussed with the British and French and which Truman planned to issue publicly.

But, without a word to Washington, MacArthur made the statement himself. Part of his text was almost verbatim with that sent him by the joint chiefs, though his threat to bomb Chinese bases was entirely his own.

MacArthur's Political Record

Naturally Washington boiled.

Next day, Secretary of Defense Marshall sent MacArthur a personal cable ordering him to clear all future policy statements with him. That cable was dated March 25, and MacArthur's letter to ex-Speaker Joe Martin was dated March 20, so technically at least MacArthur is in the clear.

In the eyes of the Defense Department, however, he is not. For on Dec. 5, 1950, confidential orders were sent to all military commanders to clear all policy statements with the Defense Department in Washington. Furthermore, MacArthur has had a history of jumping the traces, some of which is well-known, some not, but all of which has made relations between him and his commander-in-chief more strained than at any time in recent American history. Here is the record:

Jump No. 1—In December, 1949, MacArthur let off steam to a group of Republican senators visiting him in Tokyo about sending U. S. arms and troops to Formosa. This teed off the running debate between the Administration and the China bloc over Chinese intervention which continued for months.

Jump No. 2—In the spring of 1950, MacArthur took an unauthorized trip to Formosa, got a lot of publicity kissing Madame Chiang Kai-shek's hand, and openly discussed the idea of building up Formosa as a base. This was in complete contradiction of the government's policy, and he obviously knew it.

Jump No. 3—After we got into the Korean war, MacArthur sent his famous letter to the Veterans of Foreign Wars regarding the use of Formosa as a base. He was reprimanded by Truman.

Wake Island — It was around this time that Averell Harriman, special representative to the President, went to Tokyo to soothe the general's fur. At this time Harriman got MacArthur's solemn promise to make no more policy statements without clearing them with Washington.

Truman Is Charmed

Following this, Truman made his special pilgrimage to confer with MacArthur on Wake Island. When he first arrived he was a little non-plused by the way the general strolled nonchalantly down to the runway—a little late—to meet him; and by the fact that MacArthur failed to salute his commander-in-chief. He was also disappointed that MacArthur's accompanying party consisted chiefly of his personal doctor, his valet and Ambassador Muccio, whereas Truman had brought the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff and a group of experts prepared to discuss important Far Eastern problems.

It was because MacArthur brought no experts to discuss anything that the conference was so abbreviated.

However, during their brief time together, MacArthur charmed Truman completely and the President came away singing his praises.

Jump No. 4—Came during MacArthur's November drive into North Korea. This was only a partial jump-over-the-traces, because Truman had given him the green light to dash up to the Manchurian border. However, on more than three occasions the state department relayed warnings that the Chinese were about to attack—one from the French, one from India and several from the British.

On another occasion, when the State Department urgently proposed a public statement assuring the Chinese that the big dams supplying water power to all Manchuria would not be bombed, MacArthur sent back a curt three-word telegram: "Do not concur."

It was against this background of almost weekly friction between Washington and Tokyo that the cabinet seethed last week and this week over MacArthur's more recent trace-jumping.

Rayburn's Ghost Troops

What Speaker Sam Rayburn had in mind when he told Congress that "non-Chinese" troops were in Manchuria, was not Russian troops, but four divisions of Russian-trained Japanese troops. . . . There has long been a small contingent of Russian troops in Manchuria used for purposes of turning Russian equipment over to the Chinese. But there have never been any Russian combat troops in Manchuria, and are not now. . . . Much more dangerous is the well-substantiated report that 15 divisions of the Red Army are massed around the edge of Siberia, including 2,000 to 4,000 planes plus four airborne divisions. This is the chief reason why the joint chiefs of staff have hesitated about bombing Chinese bases. They figure that if China is directly attacked, her mutual assistance pact with Russia will be invoked and the might of the Red Army will be thrown into battle—possibly in airborne landing operations against Japan. . . . Significantly, Secretary of State Acheson has come nearer siding with the MacArthur thesis of retaliation against China than the more cautious joint chiefs of staff. Acheson has always favored a Naval blockade of Chinese ports, at one time even advocated bombing these ports as a lesson to China for thumbing its nose at the United Nations. . . . Prime Minister Attlee, when in Washington, had a hard time combatting Acheson's arguments on such a policy.

Issues Haven't Changed in Pacific Since 83 Days of Hard Fighting Off Okinawa

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 11—Starting just nine years ago, in the spring of 1942, and continuing from then on throughout most of World War II, the same controversy was going on as is emerging today—how much force to allocate to Asia and the Pacific and how much to Europe.

But the public didn't know much about it at the time, nor did it know how earnestly General MacArthur, backed up by Fleet Admiral King, pleaded for enough strength to win the war in the Pacific.

The fundamental issues haven't changed. When all the emotion has been removed from the present atmosphere of politics in Washington and London, and the European leaders face realistically the fact that from the Pacific Ocean can come a direct threat to U. S. territory in Alaska and to our vital bases on Okinawa, the Philippines, and Japan, a global strategy and viewpoint will come into its own once more.

It was because the American people for the most part had their eyes fastened on the spectacular battles in Europe that they did not appraise the remarkable struggle under heavy odds that our army under MacArthur and our air force and navy put up in the Pacific against a major power which had the naval strength and the air power to sweep to the tip of Southeast Asia even while fighting a major war on the mainland of China. All this happened in the three long years before V-E Day while the American public looked on it as a secondary if not unimportant adventure in what was sometimes referred to in a somewhat derogatory fashion as "island hopping."

Few people today realize that, apart from heavy casualties of ground troops, 10,000 American boys were killed or wounded on the decks of American naval vessels in the immediate vicinity of Okinawa — the largest casualty list for a single battle in the history of any navy—as the ships stood guard there like sitting ducks for 83 days. They couldn't move away because the navy's own air power was busily engaged in protecting ground operations and no other air power was available in the Western Pacific to destroy the bases on Formosa, on the mainland of China and in south Japan from which the suicide planes were coming day after day. It did not hearten the American boys on the ships or in our army and marine corps fighting on Okinawa — we had more than 275,00 men committed to the action there—to be told that our big B-29s were doing strategic bombing and were destroying vital factories in Japan. What the troops and sailors wanted and begged for was the destruction of the land bases just a few hundred miles away from which those enemy bombers were coming to Okinawa. It was the same old story of inadequate strength.

General MacArthur is again begging his countrymen not to forsake those vital air and submarine bases but to do everything in our power to help Chiang Kai-shek or any other friendly influence inside China so as to keep the Communists from dominating the Far East. It goes without saying that, the next time, all of China and Korea and important bases in Japan will be in the hands of a hostile power unless the Communists are licked—and licked now.

It is, therefore, a basic concept of global strategy which is being ignored now by the European press and to no small extent by those American observers who regard the present flare-up as just a little matter of personalities or of excessive zeal by a prominent general. What seems to be overlooked is that, if World War 3 breaks out, the Pacific Ocean will not be a quiet lake. There are big factories on our Pacific coast which will hardly be immune from attack if the defenses of the Pacific are neglected—if America does not plan its strategy so as to reach out as effectively to destroy submarine bases in Asia as we appear to be doing with respect to those hostile bases in Europe from which submarine threats can come to menace shipping and the transportation of troops in the Atlantic.

Europeans who are not bounded on any coast by the waters of the Pacific do not seem to realize that the United States is a two-ocean country. Even today the European press is talking about American military strength getting "bogged down" in Asia as if there were some magic way of erasing the Pacific and the Asiatic strongholds from the map and persuading the military chiefs of the Communist regime politely to give up any idea of attacking us from that quarter of the globe when war comes.

High officers of our navy, it can be stated positively, say that, while MacArthur has not always selected the most tactful way to express himself, fundamentally he is 100 per cent right when he declares America must be sure of winning the war now in Asia or else Europe will be lost, too.

General MacArthur was right in 1942, and he is right again in arguing for due attention to the Pacific and most of all against any abject surrender or compromise in Asia that means the same thing militarily. He is arguing for the mothers and fathers of the boys enlisted today in the United States Navy who again will bear the brunt of any such attacks. He is arguing for the 250,000 men of our army and air force now in the Pacific. He is making a sensational plea against misunderstanding of the fundamentals of global stratgey.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Los Angeles, April 10—Pershing Square, a sort of Hyde Park corner across the Biltmore, has vanished behind a high board fence while big scoops and bulldozers work the earth loose and trucks haul it somewhere away. A parking garage is being dug rather on the order of the one under Union Square, San Francisco. They may also be used as bomb-shelters. The one in San Francisco is four levels deep and could accommodate, in a squeeze, X-thousand people if there were time, composure and organization to get the automobiles out and put the people in without a stampede. There seems to be no serious belief that, in a few minutes or even an hour, the cars could be got out and the people let in in good order so there is not much point in pondering what would happen if our gallant allies from Moscow should conk the cave smack on the roof with a boss pineapple, or if good old Joe should plunk one in the bay and atomize a mile-high column of spray charged with the medicine that makes people feel just awful, if any.

The Union Square garage in San Francisco is a very gallant try, instigated by merchants owning stylish stores nearby to make things easier for their patrons. It is the cleanest garage you ever did see, and Andrew Lyons, a red-headed foreman, who took me through on a Sunday, showed me not only a gaudy line of motor cosmetics but a laundry, mind you, where they do up the smocks for the men in white. It is a little on the order of a high-tone barbershop in a big hotel and the way they baby cars with hot towels, pedicures for the white-wall tires, and vibrations to tone up the springs makes you wonder what they won't think up next. Mr. Lyons said the boss, who rents the plant from the city of San Francisco, is hell for spotless whites on the help. Get a dab of grease on your coat and in the hopper it goes. The boss is Andrew Pansini, of Los Angeles. But he wants no part of the Los Angeles garage and abri. He has work enough now and, I take it, money enough. Let someone else run the Pershing Square Garage and bomb-shelter.

Union Square is a park where, according to my reading of old, a great many persons huddled up for a day or two at the time of the great earthquake, which they always refer to as "the fire." For some reason they still try to deny the earthquake away although fire is just as degrading and many worse mishaps have hit San

Humans do not celebrate individual birthdays among the Tamils of Southern India and Ceylon, but books do. SCHOOLING AND DEFENSE

A new point in the discussion of federal aid to education has been brought out recently in Washington. It applies to education as a factor in the defense program.

Senator Lister Hill of Alabama told the Senate that since 1948 lack of schooling had cost the armed forces the equivalent of fourteen divisions in rejected men. Such a loss, the senator claimed, could make the difference between defeat and victory. A point brought out by Commissioner of Education Earl J. McGrath, who spoke in New York recently, was that equal educational opportunities for all our children are especially important in the fight against communism.

There is no doubt that states which really cannot collect enough taxes to furnish adequate educational facilities for their children should be helped in some way until such time as they become more prosperous. How that can be done and still maintain freedom of education from government control is a problem needing great wisdom for its solution.

CHILDREN TOGETHER

How many prejudices as to nationality and race are instinctive and how many are imposed by education and experience? The answer to this question is sought by a group of educators and psychologists who are sponsoring the Children's International Summer Village, to be established in Cincinnati this summer.

Six children between the ages of ten and twelve will be selected from each of ten countries and will live a community life enlivened by the usual activities of a summer camp. Such activities will be supplemented by over-all projects to improve the camp site.

Most individuals having had experience with groups of children would be inclined to predict that there will be surprisingly few areas of disagreement based purely on nationality, race or religion. Conflicts will be likely to be those which would develop in a homogeneous group of children of that age group. The actual results, however, will be interesting to parents, teachers and psychologists. They may help to build a more secure foundation for tolerance and understanding among the different races and creeds.

TOWARD EUROPEAN UNITY

The Schuman plan for pooling the steel and coal of France, Germany and four other European nations, under international control, is now up to the signatory nations. If adopted, it should do much toward lessening the economic rivalries of Europe.

Approval of the Schuman formula is now leading to the next step, the formation of a unified agricultural market, with sixteen countries as members, all the way from Ireland to Turkey. This is expected to increase production and stabilize prices. So far the idea has got not further than invitations by France, to the other nations involved, to join in working out a plan.

Just a few years ago these steps toward the unification of Europe would have seemed impossible, or at least unattainable for many years. The present activity testifies to a realistic appreciation of the necessity of scrapping the old national rivalries if Europe is to survive.

CITY CORRUPTION

The revelations of the spread of gambling and organized crime in big cities such as New York and Chicago have confirmed in some quarters the impression that this is charasteristic of big city administration, and that the smaller towns and country districts have escaped this contamination.

Unfortunately there is no evidence to support this. Slot machines are known to thrive in many a small town far removed from a big city. It is suggestive in this connection that of the only two congressmen sentenced to prison in the last few years for improper conduct in office, Andrew J. May of Kentucky and J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey, neither came from a large city.

Americans are much alike in town and country. There are specked apples everywhere, and unfortunately some of them occasionally get into public life.

There's nothing that gets a husband burned up so much as a dinner in the same condition.

One of the drawbacks of youth is that by the time you're old enough to appreciate it, it has passed by.

'These Days'

THE WILTED WHITE-COLLAR

Frederick A. Coudert, Jr., is introducing a bill into Congress to rescue the professional workers of this country from permanent poverty. For precisely that fate faces lawyers, doctors, architects, writers and others, who, no matter what they earn, are being squeezed between taxes and high prices, without any opportunity to save for the future.

Coudert's bill is to aid those men and women who are not eligible as beneficiaries of corporate or other private pension plans. These plans are really savings. For instance, I was recently looking at the card of a Sears, Roebuck file clerk who had been with that company many years and, as I calculated it, she has saved, through their plan, $60,000. I would not mind being a file clerk with such savings.

Professional men, writers, artists, farmers and small business men are now unable to make great savings, unless they swindle, because of taxes which are geared against them. Coudert's idea is to permit the postponement of federal taxes as regards a portion of their earned net income, so that the amount of money shall be contributed as a restricted retirement fund.

The worst phase of this situation, as it affects professional men, writers and artists, is that their earnings are up and down, a lot one year and not so much another year. If they could keep their earnings, they could average out over a few years. But the way it is, a writer may earn a fortune in one year and get taxed for the full amount in that year, and they he does not earn for a few years and is broke.

The Treasury amortizes machines; why not men?

Coudert says:

"It is of utmost importance to encourage young men to enter the professions and small business ventures. Yet the operations of the present tax laws, instead of giving this encouragement, tend to do the exact opposite by making corporation employment more attractive to young men. I believe this to be against the public interest."

I tried to read the Coudert bill and, like all other acts of Congress dealing with taxation, it gets so involved that you have to hire a lawyer and an accountant to discover how it works. But it is enough for me that it gives to the white-collar folks a chance to put aside something of their earnings for the day when the joints ache and the hand is shaky and the eyes are not so good.

Even columnists lose their popularity after a while, and some even lose their value. Yet, under the present set-up, they cannot save in their limited good years. I, for instance, started in this business in 1917. I have, I hope, worked hard at my trade, which involves voluminous reading, the cultivation of memory, travel in many parts of the world, and some small, unheroic element of risk.

In our business, a young person is hired on the general assumption that he knows nothing. Then for 10 or 15 years, he keeps on learning the hard way, his product appearing in black ink on white paper for all to see

So our hero arrives. But so has Uncle Sam. He tells his wife that he is now a big shot, but she wants to know how it happens that E. Merl Young's wife grabs a $9,540 mink coat while she has to wear mouton, which is fancy for sheepskin. Our genius tells her to go fight the Treasury. Well, maybe there are ten wonderful years, during which the great man sits on the dais and rises for a bow and then comes up another young fellow and pushes him into the back pages. So there is nothing to do but to become a ghost-writer.

But savings! There are none except what Uncle Sam gave to the British to bridge their dollar gap—only a small share of it, which must make a man feel noble.

A man really earns little more than he can keep after he has met taxes and his cost of living. Men who want to save and cannot save because their taxes are to high, are not earning what they think they earn. Actually, they are only an intermediary step between those who pay them and the Treasury. What remains is hardly compensation for the work they do. They are being kidded; they are kidding themselves.

The Coudert bill offers a good way out and should be supported.

NEW INSTRUMENT FOR TEETH

I believe that the majority of us would sooner have a tooth pulled out than undergo the pain and heat of the drill as the dentist tries to save a tooth by putting in a filling. There is something about the drilling of a tooth, especially as the drill approaches nearer and nearer the pulp (nerves and blood vessels) that causes us to be tense, which, of course, only intensifies the pain, heat and vibration.

It will be good news for everybody to learn that a new instrument designed to get rid of nearly all vibration, pressure and heat caused by the present drill has been reported by Dr. Robert B. Black, Corpus Christi, Texas, inventor of the instrument, in The Journal of the American Dental Association. It is an "airbrasive" machine which at present is getting a real trial in dental schools before it is put in general use by dentists. The machine, which has been in process of development since 1942, prepares dental cavities for fillings by airbrasive cutting action. A gas-propelled force blasts the abrasive material from the nozzle of a handpiece, not unlike a drill in appearance.

"Airbrasive" depends for its action on a fine stream of suitable gas carrying a controlled quantity of small abrasive particles. The abrasive, traveling at supersonic speeds of more than 1000 feet per second, blasts out the cavity instead of grinding it out and doesn't come in contact with the tooth as does a dental drill. It is described as essentially a non-mechanical operation.

Dr. Black states that the airbrasive is not capable of doing all the work of the rotary drill. Its chief use is that of preparing a tooth for filling or jacket crown by cutting through tooth enamel, the hardest substance of the human body, and of removing stubborn stains and heavy deposits of tartar (the forerunner of pyorrhea) from the tooth surface. "Its principal value lies in the fact that it cuts hard tooth structure easily and accurately," Dr. Black states. It cannot be used to remove the soft part of the tooth immediately under the enamel.

To most persons Dr. Black's statement that "this method of preparing teeth for restoration does not stimulate fear and apprehension" will be good news indeed. Patients will willingly undergo abrasive treatment who otherwise would neglect and eventually lose their teeth.

Speakiing of Iron Curtains . . .

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—At two cabinet meetings in the past three weeks, General MacArthur's unauthorized policy statements have come in for important, even heated discussion.

Most heated debate was not last week but immediately after MacArthur's pre-Easter statement of March 24, in which he proposed a peace meeting with Chinese military commanders.

At this cabinet meeting the President remarked that he was sorry he hadn't fired MacArthur last summer—following his out-of-line statement to the Veterans of Foreign Wars. What aroused the President's heat just before Easter was that MacArthur's peace statement was one which Truman himself was planning to make.

What happened was that the joint chiefs of staff had cabled MacArthur, for his perusal and personal reaction, a copy of an Easter appeal for peace which the State Department had already discussed with the British and French and which Truman planned to issue publicly.

But, without a word to Washington, MacArthur made the statement himself. Part of his text was almost verbatim with that sent him by the joint chiefs, though his threat to bomb Chinese bases was entirely his own.

MacArthur's Political Record

Naturally Washington boiled.

Next day, Secretary of Defense Marshall sent MacArthur a personal cable ordering him to clear all future policy statements with him. That cable was dated March 25, and MacArthur's letter to ex-Speaker Joe Martin was dated March 20, so technically at least MacArthur is in the clear.

In the eyes of the Defense Department, however, he is not. For on Dec. 5, 1950, confidential orders were sent to all military commanders to clear all policy statements with the Defense Department in Washington. Furthermore, MacArthur has had a history of jumping the traces, some of which is well-known, some not, but all of which has made relations between him and his commander-in-chief more strained than at any time in recent American history. Here is the record:

Jump No. 1—In December, 1949, MacArthur let off steam to a group of Republican senators visiting him in Tokyo about sending U. S. arms and troops to Formosa. This teed off the running debate between the Administration and the China bloc over Chinese intervention which continued for months.

Jump No. 2—In the spring of 1950, MacArthur took an unauthorized trip to Formosa, got a lot of publicity kissing Madame Chiang Kai-shek's hand, and openly discussed the idea of building up Formosa as a base. This was in complete contradiction of the government's policy, and he obviously knew it.

Jump No. 3—After we got into the Korean war, MacArthur sent his famous letter to the Veterans of Foreign Wars regarding the use of Formosa as a base. He was reprimanded by Truman.

Wake Island — It was around this time that Averell Harriman, special representative to the President, went to Tokyo to soothe the general's fur. At this time Harriman got MacArthur's solemn promise to make no more policy statements without clearing them with Washington.

Truman Is Charmed

Following this, Truman made his special pilgrimage to confer with MacArthur on Wake Island. When he first arrived he was a little non-plused by the way the general strolled nonchalantly down to the runway—a little late—to meet him; and by the fact that MacArthur failed to salute his commander-in-chief. He was also disappointed that MacArthur's accompanying party consisted chiefly of his personal doctor, his valet and Ambassador Muccio, whereas Truman had brought the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff and a group of experts prepared to discuss important Far Eastern problems.

It was because MacArthur brought no experts to discuss anything that the conference was so abbreviated.

However, during their brief time together, MacArthur charmed Truman completely and the President came away singing his praisies.

Jump No. 4—Came during MacArthur's November drive into North Korea. This was only a partial jump-over-the-traces, because Truman had given him the green light to dash up to the Manchurian border. However, on more than three occasions the state department relayed warnings that the Chinese were about to attack—one from the French, one from India and several from the British.

On another occasion, when the State Department urgently proposed a public statement assuring the Chinese that the big dams supplying water power to all Manchuria would not be bombed, MacArthur sent back a curt three-word telegram: "Do not concur."

It was against this background of almost weekly friction between Washington and Tokyo that the cabinet seethed last week and this week over MacArthur's more recent trace-jumping.

Rayburn's Ghost Troops

What Speaker Sam Rayburn had in mind when he told Congress that "non-Chinese" troops were in Manchuria, was not Russian troops, but four divisions of Russian-trained Japanese troops. . . . There has long been a small contingent of Russian troops in Manchuria used for purposes of turning Russian equipment over to the Chinese. But there have never been any Russian combat troops in Manchuria, and are not now. . . . Much more dangerous is the well-substantiated report that 15 divisions of the Red Army are massed around the edge of Siberia, including 3,000 to 4,000 planes plus four airborne divisions. This is the chief reason why the joint chiefs of staff have hesitated about bombing Chinese bases. They figure that if China is directly attacked, her mutual assistance pact with Russia will be invoked and the might of the Red Army will be thrown into battle—possibly in airborne landing operations against Japan. . . . Significantly, Secretary of State Acheson has come nearer siding with the MacArthur thesis of retaliation against China than the more cautious joint chiefs of staff. Acheson has always favored a Naval blockade of Chinese ports, at one time even advocated bombing these ports as a lesson to China for thumbing its nose at the United Nations. . . . Prime Minister Attlee, when in Washington, had a hard time combatting Acheson's arguments on such a policy.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 11—Starting just nine years ago, in the spring of 1942, and continuing from then on throughout most of World War II, the same controversy was going on as is emerging today—how much force to allocate to Asia and the Pacific and how much to Europe.

But the public didn't know much about it at the time, nor did it know how earnestly General MacArthur, backed up by Fleet Admiral King, pleaded for enough strength to win the war in the Pacific.

The fundamental issues haven't changed. When all the emotion has been removed from the present atmosphere of politics in Washington and London, and the European leaders face realistically the fact that from the Pacific Ocean can come a direct threat to U. S. territory in Alaska and to our vital bases on Okinawa, the Philippines, and Japan, a global strategy and viewpoint will come into its own once more.

It was because the American people for the most part had their eyes fastened on the spectacular battles in Europe that they did not appraise the remarkable struggle under heavy odds that our army under MacArthur and our air force and navy put up in the Pacific against a major power which had the naval strength and the air power to sweep to the tip of Southeast Asia even while fighting a major war on the mainland of China. All this happened in the three long years before V-E Day while the American public looked on it as a secondary if not unimportant adventure in what was sometimes referred to in a somewhat derogatory fashion as "island hopping."

Few people today realize that, apart from heavy casualties of ground troops, 10,000 American boys were killed or wounded on the decks of American naval vessels in the immediate vicinity of Okinawa—the largest casualty list for a single battle in the history of any navy—as the ships stood guard there like sitting ducks for 83 days. They couldn't move away because the navy's own air power was busily engaged in protecting ground operations and no other air power was available in the Western Pacific to destroy the bases on Formosa, on the mainland of China and in south Japan from which the suicide planes were coming day after day. It did not hearten the American boys on the ships or in our army and marine corps fighting on Okinawa—we had more than 275,00 men committed to the action there—to be told that our big B-29s were doing strategic bombing and were destroying vital factories in Japan. What the troops and sailors wanted and begged for was the destruction of the land bases just a few hundred miles away from which those enemy bombers were coming to Okinawa. It was the same old story of inadequate strength.

General MacArthur is again begging his countrymen not to forsake those vital air and submarine bases but to do everything in our power to help Chiang Kai-shek or any other friendly influence inside China so as to keep the Communists from dominating the Far East. It goes without saying that, the next time, all of China and Korea and important bases in Japan will be in the hands of a hostile power unless the Communists are licked—and licked now.

It is, therefore, a basic concept of global strategy which is being ignored now by the European press and to no small extent by those American observers who regard the present flare-up as just a little matter of personalities or of excessive zeal by a prominent general. What seems to be overlooked is that, if World War 3 breaks out, the Pacific Ocean will not be a quiet lake. There are big factories on our Pacific coast which will hardly be immune from attack if the defenses of the Pacific are neglected—if America does not plan its strategy so as to reach out as effectively to destroy submarine bases in Asia as we appear to be doing with respect to those hostile bases in Europe from which submarine threats can come to menace shipping and the transportation of troops in the Atlantic.

Europeans who are not bounded on any coast by the waters of the Pacific do not seem to realize that the United States is a two-ocean country. Even today the European press is talking about American military strength getting "bogged down" in Asia as if there were some magic way of erasing the Pacific and the Asiatic strongholds from the map and persuading the military chiefs of the Communist regime politely to give up any idea of attacking us from that quarter of the globe when war comes.

High officers of our navy, it can be stated positively, say that, while MacArthur has not always selected the most tactful way to express himself, fundamentally he is 100 per cent right when he declares America must be sure of winning the war now in Asia or else Europe will be lost, too.

General MacArthur was right in 1942, and he is right again in arguing for due attention to the Pacific and most of all against any abject surrender or compromise in Asia that means the same thing militarily. He is arguing for the mothers and fathers of the boys enlisted today in the United States Navy who again will bear the brunt of any such attacks. He is arguing for the 250,000 men of our army and air force now in the Pacific. He is making a sensational plea against misunderstanding of the fundamentals of global stratgey.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Los Angeles, April 10—Pershing Square, a sort of Hyde Park corner across the Biltmore, has vanished behind a high board fence while big scoops and bulldozers work the earth loose and trucks haul it somewhere away. A parking garage is being dug rather on the order of the one under Union Square, San Francisco. They may also be used as bomb-shelters. The one in San Francisco is four levels deep and could accommodate, in a squeeze, X-thousand people if there were time, composure and organization to get the automobiles out and put the people in without a stampede. There seems to be no serious belief that, in a few minutes or even an hour, the cars could be got out and the people let in in good order so there is not much point in pondering what would happen if our gallant allies from Moscow should conk the cave smack on the roof with a boss pineapple, or if good old Joe should plunk one in the bay and atomize a mile-high column of spray charged with the medicine that makes people feel just awful, if any.

The Union Square garage in San Francisco is a very gallant try, instigated by merchants owning stylish stores nearby to make things easier for their patrons. It is the cleanest garage you ever did see, and Andrew Lyons, a red-headed foreman, who took me through on a Sunday, showed me not only a gaudy line of motor cosmetics but a laundry, mind you, where they do up the smocks for the men in white. It is a little on the order of a high-tone barbershop in a big hotel and the way they baby cars with hot towels, pedicures for the white-wall tires, and vibrations to tone up the springs makes you wonder what they won't think up next. Mr. Lyons said the boss, who rents the plant from the city of San Francisco, is hell for spotless whites on the help. Get a dab of grease on your coat and in the hopper it goes. The boss is Andrew Pansini, of Los Angeles. But he wants no part of the Los Angeles garage and abri. He has work enough now and, I take it, money enough. Let someone else run the Pershing Square Garage and bomb-shelter.

Union Square is a park where, according to my reading of old, a great many persons huddled up for a day or two at the time of the great earthquake, which they always refer to as "the fire." For some reason they still try to deny the earthquake away although fire is just as degrading and many worse mishaps have hit San

How many prejudices as to nationality and race are instinctive and how many are imposed by education and experience? The answer to this question is sought by a group of educators and psychologists who are sponsoring the Children's International Summer Village, to be established in Cincinnati this summer.

Six children between the ages of ten and twelve will be selected from each of ten countries and will live a community life enlivened by the usual activities of a summer camp. Such activities will be supplemented by over-all projects to improve the camp site.

Most individuals having had experience with groups of children would be inclined to predict that there will be surprisingly few areas of disagreement based purely on nationality, race or religion. Conflicts will be likely to be those which would develop in a homogeneous group of children of that age group. The actual results, however, will be interesting to parents, teachers and psychologists. They may help to build a more secure foundation for tolerance and understanding among the different races and creeds.

TOWARD EUROPEAN UNITY

The Schuman plan for pooling the steel and coal of France, Germany and four other European nations, under international control, is now up to the signatory nations. If adopted, it should do much toward lessening the economic rivalries of Europe.

Approval of the Schuman formula is now leading to the next step, the formation of a unified agricultural market, with sixteen countries as members, all the way from Ireland to Turkey. This is expected to increase production and stabilize prices. So far the idea has got not further than invitations by France, to the other nations involved, to join in working out a plan.

Just a few years ago these steps toward the unification of Europe would have seemed impossible, or at least unattainable for many years. The present activity testifies to a realistic appreciation of the necessity of scrapping the old national rivalries if Europe is to survive.

CITY CORRUPTION

The revelations of the spread of gambling and organized crime in big cities such as New York and Chicago have confirmed in some quarters the impression that this is charasteristic of big city administration, and that the smaller towns and country districts have escaped this contamination.

Unfortunately there is no evidence to support this. Slot machines are known to thrive in many a small town far removed from a big city. It is suggestive in this connection that of the only two congressmen sentenced to prison in the last few years for improper conduct in office, Andrew J. May of Kentucky and J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey, neither came from a large city.

Americans are much alike in town and country. There are specked apples everywhere, and unfortunately some of them occasionally get into public life.

There's nothing that gets a husband burned up so much as a dinner in the same condition.

One of the drawbacks of youth is that by the time you're old enough to appreciate it, it has passed by.

'These Days'

THE WILTED WHITE-COLLAR

Frederick A. Coudert, Jr., is introducing a bill into Congress to rescue the professional workers of this country from permanent poverty. For precisely that fate faces lawyers, doctors, architects, writers and others, who, no matter what they earn, are being squeezed between taxes and high prices, without any opportunity to save for the future.

Coudert's bill is to aid those men and women who are not eligible as beneficiaries of corporate or other private pension plans. These plans are really savings. For instance, I was recently looking at the card of a Sears, Roebuck file clerk who had been with that company many years and, as I calculated it, she has saved, through their plan, $60,000. I would not mind being a file clerk with such savings.

Professional men, writers, artists, farmers and small business men are now unable to make great savings, unless they swindle, because of taxes which are geared against them. Coudert's idea is to permit the postponement of federal taxes as regards a portion of their earned net income, so that the amount of money shall be contributed as a restricted retirement fund.

The worst phase of this situation, as it affects professional men, writers and artists, is that their earnings are up and down, a lot one year and not so much another year. If they could keep their earnings, they could average out over a few years. But the way it is, a writer may earn a fortune in one year and get taxed for the full amount in that year, and they he does not earn for a few years and is broke.

The Treasury amortizes machines; why not men?

Coudert says:

"It is of utmost importance to encourage young men to enter the professions and small business ventures. Yet the operations of the present tax laws, instead of giving this encouragement, tend to do the exact opposite by making corporation employment more attractive to young men. I believe this to be against the public interest."

I tried to read the Coudert bill and, like all other acts of Congress dealing with taxation, it gets so involved that you have to hire a lawyer and an accountant to discover how it works. But it is enough for me that it gives to the white-collar folks a chance to put aside something of their earnings for the day when the joints ache and the hand is shaky and the eyes are not so good.

Even columnists lose their popularity after a while, and some even lose their value. Yet, under the present set-up, they cannot save in their limited good years. I, for instance, started in this business in 1917. I have, I hope, worked hard at my trade, which involves voluminous reading, the cultivation of memory, travel in many parts of the world, and some small, unheroic element of risk.

In our business, a young person is hired on the general assumption that he knows nothing. Then for 10 or 15 years, he keeps on learning the hard way, his product appearing in black ink on white paper for all to see

So our hero arrives. But so has Uncle Sam. He tells his wife that he is now a big shot, but she wants to know how it happens that E. Merl Young's wife grabs a $9,540 mink coat while she has to wear mouton, which is fancy for sheepskin. Our genius tells her to go fight the Treasury. Well, maybe there are ten wonderful years, during which the great man sits on the dais and rises for a bow and then comes up another young fellow and pushes him into the back pages. So there is nothing to do but to become a ghost-writer.

But savings! There are none except what Uncle Sam gave to the British to bridge their dollar gap—only a small share of it, which must make a man feel noble.

A man really earns little more than he can keep after he has met taxes and his cost of living. Men who want to save and cannot save because their taxes are to high, are not earning what they think they earn. Actually, they are only an intermediary step between those who pay them and the Treasury. What remains is hardly compensation for the work they do. They are being kidded; they are kidding themselves.

The Coudert bill offers a good way out and should be supported.

NEW INSTRUMENT FOR TEETH

I believe that the majority of us would sooner have a tooth pulled out than undergo the pain and heat of the drill as the dentist tries to save a tooth by putting in a filling. There is something about the drilling of a tooth, especially as the drill approaches nearer and nearer the pulp (nerves and blood vessels) that causes us to be tense, which, of course, only intensifies the pain, heat and vibration.

It will be good news for everybody to learn that a new instrument designed to get rid of nearly all vibration, pressure and heat caused by the present drill has been reported by Dr. Robert B. Black, Corpus Christi, Texas, inventor of the instrument, in The Journal of the American Dental Association. It is an "airbrasive" machine which at present is getting a real trial in dental schools before it is put in general use by dentists. The machine, which has been in process of development since 1942, prepares dental cavities for fillings by airbrasive cutting action. A gas-propelled force blasts the abrasive material from the nozzle of a handpiece, not unlike a drill in appearance.

"Airbrasive" depends for its action on a fine stream of suitable gas carrying a controlled quantity of small abrasive particles. The abrasive, traveling at supersonic speeds of more than 1000 feet per second, blasts out the cavity instead of grinding it out and doesn't come in contact with the tooth as does a dental drill. It is described as essentially a non-mechanical operation.

Dr. Black states that the airbrasive is not capable of doing all the work of the rotary drill. Its chief use is that of preparing a tooth for filling or jacket crown by cutting through tooth enamel, the hardest substance of the human body, and of removing stubborn stains and heavy deposits of tartar (the forerunner of pyorrhea) from the tooth surface. "Its principal value lies in the fact that it cuts hard tooth structure easily and accurately," Dr. Black states. It cannot be used to remove the soft part of the tooth immediately under the enamel.

To most persons Dr. Black's statement that "this method of preparing teeth for restoration does not stimulate fear and apprehension" will be good news indeed. Patients will willingly undergo abrasive treatment who otherwise would neglect and eventually lose their teeth.

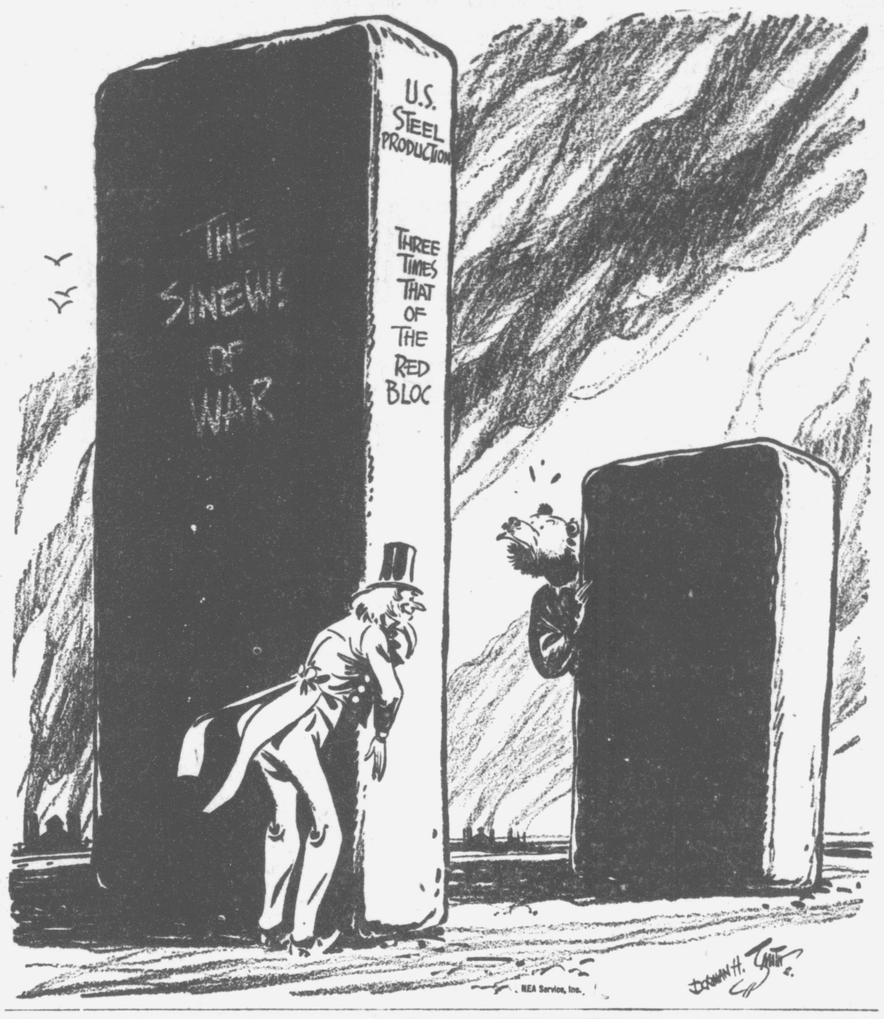
Speakiing of Iron Curtains . . .



The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

Washington—At two cabinet meetings in the past three weeks, General MacArthur's unauthorized policy statements have come in for important, even heated discussion.

Most heated debate was not last week but immediately after MacArthur's pre-Easter statement of March 24, in which he proposed a peace meeting with Chinese military commanders.

At this cabinet meeting the President remarked that he was sorry he hadn't fired MacArthur last summer—following his out-of-line statement to the Veterans of Foreign Wars. What aroused the President's heat just before Easter was that MacArthur's peace statement was one which Truman himself was planning to make.

What happened was that the joint chiefs of staff had cabled MacArthur, for his perusal and personal reaction, a copy of an Easter appeal for peace which the State Department had already discussed with the British and French and which Truman planned to issue publicly.

But, without a word to Washington, MacArthur made the statement himself. Part of his text was almost verbatim with that sent him by the joint chiefs, though his threat to bomb Chinese bases was entirely his own.

MacArthur's Political Record

Naturally Washington boiled.

Next day, Secretary of Defense Marshall sent MacArthur a personal cable ordering him to clear all future policy statements with him. That cable was dated March 25, and MacArthur's letter to ex-Speaker Joe Martin was dated March 20, so technically at least MacArthur is in the clear.

In the eyes of the Defense Department, however, he is not. For on Dec. 5, 1950, confidential orders were sent to all military commanders to clear all policy statements with the Defense Department in Washington. Furthermore, MacArthur has had a history of jumping the traces, some of which is well-known, some not, but all of which has made relations between him and his commander-in-chief more strained than at any time in recent American history. Here is the record:

Jump No. 1—In December, 1949, MacArthur let off steam to a group of Republican senators visiting him in Tokyo about sending U. S. arms and troops to Formosa. This teed off the running debate between the Administration and the China bloc over Chinese intervention which continued for months.

Jump No. 2—In the spring of 1950, MacArthur took an unauthorized trip to Formosa, got a lot of publicity kissing Madame Chiang Kai-shek's hand, and openly discussed the idea of building up Formosa as a base. This was in complete contradiction of the government's policy, and he obviously knew it.

Jump No. 3—After we got into the Korean war, MacArthur sent his famous letter to the Veterans of Foreign Wars regarding the use of Formosa as a base. He was reprimanded by Truman.

Wake Island — It was around this time that Averell Harriman, special representative to the President, went to Tokyo to soothe the general's fur. At this time Harriman got MacArthur's solemn promise to make no more policy statements without clearing them with Washington.

Truman Is Charmed

Following this, Truman made his special pilgrimage to confer with MacArthur on Wake Island. When he first arrived he was a little non-plused by the way the general strolled nonchalantly down to the runway—a little late—to meet him; and by the fact that MacArthur failed to salute his commander-in-chief. He was also disappointed that MacArthur's accompanying party consisted chiefly of his personal doctor, his valet and Ambassador Muccio, whereas Truman had brought the chairman of the joint chiefs of staff and a group of experts prepared to discuss important Far Eastern problems.

It was because MacArthur brought no experts to discuss anything that the conference was so abbreviated.

However, during their brief time together, MacArthur charmed Truman completely and the President came away singing his praises.

Jump No. 4—Came during MacArthur's November drive into North Korea. This was only a partial jump-over-the-traces, because Truman had given him the green light to dash up to the Manchurian border. However, on more than three occasions the state department relayed warnings that the Chinese were about to attack—one from the French, one from India and several from the British.

On another occasion, when the State Department urgently proposed a public statement assuring the Chinese that the big dams supplying water power to all Manchuria would not be bombed, MacArthur sent back a curt three-word telegram: "Do not concur."

It was against this background of almost weekly friction between Washington and Tokyo that the cabinet seethed last week and this week over MacArthur's more recent trace-jumping.

Rayburn's Ghost Troops

What Speaker Sam Rayburn had in mind when he told Congress that "non-Chinese" troops were in Manchuria, was not Russian troops, but four divisions of Russian-trained Japanese troops. . . . There has long been a small contingent of Russian troops in Manchuria used for purposes of turning Russian equipment over to the Chinese. But there have never been any Russian combat troops in Manchuria, and are not now. . . . Much more dangerous is the well-substantiated report that 15 divisions of the Red Army are massed around the edge of Siberia, including 2,000 to 4,000 planes plus four airborne divisions. This is the chief reason why the joint chiefs of staff have hesitated about bombing Chinese bases. They figure that if China is directly attacked, her mutual assistance pact with Russia will be invoked and the might of the Red Army will be thrown into battle—possibly in airborne landing operations against Japan. . . . Significantly, Secretary of State Acheson has come nearer siding with the MacArthur thesis of retaliation against China than the more cautious joint chiefs of staff. Acheson has always favored a Naval blockade of Chinese ports, at one time even advocated bombing these ports as a lesson to China for thumbing its nose at the United Nations. . . . Prime Minister Attlee, when in Washington, had a hard time combatting Acheson's arguments on such a policy.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 11—Starting just nine years ago, in the spring of 1942, and continuing from then on throughout most of World War II, the same controversy was going on as is emerging today—how much force to allocate to Asia and the Pacific and how much to Europe.

But the public didn't know much about it at the time, nor did it know how earnestly General MacArthur, backed up by Fleet Admiral King, pleaded for enough strength to win the war in the Pacific.

The fundamental issues haven't changed. When all the emotion has been removed from the present atmosphere of politics in Washington and London, and the European leaders face realistically the fact that from the Pacific Ocean can come a direct threat to U. S. territory in Alaska and to our vital bases on Okinawa, the Philippines, and Japan, a global strategy and viewpoint will come into its own once more.

It was because the American people for the most part had their eyes fastened on the spectacular battles in Europe that they did not appraise the remarkable struggle under heavy odds that our army under MacArthur and our air force and navy put up in the Pacific against a major power which had the naval strength and the air power to sweep to the tip of Southeast Asia even while fighting a major war on the mainland of China. All this happened in the three long years before V-E Day while the American public looked on it as a secondary if not unimportant adventure in what was sometimes referred to in a somewhat derogatory fashion as "island hopping."

Few people today realize that, apart from heavy casualties of ground troops, 10,000 American boys were killed or wounded on the decks of American naval vessels in the immediate vicinity of Okinawa — the largest casualty list for a single battle in the history of any navy—as the ships stood guard there like sitting ducks for 83 days. They couldn't move away because the navy's own air power was busily engaged in protecting ground operations and no other air power was available in the Western Pacific to destroy the bases on Formosa, on the mainland of China and in south Japan from which the suicide planes were coming day after day. It did not hearten the American boys on the ships or in our army and marine corps fighting on Okinawa — we had more than 275,00 men committed to the action there—to be told that our big B-29s were doing strategic bombing and were destroying vital factories in Japan. What the troops and sailors wanted and begged for was the destruction of the land bases just a few hundred miles away from which those enemy bombers were coming to Okinawa. It was the same old story of inadequate strength.

General MacArthur is again begging his countrymen not to forsake those vital air and submarine bases but to do everything in our power to help Chiang Kai-shek or any other friendly influence inside China so as to keep the Communists from dominating the Far East. It goes without saying that, the next time, all of China and Korea and important bases in Japan will be in the hands of a hostile power unless the Communists are licked—and licked now.

It is, therefore, a basic concept of global strategy which is being ignored now by the European press and to no small extent by those American observers who regard the present flare-up as just a little matter of personalities or of excessive zeal by a prominent general. What seems to be overlooked is that, if World War 3 breaks out, the Pacific Ocean will not be a quiet lake. There are big factories on our Pacific coast which will hardly be immune from attack if the defenses of the Pacific are neglected—if America does not plan its strategy so as to reach out as effectively to destroy submarine bases in Asia as we appear to be doing with respect to those hostile bases in Europe from which submarine threats can come to menace shipping and the transportation of troops in the Atlantic.

Europeans who are not bounded on any coast by the waters of the Pacific do not seem to realize that the United States is a two-ocean country. Even today the European press is talking about American military strength getting "bogged down" in Asia as if there were some magic way of erasing the Pacific and the Asiatic strongholds from the map and persuading the military chiefs of the Communist regime politely to give up any idea of attacking us from that quarter of the globe when war comes.

High officers of our navy, it can be stated positively, say that, while MacArthur has not always selected the most tactful way to express himself, fundamentally he is 100 per cent right when he declares America must be sure of winning the war now in Asia or else Europe will be lost, too.

General MacArthur was right in 1942, and he is right again in arguing for due attention to the Pacific and most of all against any abject surrender or compromise in Asia that means the same thing militarily. He is arguing for the mothers and fathers of the boys enlisted today in the United States Navy who again will bear the brunt of any such attacks. He is arguing for the 250,000 men of our army and air force now in the Pacific. He is making a sensational plea against misunderstanding of the fundamentals of global stratgey.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Los Angeles, April 10—Pershing Square, a sort of Hyde Park corner across the Biltmore, has vanished behind a high board fence while big scoops and bulldozers work the earth loose and trucks haul it somewhere away. A parking garage is being dug rather on the order of the one under Union Square, San Francisco. They may also be used as bomb-shelters. The one in San Francisco is four levels deep and could accommodate, in a squeeze, X-thousand people if there were time, composure and organization to get the automobiles out and put the people in without a stampede. There seems to be no serious belief that, in a few minutes or even an hour, the cars could be got out and the people let in in good order so there is not much point in pondering what would happen if our gallant allies from Moscow should conk the cave smack on the roof with a boss pineapple, or if good old Joe should plunk one in the bay and atomize a mile-high column of spray charged with the medicine that makes people feel just awful, if any.

The Union Square garage in San Francisco is a very gallant try, instigated by merchants owning stylish stores nearby to make things easier for their patrons. It is the cleanest garage you ever did see, and Andrew Lyons, a red-headed foreman, who took me through on a Sunday, showed me not only a gaudy line of motor cosmetics but a laundry, mind you, where they do up the smocks for the men in white. It is a little on the order of a high-tone barbershop in a big hotel and the way they baby cars with hot towels, pedicures for the white-wall tires, and vibrations to tone up the springs makes you wonder what they won't think up next. Mr. Lyons said the boss, who rents the plant from the city of San Francisco, is hell for spotless whites on the help. Get a dab of grease on your coat and in the hopper it goes. The boss is Andrew Pansini, of Los Angeles. But he wants no part of the Los Angeles garage and abri. He has work enough now and, I take it, money enough. Let someone else run the Pershing Square Garage and bomb-shelter.

Union Square is a park where, according to my reading of old, a great many persons huddled up for a day or two at the time of the great earthquake, which they always refer to as "the fire." For some reason they still try to deny the earthquake away although fire is just as degrading and many worse mishaps have hit San was the youngest man to hold that office, and he occupied it for a record length of time—five years.

Before then, MacArthur had been the youngest superintendent of West Point and the youngest divisional commander in World War 1. He conceived the idea of the Rainbow Division and served in it.

He returned from Europe's war with a chestful of medals, a reputation for reckless bravery and recognition as a shrewd tactician.

MacArthur was a dashing figure, a military hero with the ramrod posture that in later years was to become one of his trademarks.

A controversy that has lived alongside his name during subsequent years was his part, as chief of staff, in ordering the army out against Washington's bonus marchers in 1932. His supporters said he was only obeying orders.

Was in Obscurity

The general sank into relative obscurity after he returned to the Philippines in 1935 as adviser to the commonwealth government. Two years later, on his last visit to continental United States, he married the present Mrs. MacArthur. She has been by his side during most of the thunderous years that followed.

MacArthur began a second career at 61, when Japanese imperialism bounced him back to war in the Philippines as commander of U. S. forces in the Far East.

There he made his first fight with outnumbered and outgunned troops against a reckless, determined oriental enemy.

The heartbreaking retreat into Bataan, the bitter battle for that peninsula and its tadpole guardian, Corregidor, and finally the galling capitulation—these all left scars on MacArthur that were to reappear years later.

Escaped to Australia

President Roosevelt ordered MacArthur to leave Corregidor before the end. With his wife and their young son, Arthur, the general reached Australia after almost providentially slipping through the Japanese by P-T boat and plane.

Almost from the day of his arrival, MacArthur began a running fight with the administration to get the men and equipment he said he needed to win. MacArthur argued then, as now, that the orient was a vital area that could not be ignored.

But he lost the battle, and the Pacific was by-passed for the greater priority flow of war strength to Europe. That defeat also left its mark on the general, to reappear years later in another—and final—controversy with another Democratic president.

MacArthur fought back in World War 2, with his famous leapfrog tactics, to the edge of the Philippines. These islands and their captured people had, in his mind, become his wards. The ragged war prisoners from his first army had become a cross around the neck of this sentimental man, and years later he wept publicly when he talked about them.

Called to Honolulu

Then the general was summoned to a Honolulu conference with President Roosevelt. He was to be told that the Philippines were to be bypassed; that his role in the war—and future history—was over.

But MacArthur talked his way back into destiny with a private speech to Roosevelt so persuasive that the president altered the path of war to include the re-invasion of the Philippines.

MacArthur was preparing plans for the invasion of Japan, which he was to command, when the Japanese capitulation ended the first major war of western powers against the Orient.

A third career opened for the general as supreme commander for the allied powers—the political emperor of beaten, floundering Japan.

With Bitter Memories

MacArthur came to the country with memories so bitter that he made Japan's surrender envoys use the code word "Bataan." But he exercised his dictatorship over the Japanese with such benevolence that his former enemies came to respect him with the type of reverence they formerly reserved for their emperor.

The general counted among his major accomplishments in Japan a stunning and important victory over communism—in a regimented country ripe for it.

Long before American official policy turned against the Kremlin, MacArthur blocked Soviet efforts to occupy—and thereby absorb—Hokkaido, Japan's northern most main island.

He fought Japanese Communists to a standstill with a mixture of force and propaganda. And when Japan became the major supply, staging and air base for the Korean war, not a single important instance of sabotage was reported.

Warned of Communism

For years before the Korean outbreak, MacArthur had warned against the surge of communism across Asia. The general and his key officers long considered they actually were at war with the Reds in this part of the world.

MacArthur privately bemoaned what he termed the needless loss of continental China to the Communists. He steadfastly maintained that China could have been held, with some western assistance wisely administered.

Part of his latter open bitterness against the U. S. State Department stemmed from the China war. It grew when the department wiped off Formosa, an island which MacArthur considered an absolute necessity for American defenses in the Far East.

MacArthur was 70 when the North Koreans struck last June. He was always mentally keen and alert; and so hard-working he denied himself holidays. But when combat challenged again, he seemed to lose 10 years and to seek actio like an old fire horse.

In Field Three Days

MacArthur was in the field three days after the war started. He made periodic trips, and wore out younger staff officers journeying to the front, often within easy range of enemy fire.

The general had maintained consistently that Communist force must be opposed by force, wherever it arose. His influence probably was predominate in the swift mobilization of United Nations troops.

The first decision to bomb north of the 38th Parallel—the invisible boundary that military men think has been given too much importance—was made at a war conference in MacArthur's plane during a flight to Korea. I was present.

MacArthur asked his staff officers to find sufficient authority in his directives to take this step "without Washington hanging me."

Elated by Landing

The general was elated by the success of the brilliant Inchon landing last September. The North Korean army came apart, as he had predicted, and the war was considered almost over. MacArthur and his officers had thought the Chinese Communists would hit during the Inchon landing or not at all.

The Chinese attack was a profound shock. It turned a brilliant victory into a bitter holding war, the end of which is not yet in sight.

It was then that MacArthur began to show his pronounced, and fatal, impatience with the restraints under which he was obliged to fight.

It was then he began to demand political decision and to suggest widening the war.

MacArthur firmly believed that the entry of the Chinese had opened a new war that could be won only by the full use of western power.

"It's a cockeyed world," he once said to me. "We're in a shooting war here, and all our troops are going to Europe."

The general wrote all of his own statements and made his own decisions about releasing them. In his most recent comments, he probably was taking his favorite "calculated risk."

Doubtless, he expected some sort of reaction. But it seems unlikely that he intended to gamble the U.N. command that he valued so much by repeating what he said so consistently for a decade.

But as he made his statements, there must have been swirling in his memory the recollection of that other bloody peninsula which meant so much to him—Bataan.

Dewey Approves Bill On Official Newspapers

Albany, N. Y., April 11 (AP)—Governor Dewey approved today a bill requiring county boards of supervisors to designate official newspapers each year.

The law previously did not specify how often a board had to designate newspapers to carry legal notices of concurrent resolutions of the Legislature and local laws.

The new law also requires that local laws, subject to public referendum, be published in official newspapers at least once a week for two weeks. The first publication must be within 10 days after the law is adopted.

One newspaper must be designated for each of the two predominant political parties in the county.

MacArthur Calm

was the youngest man to hold that office, and he occupied it for a record length of time—five years.

Before then, MacArthur had been the youngest superintendent of West Point and the youngest divisional commander in World War 1. He conceived the idea of the Rainbow Division and served in it.

He returned from Europe's war with a chestful of medals, a reputation for reckless bravery and recognition as a shrewd tactician.

MacArthur was a dashing figure, a military hero with the ramrod posture that in later years was to become one of his trademarks.

A controversy that has lived alongside his name during subsequent years was his part, as chief of staff, in ordering the army out against Washington's bonus marchers in 1932. His supporters said he was only obeying orders.

Was in Obscurity

The general sank into relative obscurity after he returned to the Philippines in 1935 as adviser to the commonwealth government. Two years later, on his last visit to continental United States, he married the present Mrs. MacArthur. She has been by his side during most of the thunderous years that followed.

MacArthur began a second career at 61, when Japanese imperialism bounced him back to war in the Philippines as commander of U. S. forces in the Far East.

There he made his first fight with outnumbered and outgunned troops against a reckless, determined oriental enemy.

The heartbreaking retreat into Bataan, the bitter battle for that peninsula and its tadpole guardian, Corregidor, and finally the galling capitulation—these all left scars on MacArthur that were to reappear years later.

Escaped to Australia

President Roosevelt ordered MacArthur to leave Corregidor before the end. With his wife and their young son, Arthur, the general reached Australia after almost providentially slipping through the Japanese by P-T boat and plane.

Almost from the day of his arrival, MacArthur began a running fight with the administration to get the men and equipment he said he needed to win. MacArthur argued then, as now, that the orient was a vital area that could not be ignored.

But he lost the battle, and the Pacific was by-passed for the greater priority flow of war strength to Europe. That defeat also left its mark on the general, to reappear years later in another—and final—controversy with another Democratic president.

MacArthur fought back in World War 2, with his famous leapfrog tactics, to the edge of the Philippines. These islands and their captured people had, in his mind, become his wards. The ragged war prisoners from his first army had become a cross around the neck of this sentimental man, and years later he wept publicly when he talked about them.

Called to Honolulu

Then the general was summoned to a Honolulu conference with President Roosevelt. He was to be told that the Philippines were to be bypassed; that his role in the war—and future history—was over.

But MacArthur talked his way back into destiny with a private speech to Roosevelt so persuasive that the president altered the path of war to include the re-invasion of the Philippines.

MacArthur was preparing plans for the invasion of Japan, which he was to command, when the Japanese capitulation ended the first major war of western powers against the Orient.

A third career opened for the general as supreme commander for the allied powers—the political emperor of beaten, floundering Japan.

With Bitter Memories

MacArthur came to the country with memories so bitter that he made Japan's surrender envoys use the code word "Bataan." But he exercised his dictatorship over the Japanese with such benevolence that his former enemies came to respect him with the type of reverence they formerly reserved for their emperor.

The general counted among his major accomplishments in Japan a stunning and important victory over communism—in a regimented country ripe for it.

Long before American official policy turned against the Kremlin, MacArthur blocked Soviet efforts to occupy—and thereby absorb—Hokkaido, Japan's northern most main island.

He fought Japanese Communists to a standstill with a mixture of force and propaganda. And when Japan became the major supply, staging and air base for the Korean war, not a single important instance of sabotage was reported.

Warned of Communism

For years before the Korean outbreak, MacArthur had warned against the surge of communism across Asia. The general and his key officers long considered they actually were at war with the Reds in this part of the world.

MacArthur privately bemoaned what he termed the needless loss of continental China to the Communists. He steadfastly maintained that China could have been held, with some western assistance wisely administered.

Part of his latter open bitterness against the U. S. State Department stemmed from the China war. It grew when the department wiped off Formosa, an island which MacArthur considered an absolute necessity for American defenses in the Far East.

MacArthur was 70 when the North Koreans struck last June. He was always mentally keen and alert; and so hard-working he denied himself holidays. But when combat challenged again, he seemed to lose 10 years and to seek action like an old fire horse.

In Field Three Days

MacArthur was in the field three days after the war started. He made periodic trips, and wore out younger staff officers journeying to the front, often within easy range of enemy fire.

The general had maintained consistently that Communist force must be opposed by force, wherever it arose. His influence probably was predominate in the swift mobilization of United Nations troops.

The first decision to bomb north of the 38th Parallel—the invisible boundary that military men think has been given too much importance—was made at a war conference in MacArthur's plane during a flight to Korea. I was present.

MacArthur asked his staff officers to find sufficient authority in his directives to take this step "without Washington hanging me."

Elated by Landing

The general was elated by the success of the brilliant Inchon landing last September. The North Korean army came apart, as he had predicted, and the war was considered almost over. MacArthur and his officers had thought the Chinese Communists would hit during the Inchon landing or not at all.

The Chinese attack was a profound shock. It turned a brilliant victory into a bitter holding war, the end of which is not yet in sight.

It was then that MacArthur began to show his pronounced, and fatal, impatience with the restraints under which he was obliged to fight.

It was then he began to demand political decision and to suggest widening the war.

MacArthur firmly believed that the entry of the Chinese had opened a new war that could be won only by the full use of western power.

"It's a cockeyed world," he once said to me. "We're in a shooting war here, and all our troops are going to Europe."

The general wrote all of his own statements and made his own decisions about releasing them. In his most recent comments, he probably was taking his favorite "calculated risk."

Doubtless, he expected some sort of reaction. But it seems unlikely that he intended to gamble the U.N. command that he valued so much by repeating what he said so consistently for a decade.

But as he made his statements, there must have been swirling in his memory the recollection of that other bloody peninsula which meant so much to him—Bataan.

The new law also requires that local laws, subject to public referendum, be published in official newspapers at least once a week for two weeks. The first publication must be within 10 days after the law is adopted.

One newspaper must be designated for each of the two predominant political parties in the county.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

The stock market ended last week in a very interesting position, and it may be informative to discuss the situation here. However, it is necessary to add that by the time this article appears in print stock prices may have altered their position and thereby have changed the picture. It is not often, of course, that a few days makes any marked difference in the market's outlook, but you will see what I am referring to as we discuss the situation.

First, let us establish the psychological proposition that the "little fellow"—the crowd that trades in small lots in the market—is seldom found to have been right in the speculative outlook.

From an examination of odd-lot transactions in the New York Stock Exchange in recent weeks and months two apparently paradoxical reflections of public speculation have become clearly marked. (Perhaps it would be well to insert the explanation that "odd-lot transactions" are those of less than 100 shares, and therefore are thought to reflect the opinions of the small traders—the public.)

We find from these small transactions that the public has been steadily buying stocks on balance (i.e., buying more shares than it has sold) during the past many weeks—since the first of the year.

When this occurs, particularly during a time when the prices of stocks have been rising or have held in a relatively high level, it is a strong suggestion that stocks "are passing from strong to weak hands," as they say in Wall Street. This type of public participation often marks the end of a long upward swing in prices, and suggests that sometime in the near future the market will turn down for a major downward swing of considerable proportions.

However, it should be noted that this does not necessarily mean that the market is ready NOW to shift into a bear market.

In fact, when we turn to another reflection of public participation, we find that quite the reverse is suggested for the near-term: a rapid up-thrust, but probably of short duration. Let me explain.

Among the odd-lot transactions reported in your newspapers is the figure of "odd-lot short sales." These are the shall orders for short-selling. They reflect the attitude of the "little fellow" in his in-and-out trading.

Within the last couple of weeks (prior to this week, that is) odd-lot short-sales have mounted to extraordinary proportions.

In other words, the small traders have been selling stocks short in anticipation of an immediate decline in the market.

Now, it very seldom, if ever, happens that the small traders are "right" in their guesses on the short-swing in the market. In many previous instances, when the odd-lot figures have shown an immediate jump in the short-sales, statistics, the stock market has leaped foward for a time, thus double-crossing the traders who expected a decline. (A short-seller has to "cover" his sales at prices less than those at which he sold, in order to make a profit. If he has to "buy in" at higher prices, he of course loses money.)

So, that was the paradoxical situation at the close of last week: In a broad outlook, the public has been bullish and buying stocks on balance; this for the longer term is a bearish indication. In the short view, however, the little traders have been selling short; this for the near-term is bullish.

If some outside influence—which we shall mention below—does not alter the situation, then, it might be expected that the stock market would rally upward from last week's levels (perhaps making "new highs") before completing its major "top area." I have stressed the "last week's level" because if the market were to rush straight up, without a hesitation, it conceivably could finish the upward spurt in a week's time, although a longer rally is more probable.

Now for the outside influence that could change the picture overnight.

The exceedingly grave political controversy between General MacArthur and the civilian officials of the United Nations—concerning the conduct of the Korean war—could lead to a shocking crisis at any moment. If, by some tragic twist of fate, the Korean war should develop into a full-scale Asia conflict (or suggest it were probable) stocks might have a severe fall. A general war is not expected, and any sudden shift toward a general war would undoubtedly 'cause a brief panic in Wall Street.

Flood Warning Plan Asked by Red Cross

Mrs. Anne Cragin, Red Cross disaster relief worker, has given her support to demands that a plan be worked out to give warning to flood area residents in event of a repetition of the flood of March 31 in the Esopus valley.

In a brief address at the meeting Tuesday noon of the Kingston Lions Club, Mrs. Cragin said that residents returning to their flood damaged homes "need some protection" that could be given by a plan for adequate warning. She added that Red Cross could have given more immediate and efficient aid, if their officials had been notified of an impending disaster, and urged that the Lions Club participate in a plan to establish a warning system.

Pershing Square, Los Angeles, became badder and badder as the type of population changed. The old, si-lent Robinson Crusoes, the tired, Iowa women come to the land of milk and honey and sunshine to live out their lives on the proceeds of their black land back home, died or were driven out.

Foreign types nudged in and the police noticed more and more wine-ohs, a horrible kind of drunk who goes nuts all of a sudden. The cry "Jesus Saves" might still be heard above the surf, but Pershing Square became a menace and when the garage is earthed under and cov-ered with sod, the new pattern will provide no forum in the strategic center but a fountain and lily-pond instead.

THE RUMINATOR

By HUMPHREY B. NEILL

A Column of Contrary Opinion

The stock market ended last week in a very interesting posi-tion, and it may be informative to discuss the situation here. How-ever, it is necessary to add that by the time this article appears in print stock prices may have al-tered their position and thereby have changed the picture. It is not often, of course, that a few days makes any marked difference in the market's outlook, but you will see what I am referring to as we discuss the situation.

First, let us establish the psy-chological proposition that the "little fellow"—the crowd that trades in small lots in the mar-ket—is seldom found to have been right in the speculative outlook.

From an examination of odd-lot transactions in the New York Stock Exchange in recent weeks and months two apparently para-doxical reflections of public specu-lation have become clearly marked. (Perhaps it would be well to in-sert the explanation that "odd-lot transactions" are those of less than 100 shares, and therefore are thought to reflect the opinions of the small traders—the public.)

We find from these small trans-actions that the public has been steadily buying stocks on balance (i.e., buying more shares than it has sold) during the past many weeks—since the first of the year.

When this occurs, particularly during a time when the prices of stocks have been rising or have held in a relatively high level, it is a strong suggestion that stocks "are passing from strong to weak hands," as they say in Wall Street. This type of public participation often marks the end of a long up-ward swing in prices, and suggests that sometime in the near future the market will turn down for a major downward swing of consid-erable proportions.

However, it should be noted that this does not necessarily mean that the market is ready NOW to shift into a bear market.

In fact, when we turn to an-other reflection of public partici-pation, we find that quite the re-verse is suggested for the near-term: a rapid up-thrust, but probably of short duration. Let me explain.

Among the odd-lot transactions reported in your newspapers is the figure of "odd-lot short sales." These are the shall orders for short-selling. They reflect the at-titude of the "little fellow" in his in-and-out trading.

Within the last couple of weeks (prior to this week, that is) odd-lot short-sales have mounted to extraordinary proportions.

In other words, the small traders have been selling stocks short in anticipation of an immediate de-cline in the market.

Now, it very seldom, if ever, happens that the small traders are "right" in their guesses on the short-swing in the market. In many previous instances, when the odd-lot figures have shown an im-mediate jump in the short-sales, statistics, the stock market has leaped foward for a time, thus double-crossing the traders who expected a decline. (A short-seller has to "cover" his sales at prices less than those at which he sold, in order to make a profit. If he has to "buy in" at higher prices, he of course loses money.)

So, that was the paradoxical situation at the close of last week: In a broad outlook, the public has been bullish and buying stocks on balance; this for the longer term is a bearish indication. In the short view, however, the little traders have been selling short; this for the near-term is bullish.

If some outside influence—which we shall mention below—does not alter the situation, then, it might be expected that the stock market would rally upward from last week's levels (perhaps making "new highs") before com-pleting its major "top area." I have stressed the "last week's level" because if the market were to rush straight up, without a hesitation, it conceivably could finish the upward spurt in a week's time, although a longer rally is more probable.

Now for the outside influence that could change the picture overnight.

The exceedingly grave political controversy between General Mac-Arthur and the civilian officials of the United Nations—concern-ing the conduct of the Korean war—could lead to a shocking crisis at any moment. If, by some tragic twist of fate, the Korean war should develop into a full-scale Asia conflict (or suggest it were probable) stocks might have a severe fall. A general war is not expected, and any sudden shift toward a general war would undoubtedly cause a brief panic in Wall Street.

Flood Warning Plan Asked by Red Cross

Mrs. Anne Cragin, Red Cross disaster relief worker, has given her support to demands that a plan be worked out to give warning to flood area residents in event of a repeti-tion of the flood of March 31 in the Esopus valley.

In a brief address at the meeting Tuesday noon of the Kingston Lions Club, Mrs. Cragin said that residents re-turning to their flood dam-aged homes "need some pro-tection" that could be given by a plan for adequate warn-ing. She added that Red Cross could have given more imme-diate and efficient aid, if their officials had been notified of an impending disaster, and urged that the Lions Club participate in a plan to estab-lish a warning system.

Child Health Conference

A child health conference conducted by the Ulster County Health Department will be held Tuesday, April 17, from 2 to 4 p. m. at 25 East O'Reilly street. These clinics are limited to infant and pre-school children for the purpose of improving child health through early recognition of defects and the administering of immunizations for smallpox, diphtheria, tetanus and whooping cough. The well-child clinics are for the maintenance of health and prevention of disease, not for the care of the sick child.

Second Talk in Series

"Spiritual Cells" is the second in a series of quiet talks on practical Christianity which will be given by the Rev. Arthur E. Oudemool at the Old First Reformed Church, Wall and Main streets, Thursday at 7:30 p. m. These talks are based on the remarkable experiences recorded in the New Testament that took place in the famous 50 days between Easter and Pentecost. The meetings are informal in character, friendly, practical, inter-racial, undenominational and free to all.

Kentucky has more miles of navigable river water than any other state in the Union.

Clinic Set Saturday

A clinic for immunizations against whooping cough, diphtheria, tetanus and smallpox will be conducted by the Ulster County Health Department, 15 Main street, Saturday from 9:30 a. m. to 11:30 a. m. These clinics serve those who may not otherwise secure these immunizations or for referral of patients by their physician.

Bench Warrant Issued for Schick

New York, April 11 (Special)—A bench warrant was ordered issued Tuesday to apprehend Edward J. Schick, Jr., of the Bronx, one of 11 defendants under indictment for operating at 25,000-gallon capacity still on a farm at West Shokan.

Another defendant, Sam Schifano, Jr., of New York, pleaded innocent before Judge Sidney Sugarman in U. S. District Court and was released in $1,000 bail for trial on April 30. Schick failed to appear in court.

The defendants allegedly defrauded the government of more than $1,000,000 in taxes by operating the unregistered still from April, 1949, until February 15, 1950, when the farm was raided by agents on the Alcohol Tax Unit and state police.

Anchor Found in Dry Lake

Lone Pine, Calif. (AP)—A century-old ship's anchor has been dug from the dry bottom of Owens Lake. The hand-forged, 400-pounder was probably lost by one of the clam-shell bottom boats that ferried silver ore across the lake for shipment by mule train to Los Angeles.

Winnipeg Building Boom

Winnipeg (AP) — Planned and actual building construction in Winnipeg reached $1,007,000 before the end of February with 179 buildings involved. The total in the same period last year was $683,700.

Sketches of Kingston in 1875

RES. OF JANSEN HASBROUCK, PRES. OF THE NATIONAL BANK OF RONDOUT, N.Y.

RESIDENCE OF WALTER B. CRANE RONDOUT, N.Y.

Included in the lithographic sketches appearing in the "County Atlas of Ulster," which was published in 1875 by Walker and Jewett of New York city, are a number of prominent homes. Here are reproductions of two of these homes.

The upper picture is the residence of Jansen Hasbrouck, president of the National Bank of Rondout, according to the cutline of 76 years ago.

This residence property on Mill street with frontage extending to The Strand was built in 1850 by Jansen Hasbrouck. Today this 101-year-old residence is occupied by Colonel and Mrs. C. Gordon Reel as a summer home.

The property remained in the Hasbrouck family until 1903 when it was purchased by Charles M. Preston and that family resided there for many years. Mrs. Preston lived here until she was 90 years old.

Mr. Preston prior to taking up residence in the Hasbrouck home on Mill street lived in the home shown in the lower picture and described as the residence of Walter B. Crane, Rondout. At the time Mr. Preston lived there he was state banking superintendent.

This now is the property of the Academy of St. Ursula, which is located in the Ponckhockie section of the city on Grove and Abruyn streets and The Strand.

Walter B. Crane was the grandfather of the late Walter P. Crane, who served the city as mayor and as postmaster.

Since taking over this property in September, 1925, the Academy has been greatly enlarged through the purchase of adjoining buildings and the erection of new structures.

The article appearing in The Freman on September 5, 1925, on the opening of the Academy here reads in part as follows:

St. Ursula Academy is conducted by the Society of St. Ursula of the Blessed Virgin, founded at Dole, France, in 1606 by the Venerable Anne de Xainctonge. Since that time the sisters have founded many academies and at present supervise institutions of learning in several countries of Europe.

Owing to the laws against religious teachers in France, these sisters were invited to this archdiocese by the late lamented Archbishop Corrigan. In answer to this invitation, Mother Helene Marie and two sisters came to New York in 1901 and began their work in the parish of Our Lady of Lourdes just then being founded by Monsignor Joseph H. McMahon. The sisters now conduct the Academy of Our Lady of Lourdes, Washington Heights, New York.

In order to enlarge their field of labor, the sisters are operating an Academy in Kingston. The location is an ideal one on a hill overlooking the Hudson. The site consists of the former Charles estate together with the adjoining corner property on Grove street. Many repairs and improvements are in progress in order to make the Academy as pleasant and complete as possible.

Paternity Leave Granted

New York (AP)—Maternity leave for employes is a routine benefit these days. But recently a large New York concern gave an employe a week's paternity leave. The man applied for leave, explaining that he and his wife were adopting a baby girl. He wanted to travel to the mid-west and bring the new baby home, he said, while his wife remained behind preparing their other child for the new arrival.

The "American Journal of Commerce" of the late 90's loaned me by Sara Osterhoudt of Mt. Marion, covers not only Kingston but other cities along the Hudson. There is a handsome sketch of the warehouse and salesrooms of the Hudson River Furniture Co., known to old timers as Gregory & Barnes, dealers in furniture, carpets, curtains and crockery at 661-663 Broadway. This business was founded by Messrs. John H. Gregory and Andrew N. Barnes, in 1884. The firm owned the fine double four-story and basement brick building in which they carried on a large business, both retail and wholesale. In the rear of the store was a two-story frame building, in which they manufactured and repaired all kinds of furniture. They had two telephones. Mr. Gregory was born in Kingston and was 40 years of age when the book was written. He was alderman for two years, and then city treasurer and also secretary of the Kingston Board of Trade. Mr. Barnes was director of the Board of Trade. He was also postmaster for 10 years, and alderman for two years. Some of the well known brands they handled at the time were: The Columbia Graphophone and Supply Co., the New Royal Sewing Machine Co., the Glen Echo Carpet Co., and the Gendron Baby Carriage Co. products. Perhaps some of the readers used those products at the time.

Ten Broeck's pharmacy at 322 Wall street, opposite St. John's Church is described in full. They said Chas. C. Ten Broeck was a licensed pharmacist, with certificate from the State Board of Pharmacy. "Besires carrying a full line of drugs and medicines, he deals in chemicals, perfumery, toilet and fancy articles, paints, oils, window glass, garden seeds, putty, etc., and is agent for the Sherwin-Williams ready mixed paints. Mr. Ten Broeck, who opened his drug store in 1890 is a member of the Board of Trade, and also Board of Education. He is vice president of the Kingston Drug Club and director of the Kingston National Bank. Also a member of the Holland Society of New York and past master of Kingston Lodge No. 10." He really must have been a very busy man. I wonder if he had any hobbies?

There is a handsome picture of Jacob W. Wurts, Esq., who was a leading insurance man of Kingston at 37 John street. He was in the State Assembly in 1874-75, and was supervisor for six years. No doubt in some way he must be connected with the naming of Wurts street.

Abram Bernstein is mentioned as being in the wine and liquor business since 1890. He carried a full line of whiskies, wines, brandies, gins and rums, in bottles and in wood, foreign and domestic. He was sole agent for Ulster county's "Clarke's Pure Rye," and Peoria's famous whiskey. He was an exempt fireman, having been a member of Wiltwyck Hook and Ladder Co. and served his time in Company B, 20th battalion, N.Y.S.M. He also had a side line of new and second hand pool tables, and carried in stock, cues, balls, cue tips, chalk, etc., and did all kinds of refitting and repairing of pool tables.

Urges New Yorkers To Join in Defense

Albany, April 11 (AP)—Governor Dewey urged New Yorkers today to take an active part in civil defense activities.

Dewey said in a statement that "it must now be abundantly clear to everyone that this nation is facing what will probably prove to be the greatest threat to its welfare, security and even its existence." He added:

"The most practical and personally rewarding way in which we can take action which may in some measure insure our survival is to take part actively in the civil defense activities throughout our state."

Dewey called attention, especially, to an eight-hour first aid course being conducted by the State Civil Defense Commission, the State Health Department and the State Medical Society.

He said the course in "'self help and neighbor help for the injured' gives everyone of us a chance to acquire the acknowledge and skills that will enable him to help himself, his family and his neighbor."

Thompson Quits OPS, Is Bitter

Washington, April 11 (AP)—A former governor of Georgia has quit his job as consultant to the Office of Price Stabilization with bitter charges that he was kept 12 weeks in complete idleness like "thousands upon thousands of others rendering no service on the public payroll."

No real effort has been made to stabilize prices, Thompson alleged. He said he is returning to his home at Valdosta, Ga.

He said he was carried on the payroll as a consultant for 12 weeks at a salary of $53.48 per day, plus expenses. "Yet," he added, "during this time I have been consulted about nothing . . . had no assignment to do anything."

Principal speaker at the recent 10th installation of officers of B'nai B'rith Men's Lodge and Women's Chapter stressed that the organization is dedicated to a better understanding of free peoples and the educating of both young and old to the meaning of true Americanism.

During his remarks, Harry Schectman, New York attorney, who served as installing officer, said, "It is more vital than ever that we teach the free people of this world what true Americanism is and this is the time to nip in the bud any subversive groups that are about to unleash their weapons of disloyalty against us."

Retiring officers gave resumes of projects carried on by B'nai B'rith along philanthropic and civic lines, and were presented with gifts of appreciation for their leadership.

Past Presidents Feted

After his report, Kalish received a past president's pin from his successor, Leon C. Miller, who lauded him for his leadership of B'nai B'rith, which he called important to the community as a Jewish organization.

Then the newlyweds took off in Kaiser's private plane for Miami, Fla., and a two-week honeymoon in Jamaica. Geer Refuses Answers

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Screen actor Will Geer said today it was all "ancient history" and refused to tell the House Un-American Activities Committee if he was or ever had been a Communist. The grey-haired, gum chewing witness, smilingly taking what he called the committee "hotseat," also stood on his constitutional privilege against answering questions which might tend to incriminate him. When Committee Counsel Frank Tavenner, Jr., asked Geer what he was doing in 1942, Geer grinned and said he was "campaigning for Wendell Wilkie"—the Republican presidential candidate.

Health Board Has Approved Use of Fluorides Here

The Ulster County Board of Health announced today that it has approved fluoridation of communal water supplies in Ulster county.

The board's action at a recent meeting followed announcement by the state health department last March 28 that the experiment in which Kingston and Newburgh had played part in the effort to curb tooth decay had been partially completed, and opened the way for use of fluoridation here.

Kingston was then praised by the state department for its part in refraining from use of the healthful substance in its water and serving as a "control," in the experiment of the two cities, as Newburgh used it.

Approved After Study

The county health board said it had reviewed the various aspects relating to fluoridation of public water supplies, and this resulted in their approval of its use in communal water supplies "in accordance with the regulations stipulated by the New York State Department of Health as regards its application."

The board's statement said:

"The decision as to whether or not such shall be done, as well as the method of financing, is the responsibility of each locality. Application for approval of a proposed fluoridation program and plans for specified fluoridation equipment will be considered by the Bureau of Environmental Sanitation of the New York State Department of Health in light of the overall aspects of the program, such being based upon the reliability of the operator, approved equipment, provisions for control tests, availability of an approved laboratory, and the sampling schedule provided by the health department in relation to control of application.

Know Requirements

"The various water boards, as well as those responsible for the actual operation of the communal water supplies in Ulster county, have been previously acquainted with these basic requirements and supplied with pertinent information as to equipment necessary in the application of fluorides.

"The personnel of the Health Department will be glad to consult further with any of the water boards as to further details involved should they be interested in fluoridation of their water supply."

Clark Is Elected By Tillson Vols

Edward R. Clark was elected president of the Tillson Volunteer Fire Company, Inc., at the annual meeting Tuesday night in the new fire house.

The following officers were also elected: William Braun, vice-president; James J. Burke, Sr., recording secretary; Hollis E. Harvey, financial secretary; Inman Wood, treasurer; Frank Minnikine, chief engineer; Raymond DuBois, deputy chief engineer; Walter Born, captain; and Ronald Lord, lieutenant.

Delegates to conventions will be Roy Van Keuren and James J. Burke, Sr. The following trustees were elected: William Menzel, three years; Walter Born, two years, and Joseph Engert, one year.

Exemption certificates were presented to Christian Zimmer, Albert Hoyt, Frank Minnikine, Roy Van Keuren and Herman Osmers.

Following the election, a demonstration of various types of fire extinguishers was given by a representative of the Power-Pak Manufacturing Company. It was decided to undertake a fire prevention campaign and to sell such extinguishers to home owners in the Tillson district. Frank Minnikine was appointed chairman of the various teams to be formed to act as salesmen during the campaign.

All firemen who can be at the fire house Sunday are requested to be there at 8 a. m. in order to complete the work on the floor.

Two grass fires were reported in the district during the past month.

Farm Mortgage Reduction

The average U. S. farm was mortgaged to about 20 per cent of its value before World War 2, but averaged only eight and one-half per cent of its value in mortgage in 1950.

Financial and Commercial

New York, April 11 (AP)—General MacArthur's dismissal jolted the stock market down today but it later recovered a considerable portion of its loss.

Selling at the start of trading brought on losses running to around $2 a share, but within the first hour a recovery movement wiped out about half of the losses.

That left the list down by a few cents to a little more than $1 a share with declines of $2 or more infrequent.

Trading volume was heavy in the beginning, and then the pace eased a bit, but total trading still was among the heaviest of recent weeks.

Wall Street's reaction to President Truman's decision was cautious but bearish.

The reasoning in Wall Street went like this—a cease fire in Korea may be nearer than at first thought possible, and the chances of war spreading now may be lessened; therefore, a slow-down in American rearmament may be possible and inflationary pressures will diminish.

Thinking in that manner, Wall Street could see shrinking sales and earnings in industry and business.

Educator Dies

Salt Lake City, April 11 (AP)—Dr. George Thomas, 84, former president of University of Utah and one of the west's outstanding educators, died in a hospital here today.

GOP for Impeachments . . .

afternoon to talk over the MacArthur matter.

Before the House met, both Senate and House G.O.P. leaders huddled in Martin's office.

Afterwards, Martin issued a statement in which he said, among other things, that "the question of possible impeachments was discussed."

Martin was asked about use of the plural "impeachments."

The plural was correct, Martin replied.

Asked whether the subject of impeachments applied to anyone in particular, Martin said it applied to anyone "who has transgressed."

Martin let it stand at that.

The plain implication, however, was that they felt an impeachment move might be warranted against President Truman, Secretary of State Acheson and possibly others in the Democratic administration.

Trial for Removal

Impeachment is, in effect, trial for removal from office. The mechanics are this: The House must adopt a resolution of impeachment. The Senate then sits as a court to try the impeachment charges.

When the House itself convened at 11 a. m. (E.S.T.), Martin asked for a two-hour recess so Republican members could hold a caucus about MacArthur. Martin failed to get it over Democratic opposition.

Most of the Capitol Hill split over the MacArthur removal was along party lines. For the most part, the Democrats were quick to line up in support of Mr. Truman's action.

Allies Erase . . .

can, British and Turkish troops scored new gains.

On the central front, American troops drove along the southern shores of Hwachon reservoir toward the big dam and power grid. Censorship obscured their progress.

No Ground Action Reports

On the east coast where South Korean troops had thrust about 15 miles north of the border, there were no reports of ground action. Allied ships pounded rail lines and roads.

South Korea was virtually free of Communist troops. The last major pocket of Reds was holding out west of the Imjin river on the extreme western front.

Chorwon, western anchor of the Red buildup area, was the headquarters of three Chinese Army Corps. Field dispatches said it was completely destroyed. American artillery opened up on it for the first time three days ago.

Is Eastern Base

Hwachon, seven miles north of Parallel 38, was the eastern base of the Communist buildup area. Intelligence reports placed nearly one-half million Communist combat troops in the Chorwon-Hwachon-Kumhwa triangle.

Military censorship obscured details of the fighting in the Hwachon sector. There were reports the Reds were pulling back across the huge reservoir in boats and digging in on the north bank.

Wednesday's most substantial gains were made in the west.

Turkish troops crossed the Hantan river and pushed northward. British infantrymen punched ahead northeast of Yongong.

American troops forged across the Imjin river south and southwest of Yonchon, which apparently was abandoned by the Reds. It is six air miles north of 38.

There was bloody fighting near Yongong, on the western front. The Reds hurled mortar fire into an American unit and were pounded in turn by American artillery. Two American infantry attacks failed to rout the Chinese.

Three Defendants Will Seek Trials In County Court

Three defendants announced in County Court this morning when their cases were called by District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn, that they would seek trial.

An application was made to put the Victor Beatty burglary and unlawful entry case over the term on the grounds a witness was not available to the defendant. Judge Cashin however set the case down for Friday at 10 o'clock after District Attorney Bruhn said he would check on the availability of the witness, a co-defendant. Charles Saccoman, counsel for Beatty, asked the case go over but was instructed to be ready for trial since the case is a bail case and had once before been put over. Beatty, who is unable to walk because of leg injuries, was carried to court by attendants.

Carson Emberson, Jr., charged with grand larceny, also represented by Charles Saccoman, had his case set down for trial Monday at 10 o'clock following the Beatty case.

Clinton Gardner, charged with escape from jail, was represented by Howard St. John. He also asked for a trial and the case was set down for Tuesday, April 17, to follow the Emberson case.

All three defendants are confined to jail and Judge Cashin said he intended to give the defendants an opportunity to a trial.

Thompson Quits OPS, Is Bitter

Washington, April 11 (AP)—A former governor of Georgia has quit his job as consultant to the Office of Price Stabilization with bitter charges that he was kept 12 weeks in complete idleness like "thousands upon thousands of others rendering no service on the public payroll."

No real effort has been made to stabilize prices, Thompson alleged. He said he is returning to his home at Valdosta, Ga.

He said he was carried on the payroll as a consultant for 12 weeks at a salary of $53.48 per day, plus expenses. "Yet," he added, "during this time I have been consulted about nothing . . . had no assignment to do anything."

Geer Refuses Answers

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Screen actor Will Geer said today it was all "ancient history" and refused to tell the House Un-American Activities Committee if he was or ever had been a Communist. The grey-haired, gum chewing witness, smilingly taking what he called the committee "hotseat," also stood on his constitutional privilege against answering questions which might tend to incriminate him. When Committee Counsel Frank Tavenner, Jr., asked Geer what he was doing in 1942, Geer grinned and said he was "campaigning for Wendell Wilkie"—the Republican presidential candidate.

Health Board Has Approved Use of Fluorides Here

The Ulster County Board of Health announced today that it has approved fluoridation of communal water supplies in Ulster county.

The board's action at a recent meeting followed announcement by the state health department last March 28 that the experiment in which Kingston and Newburgh had played part in the effort to curb tooth decay had been partially completed, and opened the way for use of fluoridation here.

Kingston was then praised by the state department for its part in refraining from use of the healthful substance in its water and serving as a "control," in the experiment of the two cities, as Newburgh used it.

Approved After Study

The county health board said it had reviewed the various aspects relating to fluoridation of public water supplies, and this resulted in their approval of its use in accordance with the regulations stipulated by the New York State Department of Health as regards its application."

The board's statement said:

"The decision as to whether or not such shall be done, as well as the method of financing, is the responsibility of each locality. Application for approval of a proposed fluoridation program and plans for specified fluoridation equipment will be considered by the Bureau of Environmental Sanitation of the New York State Department of Health in light of the overall aspects of the program, such being based upon the reliability of the operator, approved equipment, provisions for control tests, availability of an approved laboratory, and the sampling schedule provided by the health department in relation to control of application.

Know Requirements

"The various water boards, as well as those responsible for the actual operation of the communal water supplies in Ulster county, have been previously acquainted with these basic requirements and supplied with pertinent information as to equipment necessary in the application of fluorides.

"The personnel of the Health Department will be glad to consult further with any of the water boards as to further details involved should they be interested in fluoridation of their water supply."

Clark Is Elected By Tillson Vols

Edward R. Clark was elected president of the Tillson Volunteer Fire Company, Inc., at the annual meeting Tuesday night in the new fire house.

The following officers were also elected: William Braun, vice-president; James J. Burke, Sr., recording secretary; Hollis E. Harvey, financial secretary; Inman Wood, treasurer; Frank Minnikine, chief engineer; Raymond DuBois, deputy chief engineer; Walter Born, captain; and Ronald Lord, lieutenant.

Delegates to conventions will be Roy Van Keuren and James J. Burke, Sr. The following trustees were elected: William Menzel, three years; Walter Born, two years, and Joseph Engert, one year.

Exemption certificates were presented to Christian Zimmer, Albert Hoyt, Frank Minnikine, Roy Van Keuren and Herman Osmers.

Following the election, a demonstration of various types of fire extinguishers was given by a representative of the Power-Pak Manufacturing Company. It was decided to undertake a fire prevention campaign and to sell such extinguishers to home owners in the Tillson district. Frank Minnikine was appointed chairman of the various teams to be formed to act as salesmen during the campaign.

All firemen who can be at the fire house Sunday are requested to be there at 8 a. m. in order to complete the work on the floor.

Two grass fires were reported in the district during the past month.

Farm Mortgage Reduction

The average U. S. farm was mortgaged to about 20 per cent of its value before World War 2, but averaged only eight and one-half per cent of its value in mortgage in 1950.

Financial and Commercial

New York, April 11 (AP)—General MacArthur's dismissal jolted the stock market down today but it later recovered a considerable portion of its loss.

Selling at the start of trading brought on losses running to around $2 a share, but within the first hour a recovery movement wiped out about half of the losses.

That left the list down by a few cents to a little more than $1 a share with declines of $2 or more infrequent.

Trading volume was heavy in the beginning, and then the pace eased a bit, but total trading still was among the heaviest of recent weeks.

Wall Street's reaction to President Truman's decision was cautious but bearish.

The reasoning in Wall Street went like this—a cease fire in Korea may be nearer than at first thought possible, and the chances of war spreading now may be lessened; therefore, a slow-down in American rearmament may be possible and inflationary pressures will diminish.

Thinking in that manner, Wall Street could see shrinking sales and earnings in industry and business.

Educator Dies

Salt Lake City, April 11 (AP)—Dr. George Thomas, 84, former president of University of Utah and one of the west's outstanding educators, died in a hospital here today.

GOP for Impeachments . . .

afternoon to talk over the MacArthur matter.

Before the House met, both Senate and House G.O.P. leaders huddled in Martin's office.

Afterwards, Martin issued a statement in which he said, among other things, that "the question of possible impeachments was discussed."

Martin was asked about use of the plural "impeachments."

The plural was correct, Martin replied.

Asked whether the subject of impeachments applied to anyone in particular, Martin said it applied to anyone "who has transgressed."

Martin let it stand at that.

The plain implication, however, was that they felt an impeachment move might be warranted against President Truman, Secretary of State Acheson and possibly others in the Democratic administration.

Trial for Removal

Impeachment is, in effect, trial for removal from office. The mechanics are this: The House must adopt a resolution of impeachment. The Senate then sits as a court to try the impeachment charges.

When the House itself convened at 11 a. m. (E.S.T.), Martin asked for a two-hour recess so Republican members could hold a caucus about MacArthur. Martin failed to get it over Democratic opposition.

Most of the Capitol Hill split over the MacArthur removal was along party lines. For the most part, the Democrats were quick to line up in support of Mr. Truman's action.

Allies Erase . . .

can, British and Turkish troops scored new gains.

On the central front, American troops drove along the southern shores of Hwachon reservoir toward the big dam and power grid. Censorship obscured their progress.

No Ground Action Reports

On the east coast where South Korean troops had thrust about 15 miles north of the border, there were no reports of ground action. Allied ships pounded rail lines and roads.

South Korea was virtually free of Communist troops. The last major pocket of Reds was holding out west of the Imjin river on the extreme western front.

Chorwon, western anchor of the Red buildup area, was the headquarters of three Chinese Army Corps. Field dispatches said it was completely destroyed. American artillery opened up on it for the first time three days ago.

Is Eastern Base

Hwachon, seven miles north of Parallel 38, was the eastern base of the Communist buildup area. Intelligence reports placed nearly one-half million Communist combat troops in the Chorwon-Hwachon-Kumhwa triangle.

Military censorship obscured details of the fighting in the Hwachon sector. There were reports the Reds were pulling back across the huge reservoir in boats and digging in on the north bank.

Wednesday's most substantial gains were made in the west.

Turkish troops crossed the Hantan river and pushed northward. British infantrymen punched ahead northeast of Yongong.

American troops forged across the Imjin river south and southwest of Yonchon, which apparently was abandoned by the Reds. It is six air miles north of 38.

There was bloody fighting near Yongong, on the western front. The Reds hurled mortar fire into an American unit and were pounded in turn by American artillery. Two American infantry attacks failed to rout the Chinese.

Three Defendants Will Seek Trials In County Court

Three defendants announced in County Court this morning when their cases were called by District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn, that they would seek trial.

An application was made to put the Victor Beatty burglary and unlawful entry case over the term on the grounds a witness was not available to the defendant. Judge Cashin however set the case down for Friday at 10 o'clock after District Attorney Bruhn said he would check on the availability of the witness, a co-defendant. Charles Saccoman, counsel for Beatty, asked the case go over but was instructed to be ready for trial since the case is a bail case and had once before been put over. Beatty, who is unable to walk because of leg injuries, was carried to court by attendants.

Carson Emberson, Jr., charged with grand larceny, also represented by Charles Saccoman, had his case set down for trial Monday at 10 o'clock following the Beatty case.

Clinton Gardner, charged with escape from jail, was represented by Howard St. John. He also asked for a trial and the case was set down for Tuesday, April 17, to follow the Emberson case.

All three defendants are confined to jail and Judge Cashin said he intended to give the defendants an opportunity to a trial.

Thompson Quits OPS, Is Bitter

Washington, April 11 (AP)—A former governor of Georgia has quit his job as consultant to the Office of Price Stabilization with bitter charges that he was kept 12 weeks in complete idleness like "thousands upon thousands of others rendering no service on the public payroll."

No real effort has been made to stabilize prices, Thompson alleged. He said he is returning to his home at Valdosta, Ga.

Past Presidents Feted

After his report, Kalish received a past president's pin from his successor, Leon C. Miller, who lauded him for his leadership of B'nai B'rith, which he called important to the community as a Jewish organization.

Geer Refuses Answers

Washington, April 11 (AP)—Screen actor Will Geer said today it was all "ancient history" and refused to tell the House Un-American Activities Committee if he was or ever had been a Communist. The grey-haired, gum chewing witness, smilingly taking what he called the committee "hotseat," also stood on his constitutional privilege against answering questions which might tend to incriminate him. When Committee Counsel Frank Tavenner, Jr., asked Geer what he was doing in 1942, Geer grinned and said he was "campaigning for Wendell Wilkie"—the Republican presidential candidate.

Health Board Has Approved Use of Fluorides Here

The Ulster County Board of Health announced today that it has approved fluoridation of communal water supplies in Ulster county.

The board's action at a recent meeting followed announcement by the state health department last March 28 that the experiment in which Kingston and Newburgh had played part in the effort to curb tooth decay had been partially completed, and opened the way for use of fluoridation here.

Kingston was then praised by the state department for its part in refraining from use of the healthful substance in its water and serving as a "control," in the experiment of the two cities, as Newburgh used it.

Approved After Study

The county health board said it had reviewed the various aspects relating to fluoridation of public water supplies, and this resulted in their approval of its use in communal water supplies "in accordance with the regulations stipulated by the New York State Department of Health as regards its application."

The board's statement said:

"The decision as to whether or not such shall be done, as well as the method of financing, is the responsibility of each locality. Application for approval of a proposed fluoridation program and plans for specified fluoridation equipment will be considered by the Bureau of Environmental Sanitation of the New York State Department of Health in light of the overall aspects of the program, such being based upon the reliability of the operator, approved equipment, provisions for control tests, availability of an approved laboratory, and the sampling schedule provided by the health department in relation to control of application.

Know Requirements

"The various water boards, as well as those responsible for the actual operation of the communal water supplies in Ulster county, have been previously acquainted with these basic requirements and supplied with pertinent information as to equipment necessary in the application of fluorides.

"The personnel of the Health Department will be glad to consult further with any of the water boards as to further details involved should they be interested in fluoridation of their water supply."

Clark Is Elected By Tillson Vols

Edward R. Clark was elected president of the Tillson Volunteer Fire Company, Inc., at the annual meeting Tuesday night in the new fire house.

The following officers were also elected: William Braun, vice-president; James J. Burke, Sr., recording secretary; Hollis E. Harvey, financial secretary; Inman Wood, treasurer; Frank Minnikine, chief engineer; Raymond DuBois, deputy chief engineer; Walter Born, captain; and Ronald Lord, lieutenant.

Delegates to conventions will be Roy Van Keuren and James J. Burke, Sr. The following trustees were elected: William Menzel, three years; Walter Born, two years, and Joseph Engert, one year.

Exemption certificates were presented to Christian Zimmer, Albert Hoyt, Frank Minnikine, Roy Van Keuren and Herman Osmers.

Following the election, a demonstration of various types of fire extinguishers was given by a representative of the Power-Pak Manufacturing Company. It was decided to undertake a fire prevention campaign and to sell such extinguishers to home owners in the Tillson district. Frank Minnikine was appointed chairman of the various teams to be formed to act as salesmen during the campaign.

All firemen who can be at the fire house Sunday are requested to be there at 8 a. m. in order to complete the work on the floor.

Two grass fires were reported in the district during the past month.

Farm Mortgage Reduction

The average U. S. farm was mortgaged to about 20 per cent of its value before World War 2, but averaged only eight and one-half per cent of its value in mortgage in 1950.

Financial and Commercial

New York, April 11 (AP)—General MacArthur's dismissal jolted the stock market down today but it later recovered a considerable portion of its loss.

Selling at the start of trading brought on losses running to around $2 a share, but within the first hour a recovery movement wiped out about half of the losses.

That left the list down by a few cents to a little more than $1 a share with declines of $2 or more infrequent.

Trading volume was heavy in the beginning, and then the pace eased a bit, but total trading still was among the heaviest of recent weeks.

Wall Street's reaction to President Truman's decision was cautious but bearish.

The reasoning in Wall Street went like this—a cease fire in Korea may be nearer than at first thought possible, and the chances of war spreading now may be lessened; therefore, a slow-down in American rearmament may be possible and inflationary pressures will diminish.

Thinking in that manner, Wall Street could see shrinking sales and earnings in industry and business.

Educator Dies

Salt Lake City, April 11 (AP)—Dr. George Thomas, 84, former president of University of Utah and one of the west's outstanding educators, died in a hospital here today.

GOP for Impeachments . . .

afternoon to talk over the MacArthur matter.

Before the House met, both Senate and House G.O.P. leaders huddled in Martin's office.

Afterwards, Martin issued a statement in which he said, among other things, that "the question of possible impeachments was discussed."

Martin was asked about use of the plural "impeachments."

The plural was correct, Martin replied.

Asked whether the subject of impeachments applied to anyone in particular, Martin said it applied to anyone "who has transgressed."

Martin let it stand at that.

The plain implication, however, was that they felt an impeachment move might be warranted against President Truman, Secretary of State Acheson and possibly others in the Democratic administration.

Trial for Removal

Impeachment is, in effect, trial for removal from office. The mechanics are this: The House must adopt a resolution of impeachment. The Senate then sits as a court to try the impeachment charges.

When the House itself convened at 11 a. m. (E.S.T.), Martin asked for a two-hour recess so Republican members could hold a caucus about MacArthur. Martin failed to get it over Democratic opposition.

Most of the Capitol Hill split over the MacArthur removal was along party lines. For the most part, the Democrats were quick to line up in support of Mr. Truman's action.

Allies Erase . . .

can, British and Turkish troops scored new gains.

On the central front, American troops drove along the southern shores of Hwachon reservoir toward the big dam and power grid. Censorship obscured their progress.

No Ground Action Reports

On the east coast where South Korean troops had thrust about 15 miles north of the border, there were no reports of ground action. Allied ships pounded rail lines and roads.

South Korea was virtually free of Communist troops. The last major pocket of Reds was holding out west of the Imjin river on the extreme western front.

Chorwon, western anchor of the Red buildup area, was the headquarters of three Chinese Army Corps. Field dispatches said it was completely destroyed. American artillery opened up on it for the first time three days ago.

Is Eastern Base

Hwachon, seven miles north of Parallel 38, was the eastern base of the Communist buildup area. Intelligence reports placed nearly one-half million Communist combat troops in the Chorwon-Hwachon-Kumhwa triangle.

Military censorship obscured details of the fighting in the Hwachon sector. There were reports the Reds were pulling back across the huge reservoir in boats and digging in on the north bank.

Wednesday's most substantial gains were made in the west.

Turkish troops crossed the Hantan river and pushed northward. British infantrymen punched ahead northeast of Yongong.

American troops forged across the Imjin river south and southwest of Yonchon, which apparently was abandoned by the Reds. It is six air miles north of 38.

There was bloody fighting near Yongong, on the western front. The Reds hurled mortar fire into an American unit and were pounded in turn by American artillery. Two American infantry attacks failed to rout the Chinese.

Three Defendants Will Seek Trials In County Court

Three defendants announced in County Court this morning when their cases were called by District Attorney Louis G. Bruhn, that they would seek trial.

An application was made to put the Victor Beatty burglary and unlawful entry case over the term on the grounds a witness was not available to the defendant. Judge Cashin however set the case down for Friday at 10 o'clock after District Attorney Bruhn said he would check on the availability of the witness, a co-defendant. Charles Saccoman, counsel for Beatty, asked the case go over but was instructed to be ready for trial since the case is a bail case and had once before been put over. Beatty, who is unable to walk because of leg injuries, was carried to court by attendants.

Carson Emberson, Jr., charged with grand larceny, also represented by Charles Saccoman, had his case set down for trial Monday at 10 o'clock following the Beatty case.

Clinton Gardner, charged with escape from jail, was represented by Howard St. John. He also asked for a trial and the case was set down for Tuesday, April 17, to follow the Emberson case.

All three defendants are confined to jail and Judge Cashin said he intended to give the defendants an opportunity to a trial.

Card Sleuth Works In Devious Ways

By OSWALD JACOBY
Written for NEA Service

If you look at dummy's clubs in the hand shown today, you might wonder why South should bother to play the suit four times. The reason he did so, curiously enough, was to find out how to play the diamonds. This sounds like a foolish answer to a foolish question, but it really makes good sense.

West opened the king of hearts and properly decided to shift to a trump at the second trick. Dummy won, and declarer returned a club from dummy to finesse the jack. He was sure that East did not have the ace of clubs since East's pass of one heart showed a hopelessly weak hand, but it was possible that East had the queen of clubs.

As it happened, of course, West won with the queen of clubs and returned his other trump. Dummy won and led a club, West winning with the ace. West's only safe exit was a club, and South ruffed and drew East's last trump.

Now South led a low diamond and won a finesse with dummy's ten. Then he led dummy's last club and ruffed in his own hand. Having done so, he knew how to play the diamonds.

The point was that South wanted to lead a low diamond from his hand on the second round of that suit if West had begun with only two diamonds. However, if West had begun with three diamonds, South wanted to lead the queen of diamonds for the second round of that suit.

When West followed to four rounds of clubs, he was fairly well marked with only two diamonds. West would have opened the bidding with one club rather than with one heart if he had two four-card suits. Hence West was marked with five hearts, four clubs, two trumps, and exactly two diamonds.

Acting on this information, South led his low diamond to dummy's ace. West's king fell, and South was able to make his game contract by winning tricks with the queen and jack of diamonds.

Card Sleuth Works In Devious Ways

By OSWALD JACOBY

If you look at dummy's clubs in the hand shown today, you might wonder why South should bother to play the suit four times. The reason he did so, curiously enough, was to find out how to play the diamonds. This sounds like a foolish answer to a foolish question, but it really makes good sense.

West opened the king of hearts and properly decided to shift to a trump at the second trick. Dummy won, and declarer returned a club from dummy to finesse the jack. He was sure that East did not have the ace of clubs since East's pass of one heart showed a hopelessly weak hand, but it was possible that East had the queen of clubs.

As it happened, of course, West won with the queen of clubs and returned his other trump. Dummy won and led a club, West winning with the ace. West's only safe exit was a club, and South ruffed and drew East's last trump.

Now South led a low diamond

Iranian Heard By Lions Club at Weekly Luncheon

The American individual can and should supplement his government's Voice of America program in advertising his country and its way of life, a member of the Iranian foreign service said at a luncheon meeting of the Kingston Lions Club on Tuesday.

Ahmed Mehbod, who has been granted a leave of absence from the foreign service to accept a fellowship at George Washington University, indicated that individual contacts between nations can, because of their informal and non-governmental nature, accomplish much in promoting good relations that the government's "Voice" cannot.

As an illustration, he cited the successful letter-writing campaign of two years ago in which persons of Italian descent in this country influenced their friends and relatives in Italy to vote against communism.

Pointing to the first objective of Lions International, Mehbod urged the Lions Club to take the lead in this type of advertising. The first objective reads:

"To create and foster a spirit of generous consideration among the peoples of the world through a study of the problems of international relationships."

Specific recommendations were made by the speaker. He urged the Lions Club through its president to write to the prime ministers of such countries as Iran, Turkey and Greece and express the members' belief in the American system.

Would Send Promotions

He urged the Lions to send promotional folders such as those published by the Chamber of Commerce to the various societies abroad, like the Iranian-American Society, and to request similar material in return. This material from foreign countries, he said, could be displayed in the public library, so that the members of the community would have access to information about other countries.

He also asked that an accompanying letter to these societies include a list of all local club members with their businesses and interests, so that these members could correspond with persons of similar business affiliations and interests in foreign lands.

This simple, inexpensive action would snowball into something big, he predicted. The Kingston Lions Club might start out by concentrating on one foreign community; the Milton Lions Club would "adopt" another community; and soon the Chicago Lions Club would be doing the same thing, and others would follow along.

Newspapers would spread the idea further by printing news and pictures of this type of correspondence, he predicted, on both sides of the ocean.

Should Become Acquainted

Mehbod's second point in his talk delivered at the Governor Clinton Hotel was that Americans should become more acquainted with their own country and should better appreciate their heritage. In his five and a half years in this country, he said, "I have come across many Americans who do not appreciate what they have."

Pointing out the value of advertising to any business, Mehbod said, "If you would like to continue your business, your existence as a nation, you have to advertise on a larger scale. The governmen is doing its share through the Voice of America, but that is only government. You don't do anything yourself."

He warned that this program he recommended is not something to be filed away for future action. "We don't have too much time to waste," he said.

Educated in London

Mehbod was educated in London, at the University of Berlin, and at the Sorbonne in Paris, where he took his bachelor's and master's degrees. He was admitted to the bar in Iran, and for two years edited the Iranian daily newspaper, "Justice." He was a member of the central committee of the Justice Party and later secretary general of that party. He graduated from the Iranian Military Academy and served on the general staff as a lieutenant. He was relieved from army duty to join the foreign service. At various times he was private secretary to the foreign minister, and the minister of foreign affairs, first secretary at the Iranian Embassy in Washington and consulate general for Iran in New York city, and a member of the Iran delegation to the United Nations. He is now on leave of absence and is working on a book under a fellowship from George Washington University. He is doing his work on a farm, the Villa Persia, near Lattintown, where he lives with his wife and two children. He was introduced by Carl Schenck of the Lions Club.

Truman Fires . . .

Martin (Mass.) the letter endorsing Martin's idea of using Chinese Nationist troops on Formosa to open a "second front" against Red Chmina, and adding his own conviction that Asia rather than Europe is the critical theatre of conflict with world communism, Martin released the letter last week.

There was also an exchange of messages between the joint chiefs of staff and MacArthur on the question of arming Korean troops. This showed MacArthur raising a serious question whether more Koreans should be armed in view of weapons needs for the developing Japanese police.

Thus the White House sought to meet a MacArthur statement last week-end that the recent release of 120,000 South Koreans from military units was the result of a policy decision made in Washington and beyond his power to control.

Two Events Decisive

While the Truman administrations' feud with MacArthur goes back many months, two events apparently were decisive in bringing on the showdown. One was the general's 38th Parallel statement, in which he not only invited Red peace talks but also implied the United Nations might alter their policies and attack Red China.

This set tempers rising in allied capitals here and abroad. For not only did the policy makers have no intention of expanding the war, but as the messages now released show, they were planning their own much less belligerent bid to peace. Once MacArthur had spoken this was scrapped.

The second incident was the MacArthur letter to Martin. Martin is a leader of the President's Republican opposition; he used the letter in attacking the presidentially sponsored Universal Military Training Bill in the House.

Begins Conferring

That was last Thursday. Almost immediately Mr. Truman began conferring with Secretary of Defense Marshall, Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and other advisers on whether he should fire MacArthur and if so, how.

The President is understood to have been cautioned in these conferences that if he did act so drastically he would face a political battle of staggering proportions. His advisers believed MacArthur's return here would set off another "great debate," this time over Far Eastern strategy instead of European defense.

That Mr. Truman accepted this view and went into the fight swinging from the first moment is indicated by the fact that he went to the extraordinary length of releasing military orders and messages of a type which normally a government never makes public.

It is authoritatively understood that either the President or Secretary of State Acheson, perhaps both, may now follow up with public statements or speeches designed to clarify Korean war aims and restate the limits and direction of American policies in Korea.

Suggestions Rejected

The President rejected suggestions, which had been given wide currency yesterday, that for the time being he adopt a middle course— between the extremes of ignoring what MacArthur had done or firing him. He evidently preferred the view of some of his most responsible advisers that he was caught in a terrible dilemma from which he could remove himself only by a major operation.

The nature of the dilemma, as privately described by these officials was this: MacArthur had shown by ignoring several directives that he did not intend to stop publicly preaching his ideas. But what he was advocating was contrary to United States government policy. He has enormous public prestige and strong political backing. If he was fired, it might split the country; but if he was not fired it might split the U.N. coalition which was afraid MacArthur would get the United States involved in a big war in the Far East.

Britain Is Sensitive

Britain has been particularly sensitive about MacArthur's statements because British leaders cling to the hope that the Chinese Communists will listen to reason and negotiate a peace: But Canada and other countries have been almost equally critical of the man who exercised command over their troops.

Hence in the statement set forth in official language the reasons for his action, Mr. Truman laid heavy stress on the requirement, as he sees it, that military commanders stick to their orders.

"Full and vigorous debate on matters of national policy," the statement said, "is a vital element in the constitutional system of our free democracy. It is fundamental, however, that military commanders must be governed by the policies and directives issued to them in the manner provided by our laws and constitution. In time of crisis, this consideration is particularly compelling."

President Pays Tribute

Then the President paid tribute to the general:

"General MacArthur's place in history as one of our greatest commanders is fully established. The nation owes him a debt of gratitude for the distinguished and exceptional service which he has rendered his country in posts of great responsibility. For that reason I repeat my regret at the necessity for the action I feel compelled to take in his case."

The combination of praise and censure in the President's statement has been characteristic of his relations with MacArthur, especially since the Korean war started last June.

One of the first incidents came when Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, leader of the Nationalists on Formosa, offered 33,000 troops to fight in Korea. The State Department turned him down on the ground they were needed for the defense of the island, and the Joint Chiefs of Staff instructed MacArthur to see what Chiang needed to build up his military equipment.

MacArthur Went Personally

Instead of sending a representative, MacArthur went personally. This alarmed the British and outraged the Indians, whom the State Department was then trying to win over. Both Britain and India recognized the Chinese Reds, and while they were split with Washington on that point, Washington was seeking to minimize the differences.

Special Presidential Assistant W. Averell Harriman was sent to Tokyo to brief MacArthur on Formosa policy and relations with the British, Indians and others. Mr. Truman hoped the general would not get out of step with him again.

Came VFW Meeting

Came the Veterans of Foreign Wars meeting in Chicago last October. MacArthur sent a message advocating that the United States secure Formosa for its island defense chain against Red China, and also developing his ideas on the importance of a strong-handed policy in Asia. The administration dissented strongly and Mr. Truman ordered MacArthur to suppress the statement. It had been widely distributed, however, and was published.

A happy interlude from the President's point of view came when he flew to Wake Island to meet the general. According to reports later, he was charmed by the dynamic MacArthur with his informal dress, his grandly dramatic manner and his gift for prose with an Old Testament thunder in it.

Foreign governments were critical when MacArthur pushed up into North Korea toward the Manchurian border in the fall. India warned this would bring Communist China into the war. But at that time Washington and MacArthur seemed largely in agreement. Then the Chinese Communists hit and the whole nature of the war changed.

Fighting Different Enemy

MacArthur began pointing out in public statements that he was fighting a different enemy from the North Korean Communists. The State Department and the White House apparently supported his right to do this, even when he began emphasizing heavily that his lack of authority to bomb Red bases in Manchuria constituted an enormous handicap "without precedent in military operations."

That eventually developed into a virtual demand that he be given authority to fight the war on a wider scale than he had been able to do under standing United Nations directives and orders from the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The struggle thus developed led up to the latest exchange and the dismissal.

Administration officials did not appear to feel that the order relieving him of his command would fall upon MacArthur as a crushing blow, blighting his career within a few months of what would have been its ceremonial end with the completion of a Japanese peace treaty.

Persons who know MacArthur and have seen him in recent months suggest rather that as a veteran warrior he would rather wind up his service years—covering almost a quarter century on the national and international stage—crusading for a cause and a conviction than dying on the vine with his jobs withering quietly away.

MacArthur had made frequent trips to Korea recently but insiders in Washington at least believed the active control of the United Nations campaign had already passed into Ridgway's hands.

With Ambassador John Foster Dulles bringing the peace treaty toward a possible conclusion sometime this year MacArthur's assigned duties had shown signs of becoming desk ridden and routine.

Men who know him speculated he would prefer a witness chair to a swivel chair, if that was the choice he had to make.

I'll Be Darned, Says Ike as He Hears About Mac

Coblentz, Germany, April 11 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, visibly surprised and concerned, expressed the hope today Gen. Douglas MacArthur would not return to the United States and become a center of controversy and acrimony.

Advised of President Truman's action by a reporter, the Atlantic Pact commander first showed surprise, and said, "that's one you couldn't expect me to comment on."

He shook his head and exclaimed, "I'll be darned."

He resumed watching army maneuvers for a few moments and then turned to reporters and added:

"I hope he (MacArthur) will not return to the United States and become a controversial figure. I would not like to see acrimony develop."

Told the reasons the President had given for his action, Eisenhower shook his head and said, "when you put on a uniform there are certain inhibitions which you accept."

FEB. 15—President Truman indicated to his news conference that the entire strategy of the Korean war was in MacArthur's hands.

FEB. 18—Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told a reporter MacArthur "is in full command in Korea."

MARCH 7 — MacArthur said continued "limitations upon our field of counteroffensive action" means the Korean war will end in stalemate.

MARCH 23—MacArthur said he was "ready at any time to confer in the field with the commander-in-chief of the enemy forces in the earnest effort" to settle the war. He also said he believed the Chinese Communists could be defeated by expanding the war to include allied air attacks and Chinese Nationalist amphibious landings on the Chinese mainland.

MARCH 24—A statement was issued, following a meeting between the President and Secretary of State Acheson, which said Washington had had nothing to do with MacArthur's "ready to confer" statement.

APRIL 5—A letter MacArthur wrote Rep. Joe Martin (R.-Mass.) on March 2 was made public. In it the general applauded Martin's demand for the use of Nationalist forces to open a second front against the Communists in Asia.

APRIL 6—A cable from MacArthur that demobilization of 120,000 South Koreans "involves basic political decisions beyond my control" was made public by the magazine "Freeman."

APRIL 9 — Secretary of the Army Pace spent two hours with MacArthur in Tokyo prior to Pace's inspection of the Korean front. The general reportedly asked a freer hand in prosecuting the war.

APRIL 11—White House Press Secretary Joseph H. Short announced that Mr. Truman had relieved MacArthur of all his commands, effective at once.

Italian Foriegn Minister Count Carlo Sforza—"Only a policy of the United Nations is possible in the Far East. That is why President Truman's decision is a guarantee that this supreme principle is going to be followed."

A French Foreign Office spokesman—"President Truman had all the elements of the situation in hand and undoubtedly acted in the best interests of the United States and the United Nations."

Pro-American Germans in Frankfurt—"We have a high regard for General MacArthur's military ability but not for his political pronouncements."

Many western Europe's officials and newspapers had feared the general's statements on political and diplomatic matters would unleash a global war in Asia. Some openly demanded his removal. Britain and France had been particularly insistent that Washington curb the Far Eastern commander.

Decision Called Wise

A Dutch Foreign Office spokesman said at the Hague that the Netherlands government considered Truman's decision a wise one.

British Commonwealth diplomats in London were stunned by Truman's unexpected action, but privately hailed it. London's embassies, including that of the United States, were staggered. They said they had no inkling the President would do no more than rebuke MacArthur.

In the British capital the concensus was that Truman had had to choose between firing the controversial general, or going to war now with Communist China.

Diplomats in Huddle

Diplomats huddled, trying to assess the full implications of MacArthur's dismissal. They were anxious particularly to learn if it meant any basic shift in the American Far East policy.

The British generally thought the general's removal might serve to open the way for talks on a Korean peace settlement with the Chinese Reds—something Britain officially favors now.

The British argument was that the Peiping government now has little reason to identify the U. S. government as a whole with what the Chinese termed MacArthur's aggressive intentions against them.

In the British view, the Chinese in the past have made no distinction between what the Britons considered the forceful policies advocated by MacArthur and those laid down by the U. S. and the U.N.

First comment was confined entirely to the general's removal from his United Nations command. Little or no attention was paid so far to the end of his role of supreme allied occupation commander in Japan. Observers previously have speculated that any replacement of MacArthur in this job might touch off new conflicts between the west and Russia. one of the members of the Allied Council for Japan.

According to Fire Chief Murphy the driver said he had left the car parked with its brake on and in gear. It struck the pump after rolling down a slight grade from the rear part of the gas station property, the chief said.

The police report said the pump had been knocked down and was burning at the time they received notice of the fire.

Firemen were called at 3:15 p. m. Tuesday to 254 Hasbrouck avenue where an overheated smoke pipe on a kitchen range had caused a blaze that damaged paint on the wall and ceiling. Underworld Leader Dies

Miami Beach, Fla., April 11 (AP)—Charles Fischetti, 50, one of the leaders of America's underworld, died early today at his luxurious Miami Beach home. A doctor who had been attending Fischetti for four days said death was caused by a heart attack. He said there was no doubt it resulted from natural causes. Fischetti and his brother, Rocco, surrendered nine days ago to the sergeant-at-arms of the U. S. Senate after federal agents had sought them many months to serve them with U. S. The British argument was that the Peiping government now has little reason to identify the U. S. government as a whole with what the Chinese termed MacArthur's aggressive intentions against them.

In the British view, the Chinese in the past have made no distinction between what the Britons considered the forceful policies advocated by MacArthur and those laid down by the U. S. and the U.N.

First comment was confined entirely to the general's removal from his United Nations command. Little or no attention was paid so far to the end of his role of supreme allied occupation commander in Japan. Observers previously have speculated that any replacement of MacArthur in this job might touch off new conflicts between the west and Russia, one of the members of the Allied Council for Japan.

Truman Fires . . .

Martin (Mass.) the letter endorsing Martin's idea of using Chinese Nationist troops on Formosa to open a "second front" against Red Chmina, and adding his own conviction that Asia rather than Europe is the critical theatre of conflict with world communism, Martin released the letter last week.

There was also an exchange of messages between the joint chiefs of staff and MacArthur on the question of arming Korean troops. This showed MacArthur raising a serious question whether more Koreans should be armed in view of weapons needs for the developing Japanese police.

Thus the White House sought to meet a MacArthur statement last week-end that the recent release of 120,000 South Koreans from military units was the result of a policy decision made in Washington and beyond his power to control.

Two Events Decisive

While the Truman administrations' feud with MacArthur goes back many months, two events apparently were decisive in bringing on the showdown. One was the general's 38th Parallel statement, in which he not only invited Red peace talks but also implied the United Nations might alter their policies and attack Red China.

This set tempers rising in allied capitals here and abroad. For not only did the policy makers have no intention of expanding the war, but as the messages now released show, they were planning their own much less belligerent bid to peace. Once MacArthur had spoken this was scrapped.

The second incident was the MacArthur letter to Martin. Martin is a leader of the President's Republican opposition; he used the letter in attacking the presidentially sponsored Universal Military Training Bill in the House.

Begins Conferring

That was last Thursday. Almost immediately Mr. Truman began conferring with Secretary of Defense Marshall, Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and other advisers on whether he should fire MacArthur and if so, how.

The President is understood to have been cautioned in these conferences that if he did act so drastically he would face a political battle of staggering proportions. His advisers believed MacArthur's return here would set off another "great debate," this time over Far Eastern strategy instead of European defense.

That Mr. Truman accepted this view and went into the fight swinging from the first moment is indicated by the fact that he went to the extraordinary length of releasing military orders and messages of a type which normally a government never makes public.

It is authoritatively understood that either the President or Secretary of State Acheson, perhaps both, may now follow up with public statements or speeches designed to clarify Korean war aims and restate the limits and direction of American policies in Korea.

Suggestions Rejected

The President rejected suggestions, which had been given wide currency yesterday, that for the time being he adopt a middle course— between the extremes of ignoring what MacArthur had done or firing him. He evidently preferred the view of some of his most responsible advisers that he was caught in a terrible dilemma from which he could remove himself only by a major operation.

The nature of the dilemma, as privately described by these officials was this: MacArthur had shown by ignoring several directives that he did not intend to stop publicly preaching his ideas. But what he was advocating was contrary to United States government policy. He has enormous public prestige and strong political backing. If he was fired, it might split the country; but if he was not fired it might split the U.N. coalition which was afraid MacArthur would get the United States involved in a big war in the Far East.

Britain Is Sensitive

Britain has been particularly sensitive about MacArthur's statements because British leaders cling to the hope that the Chinese Communists will listen to reason and negotiate a peace. But Canada and other countries have been almost equally critical of the man who exercised command over their troops.

Hence in the statement set forth in official language the reasons for his action, Mr. Truman laid heavy stress on the requirement, as he sees it, that military commanders stick to their orders.

"Full and vigorous debate on matters of national policy," the statement said, "is a vital element in the constitutional system of our free democracy. It is fundamental, however, that military commanders must be governed by the policies and directives issued to them in the manner provided by our laws and constitution. In time of crisis, this consideration is particularly compelling."

President Pays Tribute

Then the President paid tribute to the general:

"General MacArthur's place in history as one of our greatest commanders is fully established. The nation owes him a debt of gratitude for the distinguished and exceptional service which he has rendered his country in posts of great responsibility. For that reason I repeat my regret at the necessity for the action I feel compelled to take in his case."

The combination of praise and censure in the President's statement has been characteristic of his relations with MacArthur, especially since the Korean war started last June.

One of the first incidents came when Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek, leader of the Nationalists on Formosa, offered 33,000 troops to fight in Korea. The State Department turned him down on the ground they were needed for the defense of the island, and the Joint Chiefs of Staff instructed MacArthur to see what Chiang needed to build up his military equipment.

MacArthur Went Personally

Instead of sending a representative, MacArthur went personally. This alarmed the British and outraged the Indians, whom the State Department was then trying to win over. Both Britain and India recognized the Chinese Reds, and while they were split with Washington on that point, Washington was seeking to minimize the differences.

Special Presidential Assistant W. Averell Harriman was sent to Tokyo to brief MacArthur on Formosa policy and relations with the British, Indians and others. Mr. Truman hoped the general would not get out of step with him again.

Came VFW Meeting

Came the Veterans of Foreign Wars meeting in Chicago last October. MacArthur sent a message advocating that the United States secure Formosa for its island defense chain against Red China, and also developing his ideas on the importance of a strong-handed policy in Asia. The administration dissented strongly and Mr. Truman ordered MacArthur to suppress the statement. It had been widely distributed, however, and was published.

A happy interlude from the President's point of view came when he flew to Wake Island to meet the general. According to reports later, he was charmed by the dynamic MacArthur with his informal dress, his grandly dramatic manner and his gift for prose with an Old Testament thunder in it.

Foreign governments were critical when MacArthur pushed up into North Korea toward the Manchurian border in the fall. India warned this would bring Communist China into the war. But at that time Washington and MacArthur seemed largely in agreement. Then the Chinese Communists hit and the whole nature of the war changed.

Fighting Different Enemy

MacArthur began pointing out in public statements that he was fighting a different enemy from the North Korean Communists. The State Department and the White House apparently supported his right to do this, even when he began emphasizing heavily that his lack of authority to bomb Red bases in Manchuria constituted an enormous handicap "without precedent in military operations."

That eventually developed into a virtual demand that he be given authority to fight the war on a wider scale than he had been able to do under standing United Nations directives and orders from the Joint Chiefs of Staff. The struggle thus developed led up to the latest exchange and the dismissal.

Administration officials did not appear to feel that the order relieving him of his command would fall upon MacArthur as a crushing blow, blighting his career within a few months of what would have been its ceremonial end with the completion of a Japanese peace treaty.

Persons who know MacArthur and have seen him in recent months suggest rather that as a veteran warrior he would rather wind up his service years—covering almost a quarter century on the national and international stage—crusading for a cause and a conviction than dying on the vine with his jobs withering quietly away.

MacArthur had made frequent trips to Korea recently but insiders in Washington at least believed the active control of the United Nations campaign had already passed into Ridgway's hands.

With Ambassador John Foster Dulles bringing the peace treaty toward a possible conclusion sometime this year MacArthur's assigned duties had shown signs of becoming desk ridden and routine.

Men who know him speculated he would prefer a witness chair to a swivel chair, if that was the choice he had to make.

I'll Be Darned, Says Ike as He Hears About Mac

Coblentz, Germany, April 11 (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, visibly surprised and concerned, expressed the hope today Gen. Douglas MacArthur would not return to the United States and become a center of controversy and acrimony.

Advised of President Truman's action by a reporter, the Atlantic Pact commander first showed surprise, and said, "that's one you couldn't expect me to comment on."

He shook his head and exclaimed, "I'll be darned."

He resumed watching army maneuvers for a few moments and then turned to reporters and added:

"I hope he (MacArthur) will not return to the United States and become a controversial figure. I would not like to see acrimony develop."

Told the reasons the President had given for his action, Eisenhower shook his head and said, "when you put on a uniform there are certain inhibitions which you accept."

Dismissal . . .

military and not political factors would keep his U.N. troops south of the 38th Parallel.

FEB. 15—President Truman indicated to his news conference that the entire strategy of the Korean war was in MacArthur's hands.

FEB. 18—Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, told a reporter MacArthur "is in full command in Korea."

MARCH 7 — MacArthur said continued "limitations upon our field of counteroffensive action" means the Korean war will end in stalemate.

MARCH 23—MacArthur said he was "ready at any time to confer in the field with the commander-in-chief of the enemy forces in the earnest effort" to settle the war. He also said he believed the Chinese Communists could be defeated by expanding the war to include allied air attacks and Chinese Nationalist amphibious landings on the Chinese mainland.

MARCH 24—A statement was issued, following a meeting between the President and Secretary of State Acheson, which said Washington had had nothing to do with MacArthur's "ready to confer" statement.

APRIL 5—A letter MacArthur wrote Rep. Joe Martin (R.-Mass.) on March 2 was made public. In it the general applauded Martin's demand for the use of Nationalist forces to open a second front against the Communists in Asia.

APRIL 6—A cable from MacArthur that demobilization of 120,000 South Koreans "involves basic political decisions beyond my control" was made public by the magazine "Freeman."

APRIL 9 — Secretary of the Army Pace spent two hours with MacArthur in Tokyo prior to Pace's inspection of the Korean front. The general reportedly asked a freer hand in prosecuting the war.

APRIL 11—White House Press Secretary Joseph H. Short announced that Mr. Truman had relieved MacArthur of all his commands, effective at once.

Artists usually paint the moon larger than it should be. When drawn true size, it appears insignificantly small.

First Reaction Is

comments:

A ranking British Commonwealth diplomat — "Good old Harry. He always comes up when nobody expects him to."

Italian Foriegn Minister Count Carlo Sforza—"Only a policy of the United Nations is possible in the Far East. That is why President Truman's decision is a guarantee that this supreme principle is going to be followed."

A French Foreign Office spokesman—"President Truman had all the elements of the situation in hand and undoubtedly acted in the best interests of the United States and the United Nations."

Pro-American Germans in Frankfurt—"We have a high regard for General MacArthur's military ability but not for his political pronouncements."

Many western Europe's officials and newspapers had feared the general's statements on political and diplomatic matters would unleash a global war in Asia. Some openly demanded his removal. Britain and France had been particularly insistent that Washington curb the Far Eastern commander.

Decision Called Wise

A Dutch Foreign Office spokesman said at the Hague that the Netherlands government considered Truman's decision a wise one.

British Commonwealth diplomats in London were stunned by Truman's unexpected action, but privately hailed it. London's embassies, including that of the United States, were staggered. They said they had no inkling the President would do no more than rebuke MacArthur.

In the British capital the concensus was that Truman had had to choose between firing the controversial general, or going to war now with Communist China.

Diplomats in Huddle

Diplomats huddled, trying to assess the full implications of MacArthur's dismissal. They were anxious particularly to learn if it meant any basic shift in the American Far East policy.

The British generally thought the general's removal might serve to open the way for talks on a Korean peace settlement with the Chinese Reds—something Britain officially favors now.

The British argument was that the Peiping government now has little reason to identify the U. S. government as a whole with what the Chinese termed MacArthur's aggressive intentions against them.

In the British view, the Chinese in the past have made no distinction between what the Britons considered the forceful policies advocated by MacArthur and those laid down by the U. S. and the U.N.

First comment was confined entirely to the general's removal from his United Nations command. Little or no attention was paid so far to the end of his role of supreme allied occupation commander in Japan. Observers previously have speculated that any replacement of MacArthur in this job might touch off new conflicts between the west and Russia, one of the members of the Allied Council for Japan.

Urges Volunteers To Join Classes In Defense Study

More than 100 members of Wiltwyck Hose Company attended their annual banquet Tuesday night at the Stuyvesant Hotel, where Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy made a plea for volunteer firemen to enroll in courses planned for civilian defense.

Referring to the sacrifices being made by fighting forces in Korea, the chief said it was important for men on the home front to be prepared to protect their areas in case of bombings.

Aside from the serious note injected by Chief Murphy, the event was as jolly as any annual banquet held over the long period of years during the history of Wiltwyck Company, and the volunteers had many a gleeful moment as the veterans of the organization told tales of oldtime fire fighting.

The hub of the merry time was Attorney William Kelly, recently elected for his fourth term as president, who as master of ceremonies spiced the occasion with witty remarks and appropriate introductions in calling on Wiltwyck members and guests for speeches.

Gets Original Badge

All of the speakers praised the work of volunteer firemen in the city, and Deputy Matthews at the conclusion of his remarks presented President William Kelly with one of the original badges of Wiltwyck Hose in token of his leadership which has earned him the presidency for the fourth consecutive year.

Notes of regret at not being able to attend were received from Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and the Rev. Dr. F. B. Seeley, chaplain of the company who is ill.

Various members of the company were called to take bows, and when it came Ken Dyson's turn be responded with several songs, accompanied alternately by Rod DuBois and John P. Erne.

In his talk urging volunteer firemen to join the classes for civilian defense arranged through the New York State Division of Safety, Chief Murphy pointed out that the courses are universal and beneficial in that they teach the operation of all fire fighting equipment.

15 Needed for Class

The chief said that in the event of bombings volunteers may be dispatched from one community to another where emergencies exist. He added that at least 15 volunteers are needed to start a class, and pleaded that men from the company register for the course.

Last night's banquet chairman was Alfred May, who was praised for his successful promotion of the event. Fred Eisler, Stuyvesant proprietor, during an introduction as "the perfect host" signed in Wiltwycks as a member.

Wiltwyck Officers

Officers of Wiltwyck Hose, recently elected, are Attorney William Kelly, president; Charles A. Ryan, vice president; Walter Hubbard, treasurer; L. E. Urges Volunteers To Join Classes In Defense Study

More than 100 members of Wiltwyck Hose Company attended their annual banquet Tuesday night at the Stuyvesant Hotel, where Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy made a plea for volunteer firemen to enroll in courses planned for civilian defense.

Referring to the sacrifices being made by fighting forces in Korea, the chief said it was important for men on the home front to be prepared to protect their areas in case of bombings.

Aside from the serious note injected by Chief Murphy, the event was as jolly as any annual banquet held over the long period of years during the history of Wiltwyck Company, and the volunteers had many a gleeful moment as the veterans of the organization told tales of oldtime fire fighting.

The hub of the merry time was Attorney William Kelly, recently elected for his fourth term as president, who as master of ceremonies spiced the occasion with witty remarks and appropriate introductions in calling on Wiltwyck members and guests for speeches.

All of the speakers praised the work of volunteer firemen in the city, and Deputy Matthews at the conclusion of his remarks presented President William Kelly with one of the original badges of Wiltwyck Hose in token of his leadership which has earned him the presidency for the fourth consecutive year.

Notes of regret at not being able to attend were received from Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk and the Rev. Dr. F. B. Seeley, chaplain of the company who is ill.

Various members of the company were called to take bows, and when it came Ken Dyson's turn he responded with several songs, accompanied alternately by Rod DuBois and John P. Erne.

In his talk urging volunteer firemen to join the classes for civilian defense arranged through the New York State Division of Safety, Chief Murphy pointed out that the courses are universal and beneficial in that they teach the operation of all fire fighting equipment.

15 Needed for Class

The chief said that in the event of bombings volunteers may be dispatched from one community to another where emergencies exist. He added that at least 15 volunteers are needed to start a class, and pleaded that men from the company register for the course.

Last night's banquet chairman was Alfred May, who was praised for his successful promotion of the event. Fred Eisler, Stuyvesant proprietor, during an introduction as "the perfect host" signed in Wiltwycks as a member.

Delegates Announced For YWCA Eastern Conference in Boston

Mrs. W. Dale Swartzmiller, and Mrs. Harold Miller will represent the board of directors of the Young Women's Christian Association at the YWCA eastern regional conference in Boston, Mass., April 13th through 16th, Mrs. Theron Culver, president of the Kingston Association announced today. Other delegates are Miss Lucille Palmer, executive director; Miss Marcia Clark, and Miss Esther VanGaasbeck, members of the Business and Professional Girls' Club. Miss Clark is also a member of the Business and Professional Regional Council.

The weekend conference, it has been stressed, will mark a significant milestone in YWCA history for this portion of the country, for it will consider the task that the international organization is meeting in the critical issues of today's world. Attending the conference will be 1,500 adult, student, and Y-Teen YWCA leaders from 138 community, and 165 student associations in the eastern region, which encompasses Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland and West Virginia.

Coming at the mid-point between the National YWCA legislative sessions, (1949 and 1952 national conventions) this, and four other regional conferences to be held this spring throughout the United States, will serve as fact findings, program scanning, and forecasting bodies. Delegates, on behalf of the 3,000,000 women and girls who the 'Y' serves, it was pointed out, will explore ways and means to achieve more effective citizenship. They will also discuss policy matters slated to come before next year's Chicago conference.

The keynote address, Today's Women in Today's World, will be delivered by Mrs. Chase G. Woodhouse, consultant to the Economic Stabilization Agency, Washington, D. C., former congresswoman, and former professor of economics at Smith College. Mrs. Woodhouse will deliver her address Friday afternoon. Mrs. Harrison S. Elliott, general secretary of the YWCA, will speak on: The YWCA Focus, Our Call to Action.

Other persons to address the conference will be Miss Leila Anderson, executive of the student YWCA; Mrs. Bartlett B. Heard, vice-president at large of the YWCA; Mrs. Maurice T. Moore, chairman of the foreign division; Dr. Peter Bertocci, professor of philosophy, Boston University; Miss Gertrude Wilson, former group work professor at Western Reserve University, and the University of Pittsburgh; Dr. Claire T. Rider, Massachusetts Department of Public Health; Miss Mary Lindeke, executive of the national board's department of national support. Mrs. George L. West of Pittsburgh is conference chairman.

20th Century Club Hears the Romance And Story of Spices

The average woman trundling her shopping cart through today's super markets thinks nothing of casually selecting pepper from India, ginger from Jamaica, or cloves from Zanzibar. They mean no more to her than an ordinary 10-pound sack of flour from Minneapolis. But spices hold a forgotten romance, and an almost forgotten history, which was recalled for 20th Century Club members Monday by Miss Alice M. Scardefield, when the group met at the home of Mrs. Raymond Woodard.

Miss Scardefield reminded members of the avid search for spices in earlier centuries, when they were used to preserve food, make incense, perfume, embalming preparations, and ointments.

Records, the speaker continued, show that the Chinese used spice particularly cassia and ginger, as early as 3,000 B.C. Thousands of years before men realized the earth was round, spice trading between the Mediterranean and the Far East was a major business. It wasn't, however, until 1497, when Vasco da Gama rounded the Cape of Good Hope and sailed into the Indian Ocean that the East Indies, or Spice Islands, were discovered. Later they were fought over for 50 years in the Pepper War, with Britain emerging the victorious owner of India and Malaya.

Pepper Plants

Miss Scardefield then described the pepper plant, a small, weak, and unattractive vine, with red seeds that are almost odorless and tasteless when harvested. White and black pepper seeds, identical except for processing differences, acquire their spicy quality when dried in the sun.

Columbus also was responsible for the discovery of new spices, as cayenne or chili pepper. Pulverized cayenne seed skins are used to make paprika, she explained, a rich source of vitamin C. Meanwhile he also discovered a tree with berries of what we know as allspice. His third discovery was an orchid with eight inch seed pods, producing vanilla.

Nutmeg Trees

The nutmeg tree, Miss Scardefield continued, is probably the most beautiful of all trees, standing 80 to 90 feet high, with dark, dense foliage, and great clusters of brilliant fruit, not unlike apricots. The seed is covered with a scarlet, waxy lacework of fibers, known as mace. Within the husk is the kernel, or nutmeg.

Spice from the clove tree, the speaker explained, is the tree's unopened flower bud, picked by hand, and dried in the sun. Meanwhile, only the roots of the ginger plant are used for spice. Tumeric, another root, not unlike ginger, is processed and cured by the secret formula of the Hindus and Malayans who gather it.

One of the most curious spices, the speaker noted, is saffron, which comes from the dried, yellow stigma of the purple crocus, with a single pound of saffron powder requiring approximately 70,000 blossoms.

Cinnamon and cassia, meanwhile, are the product of the bark of an evergreen of the laurel family. Here, unlike the rest of the world, we make no distinction between the two. In a normal year, Miss Scardefield concluded, the United States imports about 100,000,000 pounds of spice.

Psychology of Color

Second speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Arthur Monell, who explained the psychology of color, basing her remarks on research conducted by Faber Birren, one of the nation's leading color authorities. Colors are capable of channeling emotions, Mrs. Monell said, from happiness through boredom, and desperation. A constant buff or ivory environment, she explained, can hazard both disposition, and sanity.

Cooler Too

Colors also have the facility to attract or repel heat. Mr. Birrens proved to the navy, the speaker said, that the air pockets under white helmets worn in 97 degree temperatures, were 21 degrees cooler than under black. The farmer who wants a warm barn in winter, and a cool house in summer, does well, she added, to continue the conventional and time honored red and white arrangement. Mr. Birren also pointed out the incongruity of using red as a danger signal in large plants, since it is the first color to lose identity under dim light. Yellow, on the other hand, can be seen, when all other colors have faded.

Mrs. Monell also explained the old adage: "Blondes prefer blue, brunettes red." Nordic types, she said, are descended from peoples who lived far from the equator where reflected blue sky light is predominant, and has caused a pigmentation on the retina causing "green-sightedness," which is responsible for preference to blue. Brunettes, descended from a more tropic people, have "red sighted" retinas.

Church Ceremony Marks the Nuptials Of Miss Dorothy Gray, Allen M. Rowe

The West Hurley Methodist Church set the scene Sunday for the marriage of Miss Dorothy Jeanette Gray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Gray of Glenford, and Allen Millard Rowe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Millard H. Rowe of West Hurley. The Rev. Milton H. Ryan, of that congregation, performed the double ring ceremony at 2 p. m.

Miss Claudia Williams was organist for the ceremony, and Mrs. G. Alfred Nussbaum, Jr., served as soloist. She sang I Love You Truly, Because, and The Lord's Prayer. The church was trimmed with baskets of white snapdragons and carnations, and white candles.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white marquisette gown cut with a wide lace bertha, an illusion yoke, fitted bodice, and full skirt with a lace apron effect, ending in a circular train. Her fingertip veil of imported illusion was gathered to a heart shaped tiara trimmed with seed pearls and orange blossoms. She carried a white Bible with a white orchid marker, and a shower of swainsona.

Miss Ruth Roberts of 197 Bruyn avenue, this city, cousin of the groom, was maid of honor. She was dressed in a pink gown, with a lace bodice, fashioned with a scalloped neckline, and a matching scalloped peplum. Her bouffant marquisette skirt was gathered over taffeta. She wore a heart-shaped matching picture hat, and carried a bouquet of light pink rosebuds.

The bride's other attendants were Miss Jean Shultis of Woodstock, and Mrs. Kenneth Davis of Shokan. Both were dressed in blue gowns with lace bodices, lace applique trim at the neckline, and bouffant marquisette skirts. Their picture hats were of matching lace with marquisette trim, and they carried old-fashioned bouquets of pink rose buds.

Edward Dunn of West Hurley was best man. Norman Rice and Harold Every, both of West Hurley, ushered.

Approximately 150 persons attended the reception following the ceremony at the West Hurley Methodist Church hall.

On their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Rowe will visit northern New York, and Canada. Mrs. Rowe wore a gray suit for traveling, with pink and blue accessories. Upon their return the couple will make their home in West Hurley.

The bride was graduated from Kingston High School with the class of '46, and is employed with Decker and Fowler, Inc., this city.

The groom also a Kingston High School graduate, class of '46, is associated in business with his father.

Mrs. W. Miss Clark is also a member of the Business and Professional Regional Council.

The weekend conference, it has been stressed, will mark a significant milestone in YWCA history for this portion of the country, for it will consider the task that the international organization is meeting in the critical issues of today's world. Delegates, on behalf of the 3,000,000 women and girls who the 'Y' serves, it was pointed out, will explore ways and means to achieve more effective citizenship. They will also discuss policy matters slated to come before next year's Chicago conference.

The keynote address, Today's Women in Today's World, will be delivered by Mrs. Chase G. Woodhouse, consultant to the Economic Stabilization Agency, Washington, D. C., former congresswoman, and former professor of economics at Smith College. Mrs. Woodhouse will deliver her address Friday afternoon. Mrs. Harrison S. Elliott, general secretary of the YWCA, will speak on: The YWCA Focus, Our Call to Action.

20th Century Club Hears the Romance And Story of Spices

The average woman trundling her shopping cart through today's super markets thinks nothing of casually selecting pepper from India, ginger from Jamaica, or cloves from Zanzibar. They mean no more to her than an ordinary 10-pound sack of flour from Minneapolis. But spices hold a forgotten romance, and an almost forgotten history, which was recalled for 20th Century Club members Monday by Miss Alice M. Scardefield, when the group met at the home of Mrs. Raymond Woodard.

Miss Scardefield reminded members of the avid search for spices in earlier centuries, when they were used to preserve food, make incense, perfume, embalming preparations, and ointments.

Records, the speaker continued, show that the Chinese used spice particularly cassia and ginger, as early as 3,000 B.C. Thousands of years before men realized the earth was round, spice trading between the Mediterranean and the Far East was a major business. It wasn't, however, until 1497, when Vasco da Gama rounded the Cape of Good Hope and sailed into the Indian Ocean that the East Indies, or Spice Islands, were discovered. Later they were fought over for 50 years in the Pepper War, with Britain emerging the victorious owner of India and Malaya.

Pepper Plants

Miss Scardefield then described the pepper plant, a small, weak, and unattractive vine, with red seeds that are almost odorless and tasteless when harvested. White and black pepper seeds, identical except for processing differences, acquire their spicy quality when dried in the sun.

Columbus also was responsible for the discovery of new spices, as cayenne or chili pepper. Pulverized cayenne seed skins are used to make paprika, she explained, a rich source of vitamin C. Meanwhile he also discovered a tree with berries of what we know as allspice. His third discovery was an orchid with eight inch seed pods, producing vanilla.

Nutmeg Trees

The nutmeg tree, Miss Scardefield continued, is probably the most beautiful of all trees, standing 80 to 90 feet high, with dark, dense foliage, and great clusters of brilliant fruit, not unlike apricots. The seed is covered with a scarlet, waxy lacework of fibers, known as mace. Within the husk is the kernel, or nutmeg.

Spice from the clove tree, the speaker explained, is the tree's unopened flower bud, picked by hand, and dried in the sun. Meanwhile, only the roots of the ginger plant are used for spice. Tumeric, another root, not unlike ginger, is processed and cured by the secret formula of the Hindus and Malayans who gather it.

One of the most curious spices, the speaker noted, is saffron, which comes from the dried, yellow stigma of the purple crocus, with a single pound of saffron powder requiring approximately 70,000 blossoms.

Cinnamon and cassia, meanwhile, are the product of the bark of an evergreen of the laurel family. Here, unlike the rest of the world, we make no distinction between the two. In a normal year, Miss Scardefield concluded, the United States imports about 100,000,000 pounds of spice.

Psychology of Color

Second speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. Arthur Monell, who explained the psychology of color, basing her remarks on research conducted by Faber Birren, one of the nation's leading color authorities. Colors are capable of channeling emotions, Mrs. Monell said, from happiness through boredom, and desperation. A constant buff or ivory environment, she explained, can hazard both disposition, and sanity.

Cooler Too

Colors also have the facility to attract or repel heat. Mr. Birrens proved to the navy, the speaker said, that the air pockets under white helmets worn in 97 degree temperatures, were 21 degrees cooler than under black. The farmer who wants a warm barn in winter, and a cool house in summer, does well, she added, to continue the conventional and time honored red and white arrangement. Mr. Birren also pointed out the incongruity of using red as a danger signal in large plants, since it is the first color to lose identity under dim light. Yellow, on the other hand, can be seen, when all other colors have faded.

Mrs. Monell also explained the old adage: "Blondes prefer blue, brunettes red." Nordic types, she said, are descended from peoples who lived far from the equator where reflected blue sky light is predominant, and has caused a pigmentation on the retina causing "green-sightedness," which is responsible for preference to blue. Brunettes, descended from a more tropic people, have "red sighted" retinas.

High School Nine Opens Season April 20 Against Stewart Field

Only Five Veterans On 1951 Roster

Kingston High opens its 1951 baseball against Stewart Field Prep in Newburgh on April 20, with only five holdovers from the 1950 squad wearing the Maroon spangles.

From the squad that enjoyed only a so-so season last year, Coach Bill Burke will have two starting pitchers — Jerry Bechtold, the control artist, and Bert Kuhn, who excelled in relief roles.

Joe Turck, a newcomer, apparently is headed for the No. 3 hurling spot. The Maroons lost both of last year's catchers — John Kozlowski and Bob Brink—and there is a lively battle among three candidates at present, with Joe Leverenz likely to emerge as the No. 1 receiver.

Three quarters of the infield is veteran stuff with "Moll" Leonard at first base; Don Lyons, a heavy hitter at third base; and Lee Jackson at shortstop. Jackson was not first string last season but saw plenty of action.

New Outfield

The outfield will be brand new with the three standouts of the preliminary drills appearing to be Red Hinkley, of football fame; Don Jones and Charlie Engle, a slugging product of junior baseball circles.

The 1951 schedule shows a 14-game slate, with the DUSO opener slated on May 3 against Middletown High at the municipal stadium. The season closes on June 4 against Port Jervis.

Track Starts April 28

Coach Burke has not made his final cut in the 36-player squad that turned out for the first practice. Al Gruner, Jayvee, is paring down from an original list of 80 candidates.

Coach G. Warren Kias' track forces have six dates this season, the opener on April 28 being a triangular meet with Middletown and Poughkeepsie at the Middie City. The Section 9 and Intersectionals will again be staged at West Point.

Williams Predicts 8th Round Kayo

Chicago, April 11 (AP)—Lightweight champion Ike Williams, ready for his 17th overweight bout since December, 1949, predicts he will stop 23-year-old Fitzie Pruden in the eighth round of their 10-round non-title scrap in Chicago Stadium tonight.

Williams, who has scored 12 wins in 16 matches since defending his lightweight crown by defeating Freddy Dawson, figures to weight 144 tonight compared to Pruden's 146.

A crowd of 8,000 is expected with a net gate of about $20,000. Ike, a 3-1 favorite, will collect 27½ per cent of the net and Pruden 25 per cent. Each also will get $1,000 from television-radio proceeds.

Big '10' Completes Check on Referee

Chicago, April 11 (AP)—The Big Ten has completed an investigation of an "irregularities" charge against a conference basketball official and will disclose its findings today.

The Big Ten Probe was started soon after Sidney Brodson of Milwaukee, an admitted gambler, told the Kefauver Senate Crime Investigating Committee March 24 at Washington that he was suspicious of games worked by an unidentified Big Ten official.

Later Brodson said he was willing to tell Wilson the name of the official suspected. Brodson said last week he was misquoted earlier as saying he could provile "iron-clad" proof of the official's alleged "irregularities."

White Plains, N. Y.—John Lombardo, 152¼, Mount Carmel, Pa., beat Jose Diaz, 153½, Venezuela, 8.

New Bedford, Mass. — John Cecario, 146, Boston, beat John Cunningham, 146, Baltimore, 10.

George Harman Organizes Team

George Beaumont Harman, the indefatigable baseball promoter who recently announced that plans for the 1951 Summer Mountain League had been dropped because of the emergency, was back in the baseball picture today.

Harman announced that he is organizing a local team to campaign under the banner of the Aircraft Parts & Tool Mfg. Co. It will be fully uniformed and will play road games only.

The club roster will include some of the best known local players, including Ray Houghtaling, Frank Bartroff, Clarence Gregory, Kenny Decker, Don Herdman, Charlie Burgher, Eddie Weber, Bob Shellpeper, Joey Stephano, Rocky Maxon, Bill Beaumont and a few old timers.

Home teams who wish to book the APTM nine can write Manager Harman at 416 Washington avenue, or by calling Kingston 2271, between 8 a. m. and 7 p. m.

Uncle Miltie Running Away From Derby Field

New York, April 11 (AP)—The racing boys were saying today that "if" Uncle Miltie wins Saturday's Experimental Handicap No. 2 and the Wood Memorial at Jamaica the following week, not many three-year-olds will dare tackle him in the Kentucky Derby.

The local turf experts who watched Uncle Militie easily beat Battlefield and other top sophomores Monday in six furlongs at Jamaica immediately tabbed Joseph Colando's Pennsylvania colt the pronounced favorite for the $100,000 Run For The Roses May 5 at Louisville.

Until Monday's race most everyone talked of the "Big Three" Derby candidates, Uncle Miltie, George D. Widener's Battlefield, the 1950 two-year-old champion, and the Greentree Stable's Big Stretch.

There was a large "if" attached to all three.

1. Battlefield could be the horse "if" he can go the distance. The colt has never traveled more than his winning six and one-half furlongs in the rich Belmont Futurity last fall.

2. Uncle Miltie, proven in longer races last fall by taking the Champagne Stakes at Belmont and the Wakefield Handicap at Jamaica, was reported to have suspicious knees. In other words, some horsemen thought they might give way in a strenuous campaign required for getting Derby horses ready so early in the year. "If" is a large word here, but the colt looked plenty healthy Monday.

3. Finally, Big Stretch might grab it all, "if" he has the heart to win. Some experts thought Big Stretch showed a lack of courage last year in several races when he got into close quarters. But the Greentree galloper was bumped twice in the Pimlico Futurity last fall, then he shook off the interference and won under wraps by more than four lengths.

Famechon Squares Score With Burgin

Cincinnati, April 11 (AP)—Ray Famechon of France is right back among the leaders in the parade toward a possible featherweight championship boxing bout with Sandy Saddler.

Famechon was up there once before. A month ago, however, he took a second round technical knockout defeat from unknown Eddie Burgin of Cincinnati.

Last night a sharper, a harder-hitting and a smarter Famechon gave the same Burgin a ten-round beating before a crowd of 8,244 customers who paid a gross of $22,430.75.

Famechon's victory was by a unanimous decision. There were no knockdowns and only Burgin was bleeding at the finish. Burgin's only round on the Associated Press scorecard was the seventh.

At the finish however, he said he never was hurt except that a bleeding nose bothered his breathing.

Famechon weighed 127½; Burgin 125.

Trinity Cagers Rout Old Men

The Trinity Lutheran Men's Club basketeers gave the church kids a fair battle for one quarter of their basketball game last night on the Y court. Then they suddenly became short of breath, while the kids poured in baskets to rack up a one-sided 89 to 47 victory.

The Men made a respectable showing in the first quarter, when they trailed 29-18, but faded to a couple of points in the second to fall behind 33-20 at halftime. Things got worse in the third period (28-8) and the rout was complete in the stretch.

Ronnie Brandt and Jay Rider scored 23 and 21 points respectively for the winners. Ronnie Marks hit for 16 and Gollnick had 10. All nine of the winning side crashed the scoring column.

Bill Slover and Nichols scored a dozen points each for the losers and Bob Slover had 10. The Men went all the way with the five starters.

Williams, DiMaggio Are Not Affected

(By The Associated Press)

With the exception of Stan Musial, who may lose his $35,000 pay hike, baseball players in general won't be affected by the new government ruling which puts a control on their salaries.

The Wage Stabilization Board in Washington decided yesterday to put a ceiling on baseball salaries. This is what it amounts to:

A baseball team can't pay any player more than it paid its highest-salaried star in 1950.

Musial, the St. Louis Cardinals' brilliant outfielder, falls into this category.

Last season, Musial, the Cards' highest paid player, received a reported $50,000. This season he reportedly got a $35,000 increase.

But under the rules—which, incidentally, aren't official yet—Musial would lose his pay hike.

The board contends that wages paid players in 1951 must conform generally with club payroll practices in 1950. And, it maintains, it is doubtful if a $35,000 increase is within the general pattern of increases of the St. Louis club.

Backed by Saigh

In Houston, owner Fred Saigh of the Cardinals said he will ask the board to let Musial keep his raise because "I feel Stan is getting a fair salary."

Musial had no comment.

The ruling, of course, does not apply to all players who have received big increases. George Kell of Detroit is one of these players. He has received a fat pay boost, but, unlike Musial, he can keep every penny of it.

Kell's salary was reported to have been upped $15,000 to $45,000. He'll be able to keep all of this because Detroit pitcher Hal Newhouser received $50,000 last year as Detroit's highest-paid player.

Outfielder Al Zarilla and first baseman Eddie Robinson of the Chicago White Sox are not as fortunate. Both figure to lose raises.

Grayson Picks Giants, Indians for 1951 Flags

Says Durocher Has His Boys Ready

(Editor's Note: Harry Grayson, veteran sports editor of the NEA Service, was one of the few baseball experts to predict that the Philadelphia Phillies and the New York Yankees would win the major league pennants in 1950. His selections for 1951 are the New York Giants and Cleveland Indians and he tells you why in this interesting article).

saliva test, or something, but this observer has been around too long to go for the old saw. The Bosox will manage to find a way to blow the pennant. They always have.

The Yankees probably will win by force of habit, but this handicapper is getting away from the Bombers, too.

It's going to be a new deal all around, men, with the Indians and the Giants winning exciting four-club races.

Here is what the crystal ball shows:

AMERICAN	NATIONAL
Cleveland	New York
Boston	Brooklyn
New York	Philadelphia
Detroit	Boston
Washington	St. Louis
Philadelphia	Cincinnati
Chicago	Chicago
St. Louis	Pittsburgh

Cleveland will be steadier under Lopez.

Indian pitchers have led the American League in effectiveness the past two years.

With Suitcase Simpson, who manufactured 33 home runs in the Pacific Coast League in left field, the Tribe shoots at the circuit's seasonal home run record of 182. And Snuffy Stirnweiss is on hand to straighten out any trouble which may arise in connection with the DP.

Giants Keep Rolling

The Giants were the best club in baseball from mid-season on last trip. Leo Durocher has convinced them that he is doing something for them as well as himself.

The big question is, "Will Jim Hearn and Sal Maglie pick up where they left off?"

The same query could be put about any of the contenders, and you've got to ride along with the New York side's momentum, especially with 77 games at the Polo Grounds with its Chinese home runs.

Joe DiMaggio indicates that this may be his last time out with the Yankees, and first and third base are uncertain. Mickey Mantle may be marvelous but even if the army doesn't take him, the Joplin Jolster has to learn his way around. The pitching shortage for the Yankees could extend beyond the absent Whitey Ford.

If Erv Palica is called by the armed forces, Chuck Dressen may hurt his eyes looking for Brooklyn pitching beyond Newcombe and Roe. There are the familiar stories centering around left field and third base.

Philadelphia's Whiz Kids are a year older, but are without Curt Simmons, and you saw what happened to them last summer when the slick southpaw marched off with the National Guard.

It's no longer Spahn and Sain and a day of rain on the National League side in Boston. Vern Bickford then goes to work, but outside of the Big Three, the Braves are not spectacular.

The Cardinals still have Musial, Slaughter and Schoendienst, but show holes elsewhere, and the pitching staff is incredibly antique.. The Reds, especially with Ewell Blackwell, are capable of stirring up trouble.

The others couldn't get any higher with DiMaggio, Williams, Kiner and Rosen.

Only Five Veterans On 1951 Roster

Kingston High opens its 1951 baseball against Stewart Field Prep in Newburgh on April 20, with only five holdovers from the 1950 squad wearing the Maroon spangles.

From the squad that enjoyed only a so-so season last year, Coach Bill Burke will have two starting pitchers — Jerry Bechtold, the control artist, and Bert Kuhn, who excelled in relief roles.

Joe Turck, a newcomer, apparently is headed for the No. 3 hurling spot. The Maroons lost both of last year's catchers — John Kozlowski and Bob Brink—and there is a lively battle among three candidates at present, with Joe Leverenz likely to emerge as the No. 1 receiver.

Three quarters of the infield is veteran stuff with "Moll" Leonard at first base; Don Lyons, a heavy hitter at third base; and Lee Jackson at shortstop. Jackson was not first string last season but saw plenty of action.

New Outfield

The outfield will be brand new with the three standouts of the preliminary drills appearing to be Red Hinkley, of football fame; Don Jones and Charlie Engle, a slugging product of junior baseball circles.

The 1951 schedule shows a 14-game slate, with the DUSO opener slated on May 3 against Middletown High at the municipal stadium. The season closes on June 4 against Port Jervis.

Track Starts April 28

Coach Burke has not made his final cut in the 36-player squad that turned out for the first practice. Al Gruner, Jayvee, is paring down from an original list of 80 candidates.

Coach G. Warren Kias' track forces have six dates this season, the opener on April 28 being a triangular meet with Middletown and Poughkeepsie at the Middle City. The Section 9 and Intersectionals will again be staged at West Point.

Williams Predicts 8th Round Kayo

Chicago, April 11 (AP)—Lightweight champion Ike Williams, ready for his 17th overweight bout since December, 1949, predicts he will stop 23-year-old Fitzie Pruden in the eighth round of their 10-round non-title scrap in Chicago Stadium tonight.

Williams, who has scored 12 wins in 16 matches since defending his lightweight crown by defeating Freddy Dawson, figures to weight 144 tonight compared to Pruden's 146.

A crowd of 8,000 is expected with a net gate of about $20,000. Ike, a 3-1 favorite, will collect 27½ per cent of the net and Pruden 25 per cent. Each also will get $1,000 from television-radio proceeds.

Big '10' Completes Check on Referee

Chicago, April 11 (AP)—The Big Ten has completed an investigation of an "irregularities" charge against a conference basketball official and will disclose its findings today.

The Big Ten Probe was started soon after Sidney Brodson of Milwaukee, an admitted gambler, told the Kefauver Senate Crime Investigating Committee March 24 at Washington that he was suspicious of games worked by an unidentified Big Ten official.

Later Brodson said he was willing to tell Wilson the name of the official suspected. Brodson said last week he was misquoted earlier as saying he could provile "iron-clad" proof of the official's alleged "irregularities."

White Plains, N. Y.—John Lombardo, 152¼, Mount Carmel, Pa., beat Jose Diaz, 153½, Venezuela, 8.

New Bedford, Mass. — John Cecario, 146, Boston, beat John Cunningham, 146, Baltimore, 10.

George Harman Organizes Team

George Beaumont Harman, the indefatigable baseball promoter who recently announced that plans for the 1951 Summer Mountain League had been dropped because of the emergency, was back in the baseball picture today.

Harman announced that he is organizing a local team to campaign under the banner of the Aircraft Parts & Tool Mfg. Co. It will be fully uniformed and will play road games only.

The club roster will include some of the best known local players, including Ray Houghtaling, Frank Bartroff, Clarence Gregory, Kenny Decker, Don Herdman, Charlie Burgher, Eddie Weber, Bob Shellpeper, Joey Stephano, Rocky Maxon, Bill Beaumont and a few old timers.

Home teams who wish to book the APTM nine can write Manager Harman at 416 Washington avenue, or by calling Kingston 2271, between 8 a. m. and 7 p. m.

Uncle Miltie Running Away From Derby Field

New York, April 11 (AP)—The racing boys were saying today that "if" Uncle Miltie wins Saturday's Experimental Handicap No. 2 and the Wood Memorial at Jamaica the following week, not many three-year-olds will dare tackle him in the Kentucky Derby.

The local turf experts who watched Uncle Militie easily beat Battlefield and other top sophomores Monday in six furlongs at Jamaica immediately tabbed Joseph Colando's Pennsylvania colt the pronounced favorite for the $100,000 Run For The Roses May 5 at Louisville.

Until Monday's race most everyone talked of the "Big Three" Derby candidates, Uncle Miltie, George D. Widener's Battlefield, the 1950 two-year-old champion, and the Greentree Stable's Big Stretch.

There was a large "if" attached to all three.

1. Battlefield could be the horse "if" he can go the distance. The colt has never traveled more than his winning six and one-half furlongs in the rich Belmont Futurity last fall.

2. Uncle Miltie, proven in longer races last fall by taking the Champagne Stakes at Belmont and the Wakefield Handicap at Jamaica, was reported to have suspicious knees. In other words, some horsemen thought they might give way in a strenuous campaign required for getting Derby horses ready so early in the year. "If" is a large word here, but the colt looked plenty healthy Monday.

3. Finally, Big Stretch might grab it all, "if" he has the heart to win. Some experts thought Big Stretch showed a lack of courage last year in several races when he got into close quarters. But the Greentree galloper was bumped twice in the Pimlico Futurity last fall, then he shook off the interference and won under wraps by more than four lengths.

Famechon Squares Score With Burgin

Cincinnati, April 11 (AP)—Ray Famechon of France is right back among the leaders in the parade toward a possible featherweight championship boxing bout with Sandy Saddler.

Famechon was up there once before. A month ago, however, he took a second round technical knockout defeat from unknown Eddie Burgin of Cincinnati.

Last night a sharper, a harder-hitting and a smarter Famechon gave the same Burgin a ten-round beating before a crowd of 8,244 customers who paid a gross of $22,430.75.

Famechon's victory was by a unanimous decision. There were no knockdowns and only Burgin was bleeding at the finish. Burgin's only round on the Associated Press scorecard was the seventh.

At the finish however, he said he never was hurt except that a bleeding nose bothered his breathing.

CITY BASEBALL MANAGERS MAP FINAL PLANS

The league will operate with seven teams this season, playing four nights weekly, Monday through Thursday. Seated at the table in the usual order are: Bob Stauble, Old Capital Motors; Charles J. Truck, vice-president, who presided in the absence of the President Joe Kelly; and "Pucker" Davis, manager of the Morgan Merchants. Standing: Joe Watzka, Ferraro Bowlodrome; Willard Thomas, Boulevard Gulf; Joe Hoffman, Chez Emile; and Ferrell McElrath, Wiltwck Motors. Absent when photo was taken were Joe Kelly, president; Joe Messinger, secretary-treasurer, and George Zadany, manager of the Jones Dairy squad. (Freeman Photo)

Trinity Cagers Rout Old Men

The Trinity Lutheran Men's Club basketeers gave the church kids a fair battle for one quarter of their basketball game last night on the Y court. Then they suddenly became short of breath, while the kids poured in baskets to rack up a one-sided 89 to 47 victory.

The Men made a respectable showing in the first quarter, when they trailed 29-18, but faded to a couple of points in the second to fall behind 33-20 at halftime. Things got worse in the third period (28-8) and the rout was complete in the stretch.

Ronnie Brandt and Jay Rider scored 23 and 21 points respectively for the winners. Ronnie Marks hit for 16 and Gollnick had 10. All nine of the winning side crashed the scoring column.

Bill Slover and Nichols scored a dozen points each for the losers and Bob Slover had 10. The Men went all the way with the five starters.

Williams Predicts 8th Round Kayo

Chicago, April 11 (AP)—Lightweight champion Ike Williams, ready for his 17th overweight bout since December, 1949, predicts he will stop 23-year-old Fitzie Pruden in the eighth round of their 10-round non-title scrap in Chicago Stadium tonight.

Williams, who has scored 12 wins in 16 matches since defending his lightweight crown by defeating Freddy Dawson, figures to weight 144 tonight compared to Pruden's 146.

A crowd of 8,000 is expected with a net gate of about $20,000. Ike, a 3-1 favorite, will collect 27½ per cent of the net and Pruden 25 per cent. Each also will get $1,000 from television-radio proceeds.

Big '10' Completes Check on Referee

Chicago, April 11 (AP)—The Big Ten has completed an investigation of an "irregularities" charge against a conference basketball official and will disclose its findings today.

The Big Ten Probe was started soon after Sidney Brodson of Milwaukee, an admitted gambler, told the Kefauver Senate Crime Investigating Committee March 24 at Washington that he was suspicious of games worked by an unidentified Big Ten official.

Later Brodson said he was willing to tell Wilson the name of the official suspected. Brodson said last week he was misquoted earlier as saying he could provile "iron-clad" proof of the official's alleged "irregularities."

George Harman Organizes Team

George Beaumont Harman, the indefatigable baseball promoter who recently announced that plans for the 1951 Summer Mountain League had been dropped because of the emergency, was back in the baseball picture today.

Harman announced that he is organizing a local team to campaign under the banner of the Aircraft Parts & Tool Mfg. Co. It will be fully uniformed and will play road games only.

The club roster will include some of the best known local players, including Ray Houghtaling, Frank Bartroff, Clarence Gregory, Kenny Decker, Don Herdman, Charlie Burgher, Eddie Weber, Bob Shellpeper, Joey Stephano, Rocky Maxon, Bill Beaumont and a few old timers.

Home teams who wish to book the APTM nine can write Manager Harman at 416 Washington avenue, or by calling Kingston 2271, between 8 a. m. and 7 p. m.

Uncle Miltie Running Away From Derby Field

New York, April 11 (AP)—The racing boys were saying today that "if" Uncle Miltie wins Saturday's Experimental Handicap No. 2 and the Wood Memorial at Jamaica the following week, not many three-year-olds will dare tackle him in the Kentucky Derby.

The local turf experts who watched Uncle Militie easily beat Battlefield and other top sophomores Monday in six furlongs at Jamaica immediately tabbed Joseph Colando's Pennsylvania colt the pronounced favorite for the $100,000 Run For The Roses May 5 at Louisville.

Until Monday's race most everyone talked of the "Big Three" Derby candidates, Uncle Miltie, George D. Widener's Battlefield, the 1950 two-year-old champion, and the Greentree Stable's Big Stretch.

There was a large "if" attached to all three.

1. Battlefield could be the horse "if" he can go the distance. The colt has never traveled more than his winning six and one-half furlongs in the rich Belmont Futurity last fall.

2. Uncle Miltie, proven in longer races last fall by taking the Champagne Stakes at Belmont and the Wakefield Handicap at Jamaica, was reported to have suspicious knees. In other words, some horsemen thought they might give way in a strenuous campaign required for getting Derby horses ready so early in the year. "If" is a large word here, but the colt looked plenty healthy Monday.

3. Finally, Big Stretch might grab it all, "if" he has the heart to win. Some experts thought Big Stretch showed a lack of courage last year in several races when he got into close quarters. But the Greentree galloper was bumped twice in the Pimlico Futurity last fall, then he shook off the interference and won under wraps by more than four lengths.

Famechon Squares Score With Burgin

Cincinnati, April 11 (AP)—Ray Famechon of France is right back among the leaders in the parade toward a possible featherweight championship boxing bout with Sandy Saddler.

Famechon was up there once before. A month ago, however, he took a second round technical knockout defeat from unknown Eddie Burgin of Cincinnati.

Last night a sharper, a harder-hitting and a smarter Famechon gave the same Burgin a ten-round beating before a crowd of 8,244 customers who paid a gross of $22,430.75.

Famechon's victory was by a unanimous decision. There were no knockdowns and only Burgin was bleeding at the finish. Burgin's only round on the Associated Press scorecard was the seventh.

At the finish however, he said he never was hurt except that a bleeding nose bothered his breathing.

Famechon weighed 127½; Burgin 125.

Trinity Cagers Rout Old Men

The Trinity Lutheran Men's Club basketeers gave the church kids a fair battle for one quarter of their basketball game last night on the Y court. Then they suddenly became short of breath, while the kids poured in baskets to rack up a one-sided 89 to 47 victory.

The Men made a respectable showing in the first quarter, when they trailed 29-18, but faded to a couple of points in the second to fall behind 33-20 at halftime. Things got worse in the third period (28-8) and the rout was complete in the stretch.

Ronnie Brandt and Jay Rider scored 23 and 21 points respectively for the winners. Ronnie Marks hit for 16 and Gollnick had 10. All nine of the winning side crashed the scoring column.

Bill Slover and Nichols scored a dozen points each for the losers and Bob Slover had 10. The Men went all the way with the five starters.

Williams, DiMaggio Are Not Affected

(By The Associated Press)

With the exception of Stan Musial, who may lose his $35,000 pay hike, baseball players in general won't be affected by the new government ruling which puts a control on their salaries.

The Wage Stabilization Board in Washington decided yesterday to put a ceiling on baseball salaries. This is what it amounts to:

A baseball team can't pay any player more than it paid its highest-salaried star in 1950.

Musial, the St. Louis Cardinals' brilliant outfielder, falls into this category.

Last season, Musial, the Cards' highest paid player, received a reported $50,000. This season he reportedly got a $35,000 increase.

But under the rules—which, incidentally, aren't official yet—Musial would lose his pay hike.

The board contends that wages paid players in 1951 must conform generally with club payroll practices in 1950. And, it maintains, it is doubtful if a $35,000 increase is within the general pattern of increases of the St. Louis club.

Backed by Saigh

In Houston, owner Fred Saigh of the Cardinals said he will ask the board to let Musial keep his raise because "I feel Stan is getting a fair salary."

Musial had no comment.

The ruling, of course, does not apply to all players who have received big increases. George Kell of Detroit is one of these players. He has received a fat pay boost, but, unlike Musial, he can keep every penny of it.

Kell's salary was reported to have been upped $15,000 to $45,000. He'll be able to keep all of this because Detroit pitcher Hal Newhouser received $50,000 last year as Detroit's highest-paid player.

Outfielder Al Zarilla and first baseman Eddie Robinson of the Chicago White Sox are not as fortunate. Both figure to lose raises.

Grayson Picks Giants, Indians for 1951 Flags

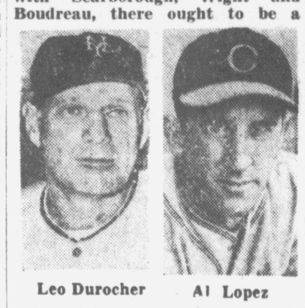
Says Durocher Has His Boys Ready

(Editor's Note: Harry Grayson, veteran sports editor of the NEA Service, was one of the few baseball experts to predict that the Philadelphia Phillies and the New York Yankees would win the major league pennants in 1950. His selections for 1951 are the New York Giants and Cleveland Indians and he tells you why in this interesting article).

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Sports Editor)

Who d'ya like in the pennant races, who'll bounce down in front in the fall?

If the Red Sox can't make it with Scarborough, Wight and Boudreau, there ought to be a



Leo Durocher Al Lopez

saliva test, or something, but this observer has been around too long to go for the old saw. The Bosox will manage to find a way to blow the pennant. They always have.

The Yankees probably will win by force of habit, but this handicapper is getting away from the Bombers, too.

It's going to be a new deal all around, men, with the Indians and the Giants winning exciting four-club races.

Here is what the crystal ball shows:

AMERICAN	NATIONAL
Cleveland	New York
Boston	Brooklyn
New York	Philadelphia
Detroit	Boston
Philadelphia	Cincinnati
Chicago	Chicago
St. Louis	Pittsburgh

Cleveland will be steadier under Lopez.

Indian pitchers have led the American League in effectiveness the past two years.

With Suitcase Simpson, who manufactured 33 home runs in the Pacific Coast League in left field, the Tribe shoots at the circuit's seasonal home run record of 182. And Snuffy Stirnweiss is on hand to straighten out any trouble which may arise in connection with the DP.

Giants Keep Rolling

The Giants were the best club in baseball from mid-season on last trip. Leo Durocher has convinced them that he is doing something for them as well as himself.

The big question is, "Will Jim Hearn and Sal Maglie pick up where they left off?"

The same query could be put about any of the contenders, and you've got to ride along with the New York side's momentum, especially with 77 games at the Polo Grounds with its Chinese home runs.

Joe DiMaggio indicates that this may be his last time out with the Yankees, and first and third base are uncertain. Mickey Mantle may be marvelous but even if the army doesn't take him, the Joplin Jolster has to learn his way around. The pitching shortage for the Yankees could extend beyond the absent Whitey Ford.

If Erv Palica is called by the armed forces, Chuck Dressen may hurt his eyes looking for Brooklyn pitching beyond Newcombe and Roe. There are the familiar stories centering around left field and third base.

Philadelphia's Whiz Kids are a year older, but are without Curt Simmons, and you saw what happened to them last summer when the slick southpaw marched off with the National Guard.

It's no longer Spahn and Sain and a day of rain on the National League side in Boston. Vern Bickford then goes to work, but outside of the Big Three, the Braves are not spectacular.

The Cardinals still have Musial, Slaughter and Schoendienst, but show holes elsewhere, and the pitching staff is incredibly antique.. The Reds, especially with Ewell Blackwell, are capable of stirring up trouble.

The others couldn't get any higher with DiMaggio, Williams, Kiner and Rosen.

Good Habits Sometimes Stick—AP Man Picks Phillies

New York, April 11 (AP)—The National League race looks like a three-team squabble with the well-balanced fighting Phillies picked to beat out Brooklyn and the New York Giants.

Sure you remember last September. How the Whiz Kids wobbled and the awakened Dodgers almost nipped them at the wire. How Leo Durocher's Giants, with Sal Maglie and Jim Hearn flinging shutouts, surged to third place in a galloping finish. How the Phils lost four straight to the Yanks in the World Series.

There has been a tendency to write off the Phils as "one time wonders." To say Jim Konstanty never can approach his 74 superb relief jobs of last season. To underrate the champs. That's risky business.

Loss of Curt Simmons, the 17-game winner now in the army, was a major blow but Manager Eddie Sawyer has the men who could pick up those wins in Russ Meyer, Ken Johnson and Ken Heintzelman.

The Phils should be a better club with more experience for Whiz Kids like Willie Jones, Robin Roberts, Bubba Church, Bob Miller, Mike Goliat, Granny Hamner and Richie Ashburn.

Sawyer and spirit, synonymous with the Phils, is an important factor. Perhaps the big reason. There can be no complacency on a club that just staggered home and lost the series in four straight.

Here's the way the National League looks from here:

1. Philadelphia
2. Brooklyn
3. New York
4. Boston
5. St. Louis
6. Cincinnati
7. Pittsburgh
8. Chicago

Brooks' Hurling Weak

Brooklyn has the batting power, defensive skill and speed to win a pennant but the pitching still is questionable. The Giants have a tight defensive club with good pitching. Scoring runs will be Leo Durocher's main headache. If he gets the punch he can win it all.

The Dodgers lead the league in hitting, home runs, total bases and stolen bases, but their pitching is shoddy after you get past Preacher Roe and Don Newcombe.

Behind the front three, Boston and St. Louis look like the only clubs capable of an outside shot at the pennant.

Herman Arlensky Pounds 671 Gross Singles Score in State Tournament

Moss and Kieffer Also in "600" Group

Arlensky fired actual scores of 232-170-209 for a 611 scratch and had 60 pins handicap for his 671.

Jim Moss, with 36 handicap, totalled 635 and Alvin Kieffer, with 54 pull, rolled 205-606. Moss had high solos of 205 and 204. Larry Weishaupt pounded 227-596, with a six-pin handicap.

There were no 1200 gross doubles listed in the scores reported to the Freeman sports department. Bill Murray shot a neat 607, with 170-215-222, to pace Mannie's Barber Shop to a 2920 aggregate, while Jones Dairy Major posted 2925, with Johnny Ferraro doing the heavy duty with 215-192-225.

Training Camp News in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Bickford Choice

Louisville, Ky., April 11 (AP)—The Boston Braves and New York Yankees will conclude their three game traveling series here today with righthander Vern Bickford listed to pitch for the National Leaguers against the world champions.

The clubs are tied with one victory each in this jaunt. The Yanks evened things yesterday with a 3-2 triumph. Johnny Sain gave up two runs, the only earned scores he has permitted this spring while pitching 30 innings against big league competition.

Bickford is the most recent no hit pitcher of the majors. A deed he accomplished last season against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Luke's Understudy

Atlanta, April 11 (AP)—Orestes Minoso, the versatile Cuban now looks like a good bet to take over first base for injured Luke Easter when the Cleveland Indians open the season next Tuesday.

He is the fourth member of the club to substitute at the spot this spring. Bob Kennedy and Fred Marsh tried it when Easter was first hurt this year, but the results were not satisfactory.

Bowling Scores

B. Goldstein and Warren Senor cracked a pair of hefty triples in the Booster League, the former posting 199-180-189-568, while Senor sandwiched a 218 with 173 and 166 for 577. Five others crashed into the "500" bracket: W. Schmitz 503; Andy Krom 502; J. Howard and Tony Canzoneri 501.

Also upper bracket were J. Reynolds 498; Bob Tierney 492; Lou Goldstein 490; Rudy Hohenberger and Sam Avnet 485; Bill Maisenhelder 200-478; George Planthaher 477; Ed Lindhurst 476; and Warren Swarthout 473.

Frank Bruno blasted his best triple of the season in the Central Rec League last night with a rousing 677 on games of 209, 232 and 236. But for a couple of taps along the route he might have had a "700 series in the bag.

Frank Grimaldi pounded 224-612; Ray Houghtaling 225-594; "Pop" Auchmoody 208-592; Chris Gallo 236-588; Ed Heins 231-583; Joe Sangi 204-573; Joe Bosco 212-569; Stan Colvin 204-563; Jim Costello 206-562; Charlie Brooks 204-553; Allen Hoey 542; W. Schwarz 541; and Carl Lundquist 218-540.

Elizabeth Sass was well ahead of the rest of the field in the Business Girls bowling, with 183-155-150-488. L. La Rocca and S. O'Bryan tied for runnerup honors at 437, while J. Cole, Mildred Dunn and L. Jordan shot 420 apiece. S. Collins rolled 418 and Helen Buchholtz 406 for other high scores.

John Fatum, the high average kegler in the Y Federation National circuit, pounded 187-154-187-528 to lead last night's rolling, while Art Hutton rolled 520 and Ralph Halbert had an even 500. Addison Schultz had 492; Howard Minard 492, with high single of 198 for the night; Ferd Short 472; D. Wood 461; D. Donadson 460.

Marge Van Alstyne and Phyl Gehringer, a couple of female bowling veterans, dominated action in the Friendship League last night, with 508 and 503 respectively. Reta Frederick and Bertha Schaller tied with 496s, Mrs. Schaller rolling 221 for high single of the night.

In the generally low shooting, Eleanor Singer posted 484; M. Williams 483; Evelyn Gross 480; Dot Bell 477; H. Stopher 476; Laura Daignault 474; Elizabeth Bruck 464; Kay Brodhead 463; and Kay Roosa 461.

ALL-TIME ALL-AMERICA Football Selections

Bronko Nagurski

New Brunswick, N. J., April 9 (AP)—Minnesota's Bronko Nagurski was endowed with such size, speed and natural talent that he probably could have become an All-Time All-American football star at any position he chose.

The nation's sports writers and broadcasters had a tough time finding the right place for him in the Associated Press' poll but finally placed him at tackle—a mate of Wilbur (Fats) Henry, Washington and Jefferson's great tackle during and just after the First World War.

In the poll to determine the All-Time All-America for consideration to the National Football Hall of Fame, Nagurski drew the third highest vote total, beaten out only by those two immortal halfbacks, Red Grange and Jim Thrope.

He received 305 points for the tackle position and 302 for fullback for a total of 607 points, on the basis of ten for a first team vote, five for second and two for third.

Henry, a chubby bulwark on a small college team, was so impressive as kick-blocker and playspiller that he gained 258 points to beat out Ed Widseth, the Minnesota All America of 1936, and Cal Hubbard of Little Centenary and Geneva, who later won additional fame as a pro and a major league baseball umpire.

Wojciechowicz Named

Alex Wojciechowicz, who cracked the jaws of foes and radio announcers alike when he was the most solid of Fordham's Seven Blocks of Granite in 1935-37 and Frank (Bruiser) Kinard of Mississippi, the terror of Dixie during the same years, won third-team berths.

Members of the first three teams chosen in the nationwide poll, representing more than 100 ballots and the opinions of thousands, qualify for consideration for the Hall of Fame, located at Rutgers University here.

The Hall of Fame honors court will make the final section of who will have permanent niches in this projected $5,000,000 shrine, located where intercollegiate football was born in 1869. It's probable that most if not all the players on these teams will be honored.

Minnesota Star

Nagurski came to Minnesota in the fall of 1926 from International Falls, Minn., and reported to the freshman squad a trim six-foot-two and 210 pounds. When he made All-America tackle in 1929 he weighed 230, was hard as nails and agile as a jungle cat. He was almost as dangerous.

Dr. C. W. Spears, the Minnesota coach, was troubled when he inherited the big athlete as a sophomore and didn't know where to play him. After trying him at several positions he finally put Nagurski at end.

After the Bronk had knocked out several interferers and passers Spears decided maybe he'd made a mistake. Nagurski was quickly shifted to tackle.

The 18-year-old mass of gristle from northern Minnesota became of age in the Minnesota-Notre Dame game when, with the Gophers apparently beaten, he recovered a fumble that gained Minnesota a touchdown and and a 7-7 tie. From then on there was no keeping Nagurski off the veteran Gopher varsity.

In 1928 Spears experimented with Nagurski at fullback and from then on alternated him between the backfield and line—wherever the "Nag" was needed most.

Friend of Boys

Father Flanagan, founder of Boys' Town, Nebr., was born in Roscommon, Ireland, on July 13, 1886, and came to the United States when he was 18 years old.

Good Habits Sometimes Stick—AP Man Picks Phillies

New York, April 11 (AP)—The National League race looks like a three-team squabble with the well-balanced fighting Phillies picked to beat out Brooklyn and the New Yor:. Giants.

Sure you remember last September. How the Whiz Kids wobbled and the awakened Dodgers almost nipped them at the wire. How Leo Durocher's Giants, with Sal Maglie and Jim Hearn flinging shutouts, surged to third place in a galloping finish. How the Phils lost four straight to the Yanks in the World Series.

There has been a tendency to write off the Phils as "one time wonders." To say Jim Konstanty never can approach his 74 superb relief jobs of last season. To underrate the champs. That's risky business.

Loss of Curt Simmons, the 17-game winner now in the army, was a major blow but Manager Eddie Sawyer has the men who could pick up those wins in Russ Meyer, Ken Johnson and Ken Heintzelman.

The Phils should be a better club with more experience for Whiz Kids like Willie Jones, Robin Roberts, Bubba Church, Bob Miller, Mike Goliat, Granny Hamner and Richie Ashburn.

Sawyer and spirit, synonymous with the Phils, is an important factor. Perhaps the big reason. There can be no complacency on a club that just staggered home and lost the series in four straight.

Here's the way the National League looks from here:

1. Philadelphia
2. Brooklyn
3. New York
4. Boston
5. St. Louis
6. Cincinnati
7. Pittsburgh
8. Chicago

Brooks' Hurling Weak

Brooklyn has the batting power, defensive skill and speed to win a pennant but the pitching still is questionable. The Giants have a tight defensive club with good pitching. Scoring runs will be Leo Durocher's main headache. If he gets the punch he can win it all.

The Dodgers lead the league in hitting, home runs, total bases and stolen bases, but their pitching is shoddy after you get past Preacher Roe and Don Newcombe.

The Giants bristle with optimism. The players don't just hope to win, they expect to.

Behind the front three, Boston and St. Louis look like the only clubs capable of an outside shot at the pennant.

Herman Arlensky Pounds 671 Gross Singles Score in State Tournament

Moss and Kieffer Also in "600" Group

Herman Arlensky led the Kingston contingent in the gross singles division of the New York State Bowling Tournament over the week-end in Elmira with a 671 total.

Arlensky fired actual scores of 232-170-209 for a 611 scratch and had 60 pins handicap for his 671.

Jim Moss, with 36 handicap, totalled 635 and Alvin Kieffer, with 54 pull, rolled 205-606. Moss had high solos of 205 and 204. Larry Weishaupt pounded 227-596, with a six-pin handicap.

There were no 1200 gross doubles listed in the scores reported to the Freeman sports department. Bill Murray shot a neat 607, with 170-215-222, to pace Mannie's Barber Shop to a 2920 aggregate, while Jones Dairy Major posted 2925, with Johnny Ferraro doing the heavy duty with 215-192-225.

Ferraro leads in scratch singles with 667 and has an 1842 all-events.

Training Camp News in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Bickford Choice

Louisville, Ky., April 11 (AP)—The Boston Braves and New York Yankees will conclude their three game traveling series here today with righthander Vern Bickford listed to pitch for the National Leaguers against the world champions.

The clubs are tied with one victory each in this jaunt. The Yanks evened things yesterday with a 3-2 triumph. Johnny Sain gave up two runs, the only earned scores he has permitted this spring while pitching 30 innings against big league competition.

Bickford is the most recent no hit pitcher of the majors. A deed he accomplished last season against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Luke's Understudy

Atlanta, April 11 (AP)—Orestes Minoso, the versatile Cuban now looks like a good bet to take over first base for injured Luke Easter when the Cleveland Indians open the season next Tuesday.

He is the fourth member of the club to substitute at the spot this spring. Bob Kennedy and Fred Marsh tried it when Easter was first hurt this year, but the results were not satisfactory.

Allie Clark got a chance after Easter tore a muscle in his left thigh Saturday and his performance wasn't much better. Minoso yesterday played his first full game at the sack and there were few complaints.

Bowling Scores

B. Goldstein and Warren Senor cracked a pair of hefty triples in the Booster League, the former posting 199-180-189-568, while Senor sandwiched a 218 with 173 and 166 for 577. Five others crashed into the "500" bracket: W. Schmitz 503; Andy Krom 502; J. Howard and Tony Canzoneri 501.

Also upper bracket were J. Reynolds 498; Bob Tierney 492; Lou Goldstein 490; Rudy Hohenberger and Sam Avnet 485; Bill Maisenhelder 200-478; George Planthaber 477; Ed Lindhurst 476; and Warren Swarthout 473.

Frank Bruno blasted his best triple of the season in the Central Rec League last night with a rousing 677 on games of 209, 232 and 236. But for a couple of taps along the route he might have had a "700 series in the bag.

Frank Grimaldi pounded 224-612; Ray Houghtaling 225-594; "Pop" Auchmoody 208-592; Chris Gallo 236-588; Ed Heins 231-583; Joe Sangi 204-573; Joe Bosco 212-569; Stan Colvin 204-563; Jim Costello 206-562; Charlie Brooks 204-553; Allen Hoey 542; W. Schwarz 541; and Carl Lundquist 218-540.

Elizabeth Sass was well ahead of the rest of the field in the Business Girls bowling, with 183-155-150-488. L. La Rocca and S. O'Bryan tied for runnerup honors at 437, while J. Cole, Mildred Dunn and L. Jordan shot 420 apiece. S. Collins rolled 418 and Helen Buchholtz 406 for other high scores.

John Fatum, the high average kegler in the Y Federation National circuit, pounded 187-154-187-528 to lead last night's rolling, while Art Hutton rolled 520 and Ralph Halbert had an even 500. Addison Schultz had 492; Howard Minard 492, with high single of 198 for the night; Ferd Short 472; D. Wood 461; D. Donadson 460.

Marge Van Alstyne and Phyl Gehringer, a couple of female bowling veterans, dominated action in the Friendship League last night, with 508 and 503 respectively. Reta Frederick and Bertha Schaller tied with 496s, Mrs. Schaller rolling 221 for high single of the night.

In the generally low shooting, Eleanor Singer posted 484; M. Williams 483; Evelyn Gross 480; Dot Bell 477; H. Stopher 476; Laura Daignault 474; Elizabeth Bruck 464; Kay Brodhead 463; and Kay Roosa 461.

ALL-TIME ALL-AMERICA Football Selections

Bronko Nagurski

New Brunswick, N. J., April 9 (AP)—Minnesota's Bronko Nagurski was endowed with such size, speed and natural talent that he probably could have become an All-Time All-American football star at any position he chose.

The nation's sports writers and broadcasters had a tough time finding the right place for him in the Associated Press' poll but finally placed him at tackle—a mate of Wilbur (Fats) Henry, Washington and Jefferson's great tackle during and just after the First World War.

In the poll to determine the All-Time All-America for consideration to the National Football Hall of Fame, Nagurski drew the third highest vote total, beaten out only by those two immortal halfbacks, Red Grange and Jim Thrope.

He received 305 points for the tackle position and 302 for fullback for a total of 607 points, on the basis of ten for a first team vote, five for second and two for third.

Henry, a chubby bulwark on a small college team, was so impressive as kick-blocker and playspiller that he gained 258 points to beat out Ed Widseth, the Minnesota All America of 1936, and Cal Hubbard of Little Centenary and Geneva, who later won additional fame as a pro and a major league baseball umpire.

Wojciechowicz Named

Alex Wojciechowicz, who cracked the jaws of foes and radio announcers alike when he was the most solid of Fordham's Seven Blocks of Granite in 1935-37 and Frank (Bruiser) Kinard of Mississippi, the terror of Dixie during the same years, won third-team berths.

Members of the first three teams chosen in the nationwide poll, representing more than 100 ballots and the opinions of thousands, qualify for consideration for the Hall of Fame, located at Rutgers University here.

The Hall of Fame honors court will make the final section of who will have permanent niches in this projected $5,000,000 shrine, located where intercollegiate football was born in 1869. It's probable that most if not all the players on these teams will be honored.

Minnesota Star

Nagurski came to Minnesota in the fall of 1926 from International Falls, Minn., and reported to the freshman squad a trim six-foot-two and 210 pounds. When he made All-America tackle in 1929 he weighed 230, was hard as nails and agile as a jungle cat. He was almost as dangerous.

Dr. C. W. Spears, the Minnesota coach, was troubled when he inherited the big athlete as a sophomore and didn't know where to play him. After trying him at several positions he finally put Nagurski at end.

After the Bronk had knocked out several interferers and passers Spears decided maybe he'd made a mistake. Nagurski was quickly shifted to tackle.

The 18-year-old mass of gristle from northern Minnesota became of age in the Minnesota-Notre Dame game when, with the Gophers apparently beaten, he recovered a fumble that gained Minnesota a touchdown and and a 7-7 tie. From then on there was no keeping Nagurski off the veteran Gopher varsity.

In 1928 Spears experimented with Nagurski at fullback and from then on alternated him between the backfield and line—wherever the "Nag" was needed most.

Friend of Boys

Father Flanagan, founder of Boys' Town, Nebr., was born in Roscommon, Ireland, on July 13, 1886, and came to the United States when he was 18 years old.

Good Habits Sometimes Stick—AP Man Picks Phillies

New York, April 11 (AP)—The National League race looks like a three-team squabble with the well-balanced fighting Phillies picked to beat out Brooklyn and the New Yor:. Giants.

Sure you remember last September. How the Whiz Kids wobbled and the awakened Dodgers almost nipped them at the wire. How Leo Durocher's Giants, with Sal Maglie and Jim Hearn flinging shutouts, surged to third place in a galloping finish. How the Phils lost four straight to the Yanks in the World Series.

There has been a tendency to write off the Phils as "one time wonders." To say Jim Konstanty never can approach his 74 superb relief jobs of last season. To underrate the champs. That's risky business.

Loss of Curt Simmons, the 17-game winner now in the army, was a major blow but Manager Eddie Sawyer has the men who could pick up those wins in Russ Meyer, Ken Johnson and Ken Heintzelman.

The Phils should be a better club with more experience for Whiz Kids like Willie Jones, Robin Roberts, Bubba Church, Bob Miller, Mike Goliat, Granny Hamner and Richie Ashburn.

Sawyer and spirit, synonymous with the Phils, is an important factor. Perhaps the big reason. There can be no complacency on a club that just staggered home and lost the series in four straight.

Here's the way the National League looks from here:

1. Philadelphia
2. Brooklyn
3. New York
4. Boston
5. St. Louis
6. Cincinnati
7. Pittsburgh
8. Chicago

Brooks' Hurling Weak

Brooklyn has the batting power, defensive skill and speed to win a pennant but the pitching still is questionable. The Giants have a tight defensive club with good pitching. Scoring runs will be Leo Durocher's main headache. If he gets the punch he can win it all.

The Dodgers lead the league in hitting, home runs, total bases and stolen bases, but their pitching is shoddy after you get past Preacher Roe and Don Newcombe.

The Giants bristle with optimism. The players don't just hope to win, they expect to.

Behind the front three, Boston and St. Louis look like the only clubs capable of an outside shot at the pennant.

Herman Arlensky Pounds 671 Gross Singles Score in State Tournament

Moss and Kieffer Also in "600" Group

Herman Arlensky led the Kingston contingent in the gross singles division of the New York State Bowling Tournament over the week-end in Elmira with a 671 total.

Arlensky fired actual scores of 232-170-209 for a 611 scratch and had 60 pins handicap for his 671.

Jim Moss, with 36 handicap, totalled 635 and Alvin Kieffer, with 54 pull, rolled 205-606. Moss had high solos of 205 and 204. Larry Weishaupt pounded 227-596, with a six-pin handicap.

There were no 1200 gross doubles listed in the scores reported to the Freeman sports department. Bill Murray shot a neat 607, with 170-215-222, to pace Mannie's Barber Shop to a 2920 aggregate, while Jones Dairy Major posted 2925, with Johnny Ferraro doing the heavy duty with 215-192-225.

Ferraro leads in scratch singles with 667 and has an 1842 all-events.

Training Camp News in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Bickford Choice

Louisville, Ky., April 11 (AP)—The Boston Braves and New York Yankees will conclude their three game traveling series here today with righthander Vern Bickford listed to pitch for the National Leaguers against the world champions.

The clubs are tied with one victory each in this jaunt. The Yanks evened things yesterday with a 3-2 triumph. Johnny Sain gave up two runs, the only earned scores he has permitted this spring while pitching 30 innings against big league competition.

Bickford is the most recent no hit pitcher of the majors. A deed he accomplished last season against the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Luke's Understudy

Atlanta, April 11 (AP)—Orestes Minoso, the versatile Cuban now looks like a good bet to take over first base for injured Luke Easter when the Cleveland Indians open the season next Tuesday.

He is the fourth member of the club to substitute at the spot this spring. Bob Kennedy and Fred Marsh tried it when Easter was first hurt this year, but the results were not satisfactory.

Allie Clark got a chance after Easter tore a muscle in his left thigh Saturday and his performance wasn't much better. Minoso yesterday played his first full game at the sack and there were few complaints.

Bowling Scores

B. Goldstein and Warren Senor cracked a pair of hefty triples in the Booster League, the former posting 199-180-189-568, while Senor sandwiched a 218 with 173 and 166 for 577. Five others crashed into the "500" bracket: W. Schmitz 503; Andy Krom 502; J. Howard and Tony Canzoneri 501.

Also upper bracket were J. Reynolds 498; Bob Tierney 492; Lou Goldstein 490; Rudy Hohenberger and Sam Avnet 485; Bill Maisenhelder 200-478; George Planthaber 477; Ed Lindhurst 476; and Warren Swarthout 473.

Frank Bruno blasted his best triple of the season in the Central Rec League last night with a rousing 677 on games of 209, 232 and 236. But for a couple of taps along the route he might have had a "700 series in the bag.

Frank Grimaldi pounded 224-612; Ray Houghtaling 225-594; "Pop" Auchmoody 208-592; Chris Gallo 236-588; Ed Heins 231-583; Joe Sangi 204-573; Joe Bosco 212-569; Stan Colvin 204-563; Jim Costello 206-562; Charlie Brooks 204-553; Allen Hoey 542; W. Schwarz 541; and Carl Lundquist 218-540.

Elizabeth Sass was well ahead of the rest of the field in the Business Girls bowling, with 183-155-150-488. L. La Rocca and S. O'Bryan tied for runnerup honors at 437, while J. Cole, Mildred Dunn and L. Jordan shot 420 apiece. S. Collins rolled 418 and Helen Buchholtz 406 for other high scores.

John Fatum, the high average kegler in the Y Federation National circuit, pounded 187-154-187-528 to lead last night's rolling, while Art Hutton rolled 520 and Ralph Halbert had an even 500. Addison Schultz had 492; Howard Minard 492, with high single of 198 for the night; Ferd Short 472; D. Wood 461; D. Donadson 460.

Marge Van Alstyne and Phyl Gehringer, a couple of female bowling veterans, dominated action in the Friendship League last night, with 508 and 503 respectively. Reta Frederick and Bertha Schaller tied with 496s, Mrs. Schaller rolling 221 for high single of the night.

In the generally low shooting, Eleanor Singer posted 484; M. Williams 483; Evelyn Gross 480; Dot Bell 477; H. Stopher 476; Laura Daignault 474; Elizabeth Bruck 464; Kay Brodhead 463; and Kay Roosa 461.

ALL-TIME ALL-AMERICA Football Selections

Bronko Nagurski

New Brunswick, N. J., April 9 (AP)—Minnesota's Bronko Nagurski was endowed with such size, speed and natural talent that he probably could have become an All-Time All-American football star at any position he chose.

The nation's sports writers and broadcasters had a tough time finding the right place for him in the Associated Press' poll but finally placed him at tackle—a mate of Wilbur (Fats) Henry, Washington and Jefferson's great tackle during and just after the First World War.

In the poll to determine the All-Time All-America for consideration to the National Football Hall of Fame, Nagurski drew the third highest vote total, beaten out only by those two immortal halfbacks, Red Grange and Jim Thrope.

He received 305 points for the tackle position and 302 for fullback for a total of 607 points, on the basis of ten for a first team vote, five for second and two for third.

Henry, a chubby bulwark on a small college team, was so impressive as kick-blocker and playspiller that he gained 258 points to beat out Ed Widseth, the Minnesota All America of 1936, and Cal Hubbard of Little Centenary and Geneva, who later won additional fame as a pro and a major league baseball umpire.

Wojciechowicz Named

Alex Wojciechowicz, who cracked the jaws of foes and radio announcers alike when he was the most solid of Fordham's Seven Blocks of Granite in 1935-37 and Frank (Bruiser) Kinard of Mississippi, the terror of Dixie during the same years, won third-team berths.

Members of the first three teams chosen in the nationwide poll, representing more than 100 ballots and the opinions of thousands, qualify for consideration for the Hall of Fame, located at Rutgers University here.

The Hall of Fame honors court will make the final section of who will have permanent niches in this projected $5,000,000 shrine, located where intercollegiate football was born in 1869. It's probable that most if not all the players on these teams will be honored.

Minnesota Star

Nagurski came to Minnesota in the fall of 1926 from International Falls, Minn., and reported to the freshman squad a trim six-foot-two and 210 pounds. When he made All-America tackle in 1929 he weighed 230, was hard as nails and agile as a jungle cat. He was almost as dangerous.

Dr. C. W. Spears, the Minnesota coach, was troubled when he inherited the big athlete as a sophomore and didn't know where to play him. After trying him at several positions he finally put Nagurski at end.

After the Bronk had knocked out several interferers and passers Spears decided maybe he'd made a mistake. Nagurski was quickly shifted to tackle.

The 18-year-old mass of gristle from northern Minnesota became of age in the Minnesota-Notre Dame game when, with the Gophers apparently beaten, he recovered a fumble that gained Minnesota a touchdown and and a 7-7 tie. From then on there was no keeping Nagurski off the veteran Gopher varsity.

In 1928 Spears experimented with Nagurski at fullback and from then on alternated him between the backfield and line—wherever the "Nag" was needed most.

Friend of Boys

Father Flanagan, founder of Boys' Town, Nebr., was born in Roscommon, Ireland, on July 13, 1886, and came to the United States when he was 18 years old.

Here's where You come into your own

Equipment, accessories, trim and models are subject to change without notice.

Once in a while, any man's entitled to let himself go.

He's entitled to that glow of pride that comes from feeling like the very important person that he really is.

He's entitled to take practical steps to make his dreams come true.

In short, he's entitled to own a ROADMASTER, and particularly a ROADMASTER as it is custom built for '51.

For this great automobile is more than big and roomy and distinguished in its styling.

It's more than sweetly willing in performance, and superbly poised in stride.

It does things to you, when you let yourself sink deep down in the subtle softness of its cushions, and run a caressing hand over the fine texture of its fabrics.

This is everything a fine car should be!

Of course, this brilliant performer is Fireball powered. It is cushioned by coil springs on every wheel. It provides, at no extra cost, the complete relaxation of Dynaflow Drive. It has durable and dependable sturdiness engineered into every mechanical part.

But the best is yet to be told. When you check the ROADMASTER price list, you'll find that the car of your choice can be yours for hundreds of dollars less than you'll pay for others with comparable reputation.

Come in soon and see this buy of buys in the fine-car field.

DON'T ASK PERSONAL QUESTIONS!

The resentment felt by the writer of this letter is more than justified: "I dislike having strangers—or anyone in fact—take the liberty of asking personal questions. In a doctor's office not long ago another patient asked me what I was there for. When later I told my husband I'd answered the stranger, 'To see the doctor of course!' he thought I'd been very rude. But isn't it rude of someone to ask a personal question like this? My husband said the man was only showing interest. What do you think about it?"

I am sorry to have to say that your retort was rude! But I do agree that it was unthinkably bad manners for the stranger to have asked such a personal question. Perhaps you might have evaded the question by answering, "That's just what I'm here for—to find out!"

Wearing a Corsage

Dear Mrs. Post: My date sent me a corsage before going to a dance and I pinned it on my evening bag instead of on me. I was afraid of soiling my new dress or of putting holes in it and I thought it looked very well on my bag. Mother said I was rude to the boy and she wouldn't blame him for not bringing me any more flowers. Was I?

Answer: As long as you showed enthusiastic appreciation, I can't see that you were rude in pinning the flowers on your bag instead of on your dress. As a matter of fact, you were able to show your appreciation of them by picking them up and admiring them from time to time which you could not have done had they been pinned on your dress.

Paper Doilies

Dear Mrs. Post: When is it proper to use paper doilies?

Answer: They are used under the ornamental sweets which are either put on the table when it is set, or brought in at dessert. They also are used under all breads and cakes.

When is it proper to use the expressions, "I'm sorry" and "Excuse me" also "I beg your pardon"? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. However, leaflet E-15, "Manners in Public," includes answers to these questions. To obtain a copy send 10 cents to her, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Britons Get Back Coronation Stone

Dundee, Scotland, April 11 (AP)—Britain's coronation stone, stolen from Westminster Abbey Christmas morning, was handed to the custodian of Arbroath Abbey near here today.

The famed stone of scone was placed in the high altar of the Abbey, on the grave of King William the Lion, king of Scotland from 1143 to 1214. The Abbey, founded in 1176, is largely in ruins now.

Two unsigned letters, one addressed to King George VI and the other to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, were left with the stone.

The people who left the stone did not identify themselves.

All Registration For Red Cross Aid Class April 18

Walter Tremper, disaster chairman of the Ulster County Chapter of American National Red Cross, stated today that the work of rehabilitation following the disastrous flood of March 31, is well underway. Distressed families are being visited by Red Cross Disaster Service workers assigned by Natnonal Red Cross to assist the local chapter. The task of assisting disaster stricken families will require days of hard work. The funds used for this work are made available from contributions to Red Cross in the fund campaign.

Tremper pointed out that it is clear that Red Cross cannot justiy divide its funds among communities or states according to population or by similar methods. If this were done it would be impossible for the Red Cross to give aid at the places and to the individual families where the aid is most needed. Neither can the Red Cross justify the spending of disaster funds for the aid of families without a thorough inquiry into each situation to determine what needs caused by the disaster can be met by the disaster sufferers and what needs will be met by Red Cross. The work is being pushed with all possible speed but the Red Cross, as the disaster relief organization, is unwilling to sacrifice thoroughness and fairness for speed.

The disaster sufferers in Ulster county are busily engaged in the big job of cleaning up after the flood. Red Cross workers have stated that the hard work and resourcefulness of the residents of the affected areas indicate the willingness of these people to help themselves as much as possible.

To date 34 families have registered for Red Cross assistance. The losses of these families include food, clothing, income, furniture, damage and total destruction of homes and other buildings, loss of farm equipment and livestock and loss of occupational equipment. Emergency assistance has been given in several instances and at the present time the emphasis is on planning with the families to help them get back to their normal way of living.

Registration for Red Cross assistance to disaster sufferers will close April 18, 1951. Tremper announced. The Red Cross Disaster Headquarters located at 308 Clinton avenue, is open each weekday from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. Any flood sufferer in Ulster county who wishes to know about Red Cross Disaster Relief may contact the Disaster Headquarters to obtain information.

Marines Will Show Pacific War Films

Owing to the tense situation in the Pacific area, where many of its members fought during World War 2, Ulster Detachment of the Marine Corps League will feature two films of battle action in that theatre during the meeting scheduled Thursday night.

The regular session of the detachment will be held at 8 p. m. in the rooms of Joyce-Schirick Post, 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Commandant Albert J. Melville of the marines has issued a cordial invitation to all veterans to see the movies.

In urging full attendance of members and their friends, Commandant Melville said, "conditions are far from settled in the Pacific and our detachment is presenting Iwo Jima and another film to remind veterans and their fellow Americans that this nation must maintain its guard against forces that would crush democracy and the free way of life."

As usual, refreshments will be served after the business meeting.

In 1900, 41,000 Americans died of cancer. An estimated 210,000 will die of cancer this year, the American Cancer Society says.

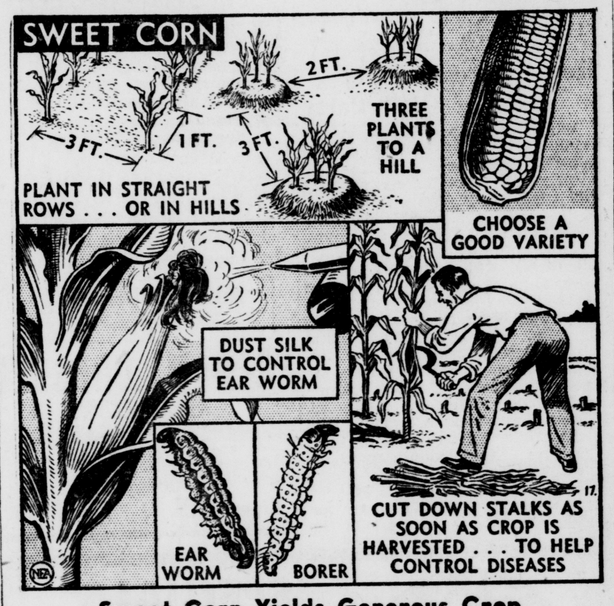
YOUR GARDEN

By Arnold Davis



Sweet Corn Yields Generous Crop

Here is another luxury vegetable. Sweet corn will require space but if the garden is large enough it will yield real results in satisfaction for a fresh table vegetable or for the corn roast.

Plant one of the newer hybrids and give the crop plenty of room to grow. Use straight rows with a plant every 12 inches or 3 plants to a hill every 2 feet, and in either case make the rows at least 3 feet apart.

A good variety is Golden Cross Bantam although many other varieties are now available which will give good results. Plant a row every 10 days if possible until the first of August, starting soon as frost days are over. If you have the space you will get a crop which has no equal either fresh, canned or frozen.

Two pests are in corn, ear worm and the borer. The former is the worst. It can be controlled by dusting the ears with a good modern insecticide containing D.D.T. when the plant is in full silk. Cut down the stalks and add to the compost heap as soon as the crop has been harvetsed. This will help to control diseases.

Good Taste Today

DON'T ASK PERSONAL QUESTIONS!

The resentment felt by the writer of this letter is more than justified: "I dislike having strangers—or anyone in fact—take the liberty of asking personal questions. In a doctor's office not long ago another patient asked me what I was there for. When later I told my husband I'd answered the stranger, 'To see the doctor of course!' he thought I'd been very rude. But isn't it rude of someone to ask a personal question like this? My husband said the man was only showing interest. What do you think about it?"

I am sorry to have to say that your retort was rude! But I do agree that it was unthinkably bad manners for the stranger to have asked such a personal question. Perhaps you might have evaded the question by answering, "That's just what I'm here for—to find out!"

Wearing a Corsage

Dear Mrs. Post: My date sent me a corsage before going to a dance and I pinned it on my evening bag instead of on me. I was afraid of soiling my new dress or of putting holes in it and I thought it looked very well on my bag. Mother said I was rude to the boy and she wouldn't blame him for not bringing me any more flowers. Was I?

Answer: As long as you showed enthusiastic appreciation, I can't see that you were rude in pinning the flowers on your bag instead of on your dress. As a matter of fact, you were able to show your appreciation of them by picking them up and admiring them from time to time which you could not have done had they been pinned on your dress.

Paper Doilies

Dear Mrs. Post: When is it proper to use paper doilies?

Answer: They are used under the ornamental sweets which are either put on the table when it is set, or brought in at dessert. They also are used under all breads and cakes.

When is it proper to use the expressions, "I'm sorry" and "Excuse me" also "I beg your pardon"? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. However, leaflet E-15, "Manners in Public," includes answers to these questions. To obtain a copy send 10 cents to her, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Britons Get Back Coronation Stone

Dundee, Scotland, April 11 (AP)—Britain's coronation stone, stolen from Westminster Abbey Christmas morning, was handed to the custodian of Arbroath Abbey near here today.

The famed stone of scone was placed in the high altar of the Abbey, on the grave of King William the Lion, king of Scotland from 1143 to 1214. The Abbey, founded in 1176, is largely in ruins now.

Two unsigned letters, one addressed to King George VI and the other to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, were left with the stone.

The people who left the stone did not identify themselves.

All Registration For Red Cross Aid Class April 18

Walter Tremper, disaster chairman of the Ulster County Chapter of American National Red Cross, stated today that the work of rehabilitation following the disastrous flood of March 31, is well underway. Distressed families are being visited by Red Cross Disaster Service workers assigned by Natnonal Red Cross to assist the local chapter. The task of assisting disaster stricken families will require days of hard work. The funds used for this work are made available from contributions to Red Cross in the fund campaign.

Tremper pointed out that it is clear that Red Cross cannot justiy divide its funds among communities or states according to population or by similar methods. If this were done it would be impossible for the Red Cross to give aid at the places and to the individual families where the aid is most needed. Neither can the Red Cross justify the spending of disaster funds for the aid of families without a thorough inquiry into each situation to determine what needs caused by the disaster can be met by the disaster sufferers and what needs will be met by Red Cross. The work is being pushed with all possible speed but the Red Cross, as the disaster relief organization, is unwilling to sacrifice thoroughness and fairness for speed.

The disaster sufferers in Ulster county are busily engaged in the big job of cleaning up after the flood. Red Cross workers have stated that the hard work and resourcefulness of the residents of the affected areas indicate the willingness of these people to help themselves as much as possible.

To date 34 families have registered for Red Cross assistance. The losses of these families include food, clothing, income, furniture, damage and total destruction of homes and other buildings, loss of farm equipment and livestock and loss of occupational equipment. Emergency assistance has been given in several instances and at the present time the emphasis is on planning with the families to help them get back to their normal way of living.

Registration for Red Cross assistance to disaster sufferers will close April 18, 1951. Tremper announced. The Red Cross Disaster Headquarters located at 308 Clinton avenue, is open each weekday from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. Any flood sufferer in Ulster county who wishes to know about Red Cross Disaster Relief may contact the Disaster Headquarters to obtain information.

Marines Will Show Pacific War Films

Owing to the tense situation in the Pacific area, where many of its members fought during World War 2, Ulster Detachment of the Marine Corps League will feature two films of battle action in that theatre during the meeting scheduled Thursday night.

The regular session of the detachment will be held at 8 p. m. in the rooms of Joyce-Schirick Post, 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Commandant Albert J. Melville of the marines has issued a cordial invitation to all veterans to see the movies.

In urging full attendance of members and their friends, Commandant Melville said, "conditions are far from settled in the Pacific and our detachment is presenting Iwo Jima and another film to remind veterans and their fellow Americans that this nation must maintain its guard against forces that would crush democracy and the free way of life."

As usual, refreshments will be served after the business meeting.

In 1900, 41,000 Americans died of cancer. An estimated 210,000 will die of cancer this year, the American Cancer Society says.

YOUR GARDEN — By Arnold Davis

Sweet Corn Yields Generous Crop

Here is another luxury vegetable. Sweet corn will require space but if the garden is large enough it will yield real results in satisfaction for a fresh table vegetable or for the corn roast.

Plant one of the newer hybrids and give the crop plenty of room to grow. Use straight rows with a plant every 12 inches or 3 plants to a hill every 2 feet, and in either case make the rows at least 3 feet apart.

A good variety is Golden Cross Bantam although many other varieties are now available which will give good results. Plant a row every 10 days if possible until the first of August, starting soon as frost days are over. If you have the space you will get a crop which has no equal either fresh, canned or frozen.

Two pests are in corn, ear worm and the borer. The former is the worst. It can be controlled by dusting the ears with a good modern insecticide containing D.D.T. when the plant is in full silk. Cut down the stalks and add to the compost heap as soon as the crop has been harvetsed. This will help to control diseases.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

DON'T ASK PERSONAL QUESTIONS!

The resentment felt by the writer of this letter is more than justified: "I dislike having strangers—or anyone in fact—take the liberty of asking personal questions. In a doctor's office not long ago another patient asked me what I was there for. When later I told my husband I'd answered the stranger, 'To see the doctor of course!' he thought I'd been very rude. But isn't it rude of someone to ask a personal question like this? My husband said the man was only showing interest. What do you think about it?"

I am sorry to have to say that your retort was rude! But I do agree that it was unthinkably bad manners for the stranger to have asked such a personal question. Perhaps you might have evaded the question by answering, "That's just what I'm here for—to find out!"

Wearing a Corsage

Dear Mrs. Post: My date sent me a corsage before going to a dance and I pinned it on my evening bag instead of on me. I was afraid of soiling my new dress or of putting holes in it and I thought it looked very well on my bag. Mother said I was rude to the boy and she wouldn't blame him for not bringing me any more flowers. Was I?

Answer: As long as you showed enthusiastic appreciation, I can't see that you were rude in pinning the flowers on your bag instead of on your dress. As a matter of fact, you were able to show your appreciation of them by picking them up and admiring them from time to time which you could not have done had they been pinned on your dress.

Paper Doilies

Dear Mrs. Post: When is it proper to use paper doilies?

Answer: They are used under the ornamental sweets which are either put on the table when it is set, or brought in at dessert. They also are used under all breads and cakes.

When is it proper to use the expressions, "I'm sorry" and "Excuse me" also "I beg your pardon"? Mrs. Post is sorry she cannot answer personal mail. However, leaflet E-15, "Manners in Public," includes answers to these questions. To obtain a copy send 10 cents to her, care of The Kingston Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Britons Get Back Coronation Stone

Dundee, Scotland, April 11 (AP)—Britain's coronation stone, stolen from Westminster Abbey Christmas morning, was handed to the custodian of Arbroath Abbey near here today.

The famed stone of scone was placed in the high altar of the Abbey, on the grave of King William the Lion, king of Scotland from 1143 to 1214. The Abbey, founded in 1176, is largely in ruins now.

Two unsigned letters, one addressed to King George VI and the other to the General Assembly of the Church of Scotland, were left with the stone.

The people who left the stone did not identify themselves.

All Registration For Red Cross Aid Class April 18

Walter Tremper, disaster chairman of the Ulster County Chapter of American National Red Cross, stated today that the work of rehabilitation following the disastrous flood of March 31, is well underway. Distressed families are being visited by Red Cross Disaster Service workers assigned by Natnonal Red Cross to assist the local chapter. The task of assisting disaster stricken families will require days of hard work. The funds used for this work are made available from contributions to Red Cross in the fund campaign.

Tremper pointed out that it is clear that Red Cross cannot justiy divide its funds among communities or states according to population or by similar methods. If this were done it would be impossible for the Red Cross to give aid at the places and to the individual families where the aid is most needed. Neither can the Red Cross justify the spending of disaster funds for the aid of families without a thorough inquiry into each situation to determine what needs caused by the disaster can be met by the disaster sufferers and what needs will be met by Red Cross. The work is being pushed with all possible speed but the Red Cross, as the disaster relief organization, is unwilling to sacrifice thoroughness and fairness for speed.

The disaster sufferers in Ulster county are busily engaged in the big job of cleaning up after the flood. Red Cross workers have stated that the hard work and resourcefulness of the residents of the affected areas indicate the willingness of these people to help themselves as much as possible.

To date 34 families have registered for Red Cross assistance. The losses of these families include food, clothing, income, furniture, damage and total destruction of homes and other buildings, loss of farm equipment and livestock and loss of occupational equipment. Emergency assistance has been given in several instances and at the present time the emphasis is on planning with the families to help them get back to their normal way of living.

Registration for Red Cross assistance to disaster sufferers will close April 18, 1951. Tremper announced. The Red Cross Disaster Headquarters located at 308 Clinton avenue, is open each weekday from 8:30 a. m. to 5 p. m. Any flood sufferer in Ulster county who wishes to know about Red Cross Disaster Relief may contact the Disaster Headquarters to obtain information.

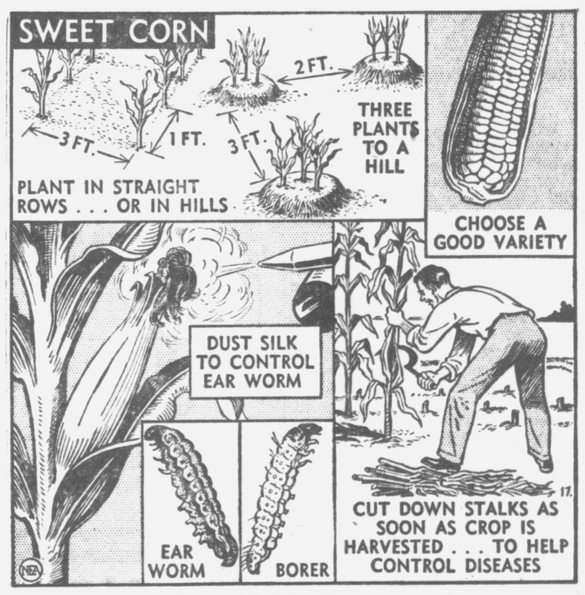
YOUR GARDEN — By Arnold Davis



Sweet Corn Yields Generous Crop

Here is another luxury vegetable. Sweet corn will require space but if the garden is large enough it will yield real results in satisfaction for a fresh table vegetable or for the corn roast.

Plant one of the newer hybrids and give the crop plenty of room to grow. Use straight rows with a plant every 12 inches or 3 plants to a hill every 2 feet, and in either case make the rows at least 3 feet apart.

A good variety is Golden Cross Bantam although many other varieties are now available which will give good results. Plant a row every 10 days if possible until the first of August, starting soon as frost days are over. If you have the space you will get a crop which has no equal either fresh, canned or frozen.

Two pests are in corn, ear worm and the borer. The former is the worst. It can be controlled by dusting the ears with a good modern insecticide containing D.D.T. when the plant is in full silk. Cut down the stalks and add to the compost heap as soon as the crop has been harvetsed. This will help to control diseases.

Marines Will Show Pacific War Films

Owing to the tense situation in the Pacific area, where many of its members fought during World War 2, Ulster Detachment of the Marine Corps League will feature two films of battle action in that theatre during the meeting scheduled Thursday night.

The regular session of the detachment will be held at 8 p. m. in the rooms of Joyce-Schirick Post, 1386, Veterans of Foreign Wars, and Commandant Albert J. Melville of the marines has issued a cordial invitation to all veterans to see the movies.

In urging full attendance of members and their friends, Commandant Melville said, "conditions are far from settled in the Pacific and our detachment is presenting Iwo Jima and another film to remind veterans and their fellow Americans that this nation must maintain its guard against forces that would crush democracy and the free way of life."

As usual, refreshments will be served after the business meeting.

In 1900, 41,000 Americans died of cancer. An estimated 210,000 will die of cancer this year, the American Cancer Society says.

Milk Council Holds Annual Dinner

Newkirk, Kingston; Ed Bauman, guest speaker; and George Silkworth, president of the Council. Standing in the usual order are Harry Beatty, vice-president; Dr. Robert H. WOODSTOCK NEWS

By RICHARD E. THIBAUT, JR.

Milk Council Held Vital in Defense

Woodstock, April 11 — Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, of Kingston, and Edgar Bauman were the guest speakers at the annual dinner of the Kingston Milk Council Tuesday night in the Gallery Room of Deanie's.

Introduced by George Silkworth, president of the council, Mayor Newkirk said that since he had been in office from 1948 until the present time, he had never received any complaints concerning the milk dealers.

Bauman stated that he considered the milk dealers as an important part of the defense program. He cited the great snowstorm of 1947 when the milk supply to New York almost ceased. Speaking as an aviation commentator, Bauman touched upon world affairs. He reported that in New York there is a lack of interest, as in other places, in the defense program. The defense chief, in New York, he said, had made a plea for 1,000,000 volunteer defense workers and only 10,000 had responded.

Dr. Robert H. Broad, of the Ulster County Health Department, spoke concerning the assistance the department has given to the Milk Council and to the public.

Officers of the organization who attended were Harry Beatty, vice-president; Pratt Boice, secretary; and Addison Jones, treasurer. Other guests were Dr. Gilbert F. Hoppenstedt and William Hand.

Following the program a question bee was held and the following participants were awarded prizes: Gladys Winston, of Saugerties and Dan Morehouse of the Boice Brothers Dairy of Kingston.

Boys State Again Planned; Sessions Will Begin June 22

Woodstock, April 11—Further details concerning plans for the Empire Boys' State, sponsored by the American Legion Department of New York, have been announced. Empire Boys' State is a citizenship training program designed to meet the needs of our young, according to the American Legion brochure.

This year Empire Boys' State will be held from June 22 to June 28 at Colgate University, Hamilton. Colgate is situated amid the rolling hills of the Chenango Valley some 1130 feet above sea level and the location is ideal for the program.

Principal John H. Martin of Kingston High School is the Ulster county Boys' State chairman who will be responsible for filling the quota from this area. Application blanks and brochures may be obtained from him and must be returned to him with the accompanying fee of $25 on or before May 15. The transportation of the boys to Colgate is not included in the $25 fee and this expense will be borne by Woodstock American Legion Post 1026 for boys from this village.

Busy Program

Boys who have previously attended any Boys' State are not eligible to attend a second session. Boys must be 15, 16 or 17 years of age and juniors in high school and residents of the state. The boys will be chosen with regard to the following: seriousness of purpose, industry, initiative, influence, concern for others, responsibility and emotional stability.

Teachers Aid Program

During the past few years Empire Boys' State has been fortunate in obtaining the services of high school teachers and law school students who have been with the program for many years. Their services have contributed no little to the success of the program as they are experienced personnel who know boys and parliamentary procedure.

Thirty cities will be formed at Boys' State and each city will consist of 30 boys and the 30 cities will be divided into 10 counties. A counselor will be assigned to each city and it will be the duty of the counselor to assist the boys and guide them in their activities.

In addition to governmental work, many activities are provided for the boys. A softball schedule and a tennis tournament will be held. Boys will be permitted to swim in Colgate's indoor pool. A band concert will be arranged and boys who play instruments are encouraged to bring them. A daily newspaper will be printed by the boys, and a police force will be organized with court trials held. For those boys wishing to be admitted to the bar of Empire Boys' State examinations will be given. A talent show will be arranged and any boy who has exceptional ability will be permitted to perform. Boys' State chaplains will participate in the morning assembly programs.

Each boy who attends from the Woodstock township will be invited to attend a meeting of the American Legion Post 1026, following his return, to explain to the organization the nature and extent of his activities at Empire Boys' State.

Village Notes

Woodstock, April 11—Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hoffman have arrived at their Zena home for the summer.

Richard Gorham, of Fredericton, N. B., Canada, who is attending Clark University, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Neilson.

Home Bureau Shifts Date of Card Party

Woodstock, April 11 — At the regular monthly meeting of the Woodstock Home Bureau Tuesday afternoon it was announced that the card party planned for May 3, has been postponed until May 10. Mrs. Harry Froot is chairman.

The unit, which now has 50 members, will sponsor several classes in the near future. The class in tray-making, to begin in May, will be under the leadership of Mrs. Elizabeth Clough and Mrs. Harry Kutzschbach. Mrs. Joseph Holdridge is the leader for the glove-making group, which will start Thursday, April 19. Other information concerning the classes may be obtained by calling Mrs. Daisy Montgomery at Woodstock 2020.

From April 30 until May 5 is national home demonstration week. Samples of the work of the members of the Home Bureau and that of the Overlook Home Bureau (the evening unit) will be on display at the Woodstock Dairies through the courtesy of William Hand.

Hostesses for the social hour at the meeting were Miss Kate Berch and Miss Agnes Wangler.

Saratoga Bans 'Bingo Entirely'

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., April 11 (AP)—This historic racing center, target of a state-ordered investigation has banned bingo games.

"In view of the present agitation against all forms of gambling, it has been decided to stop bingo entirely," Peter F. Hofsess, deputy commissioner of public safety, said.

He added that bingo "has not been played here regularly or on an extensive scale."

On April 30, a special grand jury will look into possible underworld-political links in the city and county.

The probe was ordered by Governor Dewey after witnesses testified before the U. S. Senate's Kefauver crime committee that wide-open gambling had flourished here.

WOODSTOCK NEWS

Milk Council Held Vital in Defense

Woodstock, April 11 — Mayor Oscar V. Newkirk, of Kingston, and Edgar Bauman were the guest speakers at the annual dinner of the Kingston Milk Council Tuesday night in the Gallery Room of Deanie's.

Introduced by George Silkworth, president of the council, Mayor Newkirk said that since he had been in office from 1948 until the present time, he had never received any complaints concerning the milk dealers.

Bauman stated that he considered the milk dealers as an important part of the defense program. He cited the great snowstorm of 1947 when the milk supply to New York almost ceased. Speaking as an aviation commentator, Bauman touched upon world affairs. He reported that in New York there is a lack of interest, as in other places, in the defense program. The defense chief, in New York, he said, had made a plea for 1,000,000 volunteer defense workers and only 10,000 had responded.

Dr. Robert H. Broad, of the Ulster County Health Department, spoke concerning the assistance the department has given to the Milk Council and to the public.

Officers of the organization who attended were Harry Beatty, vice-president; Pratt Boice, secretary; and Addison Jones, treasurer. Other guests were Dr. Gilbert F. Hoppenstedt and William Hand.

Following the program a question bee was held and the following participants were awarded prizes: Gladys Winston, of Saugerties and Dan Morehouse of the Boice Brothers Dairy of Kingston.

Boys State Again Planned; Sessions Will Begin June 22

Woodstock, April 11—Further details concerning plans for the Empire Boys' State, sponsored by the American Legion Department of New York, have been announced. Empire Boys' State is a citizenship training program designed to meet the needs of our young, according to the American Legion brochure.

This year Empire Boys' State will be held from June 22 to June 28 at Colgate University, Hamilton. Colgate is situated amid the rolling hills of the Chenango Valley some 1130 feet above sea level and the location is ideal for the program.

Principal John H. Martin of Kingston High School is the Ulster county Boys' State chairman who will be responsible for filling the quota from this area. Application blanks and brochures may be obtained from him and must be returned to him with the accompanying fee of $25 on or before May 15. The transportation of the boys to Colgate is not included in the $25 fee and this expense will be borne by Woodstock American Legion Post 1026 for boys from this village.

Busy Program

Boys who have previously attended any Boys' State are not eligible to attend a second session. Boys must be 15, 16 or 17 years of age and juniors in high school and residents of the state. The boys will be chosen with regard to the following: seriousness of purpose, industry, initiative, influence, concern for others, responsibility and emotional stability.

Teachers Aid Program

During the past few years Empire Boys' State has been fortunate in obtaining the services of high school teachers and law school students who have been with the program for many years. Their services have contributed no little to the success of the program as they are experienced personnel who know boys and parliamentary procedure.

Thirty cities will be formed at Boys' State and each city will consist of 30 boys and the 30 cities will be divided into 10 counties. A counselor will be assigned to each city and it will be the duty of the counselor to assist the boys and guide them in their activities.

In addition to governmental work, many activities are provided for the boys. A softball schedule and a tennis tournament will be held. Boys will be permitted to swim in Colgate's indoor pool. A band concert will be arranged and boys who play instruments are encouraged to bring them. A daily newspaper will be printed by the boys, and a police force will be organized with court trials held. For those boys wishing to be admitted to the bar of Empire Boys' State examinations will be given. A talent show will be arranged and any boy who has exceptional ability will be permitted to perform. Boys' State chaplains will participate in the morning assembly programs.

Each boy who attends from the Woodstock township will be invited to attend a meeting of the American Legion Post 1026, following his return, to explain to the organization the nature and extent of his activities at Empire Boys' State.

Village Notes

Woodstock, April 11—Mr. and Mrs. Murray Hoffman have arrived at their Zena home for the summer.

Richard Gorham, of Fredericton, N. B., Canada, who is attending Clark University, was the week-end guest of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Neilson.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., April 11 (AP)—This historic racing center, target of a state-ordered investigation has banned bingo games.

"In view of the present agitation against all forms of gambling, it has been decided to stop bingo entirely," Peter F. Hofsess, deputy commissioner of public safety, said.

Brighten Tired-Looking Rooms with Pittsburgh WALLHIDE
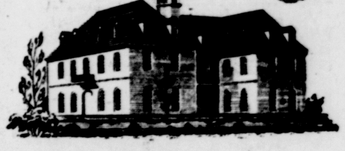
The only paint for interior walls with special "Vitolized Oils" for live-paint protection!

• If you have drab, color-starved rooms—now's the time to use the magic of Pittsburgh WALLHIDE. It will surprise you how quickly, how easily—and at modest cost, too—you can perk up your home. Wallhide is a real oil-base wall paint that restores soft-toned beauty to faded walls with one coat. It is enriched with special "Vitolized Oils" that control penetration and decrease the need of a priming coat. It dries quickly to a rich, pleasing sheen and can be washed easily without streaking.

FLAT—in a series of beautiful pastel colors ..... Gallon $4.06
SEMI-GLOSS—where a medium sheen is desired. ..... Gallon $5.25
GLOSS—ideal for kitchen or bathroom. Gallon $5.25

Only Pittsburgh offers you authentic Colonial Williamsburg Colors

• The rich, mellow lustre of Colonial Williamsburg finishes is now available in a wide range of Wallhide and Historic wall paints, adapted to modern usage and priced well within the range of ordinary paints. Gallon $5.25



Your family will like a full-length checker-upper like this

• Every member of the family—mother, dad and the youngsters—will find that full-length Pittsburgh door mirrors make it easy to be well-groomed. Pittsburgh door mirrors are inexpensive and pay dividends in better grooming that far outweigh the original cost. And they are simple to install—just follow directions enclosed with every mirror
